BRITAIN MAKES AIR CRAFT ABLE TO SINK SHIPS

Pushes Its Plans for War in the Air.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—While Germany has perfected an all-metal airplane that makes all other types of construction obsolete Great Britain, it became known here today, has completed a number of giant flying engines of war capable of destroying battleships with aerial torpedoes.

This revolutionary development, giving an illuminating glimpse of the warfare of the future, has been known, it transpires, to the army air service for some time. A confidential report has been received from an American attaché abroad giving the details of a series of successful tests of the new planes and torpedoes in the destruction of naval craft.

Aviation Arm Necessary.

These are two illustrations of the extent to which America has been outdistanced since the end of the war in the development of aircraft. Air service officials are convinced that the lost ground can be recovered only by a decision on the part of congress to tackle the problem of air navigation on the same scale as have European nations.

One of the chief arguments for the creation of an aviation department having control of military and naval as well as commercial aeronautics is that aerial warfare of the future makes a distinct aviation arm of the nation's forces a necessity.

Second Line of Defense.

"The navy is and will continue to be as far as we can now foresee our first line of defense," said Gen. William Mitchell, director of military aeronautics, today. "But instead of the army the air forces have become our second line of defense, as a result of the development of planes capable of sinking battleships.

If our first line of defense should be pierced by the defeat of our navy we would fall back on the second line, our air forces, which would be depended upon to play havoc with the enemy navy. Behind the air forces we would have the third line of defense, our army.

Single Direction Urged.

"To develop and maintain the air forces as the second line of defense they should not be divided between army and navy, but should be consolidated under a single direction as a distinct organization of the armed forces of the nation coördinate with the army and the navy."

Entertaining this view Gen. Mitchell did his utmost to bring about the establishment of a department of aeronautics as embodied in Senator New's ill fated bill. The commission sent abroad by Secretary Baker immediately after the armistice with Assistant Secretary of War Crowell as chairman made an exhaustive report of the tremendous progress in aviation made by the principal European nations, and strongly urged the creation of an aviation department like Great Britain's air ministry.

Profits by Experience.

Great Britain experienced two disasters in attempting to fight the war with an air service divided between the army and navy, but eventually reconsolidated the aviation forces under independent direction as the second line of defense.

Secretary Baker, however, rejected the recommendation of a single air service and was backed up by Gen. Pershing and by navy department opposition. The result was that the New bill encountered chilly reception in the senate, and the Indiana senator had it recommitted to the committee from which it was reported in order to save it from defeat.

Support Kahn Bill.

With the opposition to a department of aeronautics unabated in congress, Gen. Mitchell and those who are seriously concerned by the backwardness of the United States in this field are supporting the Kahn bill to establish a bureau of the air which will coördinate army and navy aviation and promote commercial flying. They believe that the passage of such legislation will be a step in the direction of the eventual creation of a department of aeronautics and the only step feasible at this time.

Gen. Mitchell recently submitted to congress detailed figures showing that a single air service would eliminate duplications of army and navy activities, effecting an aggregate saving of $11,305,200 a year, or 20 per cent of the appropriation for army and navy aviation this year.

OAK PARK WIFE NAMES COY "ME" AS LOVE PIRATE

Finds Husband's Notes and a Mystery.

BY LEOLA ALLARD.

They were tender letters written in a feminine hand. The smell of lilacs was in them, and the odor of romance. They were signed "Yours always, Me."

They were meant to be read only by W. J. Reitz Jr., of Oak Park, but Mrs. Rietz found them in his clothes. Yesterday she caused her attorney, William S. McNamara, of 155 North Clark street, to draw up a bill asking for separate maintenance.

Rietz is connected with the International Chemical company. His father is exalted ruler of the Oak Park lodge of Elks, and his uncle, Hamilton Post, of Columbus, O., is a millionaire wagonmaker.

Seeks in Vain for "Me."

"Me" is young and beautiful, and elusive. She lives somewhere on the north side with her parents. So much Mrs. Rietz knows about her—so much and no more.

"I've tried to find her," she told Attorney McNamara. "I've spent money and time and tears in the effort. I wished to tell her that Mr. Rietz is married. I cannot believe she knows it."

It was sometime ago that Mrs. Rietz found the letters and read them. One contained the picture of a young woman. On the back of the picture was written:

"To the sweetest boy in the world. From Me."

"She Loves Me."

"What does this mean? Who is this woman?" Mrs. Rietz asked.

"She is very sweet and she loves me," was the reply, according to the wife. "She loves me more than you ever did. But give me two more weeks with her and I'll come back to you. Two weeks, for we have engagements we cannot break."

"He asked for two weeks," says Mrs. Rietz, "but he has taken four. He says now that this girl thinks so much of him it is hard to get away. This morning I told him I was through. And I meant it."

Mrs. Rietz reached into her handbag and drew out a woman's calling card and a paper on which was written the following agreement:

"I, C. H. N., do hereby give my solemn and sacred promise to marry W. J. Rietz as soon as the law allows."

Another "Me" in Case?

The calling card evidently bore the name of the woman who had signed the agreement. But Mrs. Rietz doesn't believe she is "Me."

"It doesn't look like 'Me's' writing," she said. "It is dated Jan. 15, 1920. The letters from 'Me' were dated in March. I do not wish to tell this other woman's name. She may be married. And she may not be 'Me.'"

Mrs. Rietz put the card and the agreement back into her handbag and took out one of the letters.

"Would you like to read this?" she asked. "It is the first. It is dated March 19, 1920."

"That Was a Nice Kiss!"

"Hello, sweetheart," the letter begins. "As usual, I am awfully lonesome for my sweet boy today. That was a nice kiss you gave me this morning. It was almost a regular one. We almost had enough time for it, didn't we? Oooooooo, honey, I love you so! Truly, you are my own sweet boy, aren't you? And you are always going to love me, aren't you, dear?"

"You see, it's signed just 'Me,'" said Mrs. Reitz. "O, I would like to find her, or her mother! I don't think her mother would let her have a married man for a caller if she knew, do you? Here's a letter dated March 20. See, she calls him 'Billy, you old sweet thing'!"

"I got your card this morning, and I love to have it, honey," "Me" says in this epistle. "You sweet boy! The park is a pretty spot and would be nice for a picnic. But, of course, it is not half as nice as our island is going to be, is it, darling?"

Here "Me" says she is in "the very most wretched mood today" because

$10 A DAY PAY CUTS BUILDING ACTIVITY HERE

Effects of New Wage Scale Shown.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

May day brought an increase of $2 a day to the building trades in Chicago. Pay went up from $1 an hour to $1.25 for some twenty crafts, including carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers, plumbers, steamfitters glaziers, lathers and structural iron workers. They now get $10 for an eight hour day and double time for overtime. The new schedules, which became effective yesterday, were agreed upon two months ago. A year ago the same crafts were getting 75 cents to 80 cents an hour—the increases in the scale within the last twelve months amount to $3.60 to $4 a day, depending on the trade.

Common building labor got a May day raise of 43 per cent. Under the new schedule the pay for ordinary labor went from 70 cents an hour to $1 an hour. This is a jump from $5.60 a day to $8 a day, or a raise of $2.40.

74 Per Cent Jump.

A year or so ago the pay was 57½ cents an hour. In a little more than twelve months the increases for common labor have amounted to $3.40 a day, which is a 74 per cent jump in wages.

Plasterers' laborers are given $8.50 a day, and caisson diggers get $10 per eight hour day, or mechanics' wages.

A large proportion of the building trades workers have been getting the $1.25 rate for months, due to the labor shortage, and the new schedules give permanency to this.

Cuts Building Activity.

The May day ointment, however, has its fly. Building activities in Chicago have been chopped in half during the last two months. The labor shortage is vanishing, and builders report no real scarcity of men. There is a possibility that the crafts may find themselves with high wage scales, but slack employment. At the other end, the public gets it in the neck through diminished building, which means prolongation of the period of high rents, Chicago being probably short some 50,000 domiciles, due to the stoppage of construction during the war.

Building activities are always regarded as a great barometer of economic conditions. In the Chicago situation thinking men see much to indicate that a "slump" is gradually moving this way—not a panic nor a state of wholesale stagnation, but a letdown in employment and purchasing power. Many argue a sag would not be without its benefits.

Views on Conditions.

Here are a few observations gathered from talks with authorities in the building line yesterday:

ACTIVITIES—Chicago, early this year was expected to do about $150,000,000 worth of building in 1920. It has been reduced 50 per cent. About $40,0000,000 worth was under way the first of the year, and if $30,000,000 more is done the trade will consider itself fortunate.

EFFICIENCY OF LABOR—Contractors report workers are doing only about 65 per cent of the pre-war day's stint; which is about the same in the great bulk of industrial lines, according to best estimates.

OVERTIME—This is diminishing. Some unions have agreed to cut out overtime work, which brings double pay, unless consented to by the employers' association and the union heads.

No Shortage of Men.

LABOR MARKET—In a year the men in the building trades in Chicago fell off from 70,000 to about 42,000. Wage increases and much overtime were a natural result. Contractors, bidding for men, ran wages up above the union scale. The reduction in building activities, however, has been so great that today builders report they have no real difficulty in getting men.

MATERIALS—Brick costing $7 a thousand three years ago now bring $16; lime, worth 60 cents a barrel in 1917, now costs $2; laths have jumped from $4 to $6 a thousand to $22; lumber which cost $35 to $40 four years ago now costs $65 to $80; fabricated steel which could be bought for $35 a ton in 1916 now brings $100 and over.

Opinion of Trade.

The opinion of the trade was reflected by E. M. Craig, secretary of the Builders' association.

"The public," he said, "is reluctant to build at increased costs, and construction will sag until costs come down."

THE CHANGING WORLD

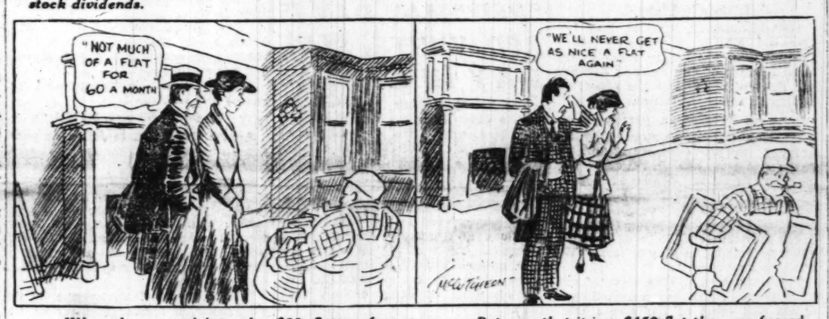
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When America invented the airplane the nations of Europe regarded it with amazement.

Now America regards the superiority of European aviation with amazement.

In 1916, '17, and '18 Uncle Sam collected nearly half a billion dollars as income taxes and stock dividends.

Now the Supreme Court decision requires him to return it to the ones who paid it in.



When they moved into the $60 flat a few years ago it seemed pretty small for the price.

But now that it is a $150 flat they are forced to move to a less expensive one, it seems vast and roomy.

DEALERS REGRET, BUT BREAD, ETC., MUST GO HIGHER

The price of bread and pies and rolls, and all other bakery goods, is going up.

The Chicago Master Baker's association admitted last night, through its president, Marshall O. Densby, and John M. Hartley of the executive board, that the strikers had it whipped.

"There's nothing we can do," said Mr. Densby. "We'll have to pay the men what they ask—$50, $48, and $46 a week, and 30 cents an hour extra for men who work from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. That's the minimum. The man who works that late shift cannot make less than $64.40. And for a skilled worker, there is no limit. Last year the scale was $17 a week lower."

"The cost of sugar is higher," said Mr. Hartley. "We're paying 31 cents a pound now. Flour is dear. We want to go on record as saying that the prices that must come are unjust to the public and the trade. We increase them under duress of circumstances."

JAMES B. FORGAN, ILL WITH GRIP, IS MUCH BETTER

Jame B. Forgan, chairman of the board of directors of the First National bank and First Trust and Savings bank, who has the grip at his home, 1415 North Dearborn street, was reported greatly improved last night.

Owing to Mr. Forgan's advanced age and the high pressure at which he has been working recently fears have been entertained by close friends that his illness might result in a general breakdown. He was 68 April 11.

"Mr. Forgan is much better," said Mrs. Forgan. "There is no cause for alarm."

ARCHBISHOP BUYS $104,000 FARMS FOR NEW COLLEGE

Waukegan, Ill., May 1.—[Special.]—Senator Rodney B. Swift of Libertyville has sold to Archbishop Mundelein of the Chicago diocese two of his three farms west of Libertyville. There are 260 acres in the tracts and the consideration was $104,000. It was stated the archbishop acquired the property to permit enlargement of grounds for the Catholic college which is to be constructed at Area.

STRANGE TALE OF RAID ON WALL ST.

Broker Confesses Firm's Part in Vast Thefts.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Direct evidence showing how the millions of dollars in securities stolen by Wall street messengers for "Nicky" Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen, master crooks, now fugitives from justice, with scant likelihood of being caught, were marketed through brokerage houses, which obtained loans upon them from respectable banking institutions, has come into possession of the authorities through the confession of David W. Sullivan, head of the brokerage firm of David W. Sullivan & Co. of this city and Washington, D. C.

Sullivan's confession, made to United States Commissioner Gilchrist, covers many typewritten pages containing as strange a narrative of the downfall of a previously respectable firm driven by business reverses into dealing with the master crooks as has ever been incorporated in the proceedings of the court.

Sold for Fourth Value.

How a substantial part of the $2,500,000 in securities stolen for the two crooks within a year and a half were peddled in small lots at one-fourth of their value; how these securities were put up by the purchasers as collateral for loans; how, to conceal the transactions from the honest cashiers and clerks in the brokerage offices, fake purchases of stocks, bought under fictitious names, were recorded in the books of Sullivan & Co., and how the securities themselves changed hands in barrooms, on street corners, and in hotel rooms in various cities, all form a part of the amazing recital.

Sullivan's first meeting with Arnstein and Cohen, he said, was in the bar of the Bretton Hall hotel, on the night of Oct. 11, 1919, and Cohen met him three days later in Washington, where he turned over to him a batch of securities of a market value of $45,000, which Sullivan pledged as collateral in the Riggs National bank in Washington for a loan of $20,000.

Sullivan told of other meetings with Cohen, and occasoinally with Cohen and Arnstein in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, and Hoboken, at each of which he received from Cohen stolen securities, which he immediately pledged as collateral for loans with banks. All through his testimony Sullivan referred to Willand W. Easterday, ostensibly manager of Sullivan & Co.

Scattered Over Country.

Through the ingenious manner in which the stolen securities were disposed of as collateral for loans, it is believed by District Attorney Swann that many brokerage houses and banks throughout this country and Canada have almost $2,000,000 worth of stolen securities on hand, but they are unaware of the fact, because they practically are "buried."

Yearly Service Stripe for Clothes, Millionaire's Idea

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—[Special.]—A Detroit millionaire has proposed a new plan for fighting the high cost of clothing. He proposes service stripes for old suits. Persons wearing garments over one year old will be entitled to wear a white bar with one blue star. Two year olds will be allowed two stars.

Poles Chase Reds to Kiev Environs

WARSAW, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Polish cavalry is reported to have reached the outskirts of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. The bolshevik command has been moved eastward to Kharkov. The infantry is reported to be coming up rapidly toward Kiev.

The newspapers pay a glowing tribute to the cavalry's leading part in the offensive. In several instances the cavalry divisions are two days in advance of the infantry.

The 70th and 44th Red divisions have been cut off from the main forces by the Polish Lancers and are now surrounded in the region of Berdicheff and Zhitomir, but are declared to be desperately trying to fight their way eastward.

Tuesday's booty included forty-four locomotives.

Trotzky Tries to Save Men.

Intercepted wireless orders, given out here today, show that Trotzky (Russian bolshevik minister of war and marine) is maneuvering to save these divisions from capture, but their escape thus far has been frustrated through Polish knowledge of their plans. The encircled Reds include the division commanders and their staffs.

Galician and Ukrainian detachments which fought with the bolsheviki are reported to have revolted and to have sent delegates to Gen. Pilsudski, the Polish commander in chief, and Gen. Simon Petlura, the Ukrainian leader, proposing to join the Poles.

Polish cities are decorated and celebrations are being planned to celebrate the advance. Congratulations are pouring into the capital from all points.

Announce Moghileff Fallen.

Moghileff has been occupied by the advancing Polish troops, according to an official statement issued here today. The 12th bolshevist army was almost destroyed, the remnants fleeing, the statement said. Fifteen thousand prisoners were taken, the statement said, with enormous amounts of booty, including war craft.

The newspapers report that Trotzky is somewhere in the region of Kiev and speculate whether he is endeavoring to save the balsheviki from decisive defeat.

For some days there have been reports that the bolshevik resistance was stiffening, especially in the south along the Bug river.

Soviets Swear Retribution.

LONDON, May 1.—The Soviets of Kiev and Kharkov, says a wireless message from Moscow, have announced their determination "to defend the revolution against the Polish aggressors." Their resolution says: "A decisive war has been started between the Russians and the Ukrainians and Poles, which will only end by complete destruction of the Polish squires."

CALL UKRAINE FREE.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Poland has recognized the independence of Ukrainia under the directorate of Gen. Petlera, the Polish legation was advised today. This action was forecast several days ago in press dispatches from Warsaw. Since then the Polish and Ukrainian forces have coöperated in the successful drive against Kiev.

Two hundred thousand Russian refugees are crowding Black sea ports to escape bolshevik inroads in south Russia, according to advices to American Red Cross headquarters from Maj. James A. Mills, in charge of work on the island of Proti, near Constantinople. "Penniless, suffering and distracted," Maj. Mills calls the refugees. American destroyers at Novorossisk and Sebastopol are coöperating in removing the refugees to places of safety.

LLOYD GEORGE, BRITISH PREMIER, HAS BRONCHITIS

LONDON, May 1.—Premier Lloyd George has been ordered by his physicians to remain in bed for a few days because of what is described as a mild attack of bronchitis and fatigue from his San Remo activities. The premier's indisposition first became noticeable at yesterday's Irish conference, at the conclusion of which he canceled his appointment to visit the king last night at Windsor castle.

Last of the Old South's Money Destroyed by U. S.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—The final chapter in the financial history of the Confederate States of America was written in the treasury department today when $60,000,000 in confederate money was destroyed to relieve the congested condition of the treasury vaults. The currency was seized by the federal troops when the southern capital was captured.

LET CONGRESS PICK ANOTHER, GENERALS SAY

U.S. Watching for Early Flight.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—President Carranza was advised by his generals at a conference held a few days ago to resign in favor of a president ad interim whom he or congress should appoint, according to dispatches reaching Washington tonight through official channels.

Carranza refused to accept the recommendation, the dispatches said, but agreed to the withdrawal of the presidential candidacy of Ygnacio Bonillas, ambassador to the United States, and to the sending of a commission to negotiate with the revolutionists.

Admit It's Serious at Last.

The conference, which was participated in by all the generals in the vicinity of the capital and by Acting Minister of War Urquizo, the advices said, was called by the direction of Carranza to discuss the secession of Sonora.

Lengthy arguments for Carranza's resignation were presented by some of the officers, it is said; one of the chief arguments being that surrender of the presidency would eliminate danger of intervention by the United States.

The names of the generals at the conference were not given.

U. S. EYEING CARRANZA

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Reports that President Carranza may attempt to flee from Mexico, either by Vera Cruz or across the American border, is officially regarded with interest.

In connection with such a possible flight, movements of his son-in-law, Gen. Candido Aguilar, governor of Vera Cruz, are being closely followed.

The fact that the revolutionary movement is centering in northern Mexico with the possibility of extending eastward along the border might also persuade Carranza against an effort to leave Mexico from the north, unless other channels for departure were effectually blocked.

Vera Cruz May Be Loophole.

It is considered more probable that he would attempt a flight through Vera Cruz, where he could count upon the coöperation of Aguilar.

Mexican embassy officials today said the report that Carranza's contemplated flight was entirely without foundation. In other well informed circles, however, the report is given credence.

PLAN JUAREZ SURRENDER

El Paso, Tex., May 1.—Negotiations were progressing in Juarez tonight for the peaceful surrender of the city to revolutionists, Carranza officials admitted.

Rebel leaders declared they were already in possession of the port. They claimed the federal garrison revolted today after Col. Augustin Mora departed for a conference with war department officials in Mexico City.

Carranza representatives declared rebel emissaries from Chihuahua City and Sonora were working with government representatives for the city's surrender.

Federal Chief Fears for Life.

A report from the Obregon faction here was that Gen. Urbalejo, who has been in command of 800 Yaquis at Casas Grandes, was en route to Juarez, fearing assassination at the hands of Indians in sympathy with Obregon.

The Sonora junta said Pascual Ortiz Rubio was in possession of Morelia, capital of Michoacan, with a well organized army.

"JUAREZHELL" ONCE MORE

BY NORMAN WALKER.

El Paso, Tex., May 1.—[Special.]—Sherman, or B. L. T., or whoever it was, who said "Juarezhell" must have had in mind the political situation across the Rio Grande.

Yesterday everything was as quiet as a Benton Harbor holiday. Tonight the natives are all excited over the possibilities of the town going over to the rebels, and reinforcements are being rushed here from Casas Grandes, 125 miles southwest.

Tonight the revolution seems to be leading in Chihuahua, with the Carrancistas a poor second. The rebels played their trump card when they forced Col. Augustin Mora to leave Juarez. Mora refused Wednesday to join the rebel movement.

Gen. José Gonzalo Es—— ordered his arrest and would have been able to put it over had he not been called into conference with American military authorities here.

He was told plainly that no firing opposite here would be permitted, and that all troops were ordered under arms to back up the statement.

Following this conference, the Obregon junta announced that the turnover in Juarez would not occur for another week, as Mora would be given a chance to leave, in order to prevent an open revolt and firing.

Give Up Sonora Drive.

Both campaigns against the west coast rebels have been abandoned for the good reason that the Carranza government has its hands full elsewhere.

Gen. Manuel Dieguez, who was at Guadalajara preparing to march against Sonora, has back tracked and is reported to be coming north.

The Sonora campaign, over the mountains from Chihuahua, has been a fizzle, and Col. Fox returned to Juarez late today with 300 troops, all that remained of the column which was to have crossed the mountains.

HOW OBREGON ESCAPED

How President Carranza of Mexico was outwitted by Gen. Alvaro Obregon when the first chief sought to have his ablest military commander arrested on a trumped up charge of treason, so as to eliminate him from the presidential race, and how the general fled from Mexico City in a racing automobile, were incidents disclosed in a communication from Mexico yesterday to Gen. J. A. Ryan, a member of the brokerage firm of Merrill, Lynch & Co.

Gen. Ryan, through his first hand knowledge of conditions on the border and his acquaintanceship with Gen. Obregon, is constantly in touch with Mexican affairs.

General Outwits Police.

Gen. Obregon was in Tampico conducting his campaign for the presidency, the letter to Gen. Ryan says, when President Carranza ordered him to Mexico City to answer a charge that he had given aid and comfort to a Mexican rebel named Cejudo. He explained the baseless nature of the charge, apparently to Carranza's satisfaction, when he was secretly informed on the evening of April 13 last that Carranza was going to order his arrest.

Plans were quickly made for his escape. Nearly twenty-five friends of Obregon drove up to his home in their automobiles. They entered the house, and almost immediately afterward the entire party, Obregon among them, dressed in a friend's civilian clothes left the house, entered their cars, and started for the central plaza, surrounded and followed by Carranza's secret police in automobiles and on motorcycles.

Breaks Through Cordon.

Arriving at the plaza, the procession weaved its way among the hundreds of cars slowly driving around the square where a band was playing. Some of Obregon's friends alighted, others drove back and forth, one or two reentered their cars; all mixed up the party's motors until the police utterly lost track of Obregon's machine.

In the confusion the general's chauffeur drove quietly out of the jam and down a dark side street, where a racing car owned by a wealth Mexican was waiting. Obregon entered this machine and dashed off to the west, until he reached the state of Michoacan, where Gen. Francisco Maycotte revolted against Carranza and offered protection to the fleeing candidate.

Gen. Ryan's correspondent also informed him that Luis Cabrera, secretary of the treasury for Carranza and bitterly anti-American in sentiment, has prepared the way for his flight from Mexico, if the rebellion gains, by sending seventeen strong boxes from Juarez to El Paso, Tex., each containing 5,000 silver pesos, nominally $42,500 United States gold.

TELLS PROGRESS OF GERMANY TO DISARMAMENT

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, April 30.—On what might be called a showdown as to the progress of Germany's disarmament, the reichswehr ministry today contended that there were only two points of dispute between the government and the inter-allied control commission.

The first is the maintenance of the present armament to fortresses authorized by the treaty on the eastern and southern frontiers. The second is whether Germany shall retain the ownership of a vast amount of war material and munitions, which must amount in the aggregate on the Polish frontier now equipped to 570 heavy and 530 light guns and sixty anti-aircraft guns.

A representative of the ministry admits that the army roster April 5 showed a total of 11,525 officers and 220,000 men, but pleads that an accurate trimming was prevented by the Kapp coup and its consequences—such as the impossibility of demobilizing the Ehrhardt brigade and volunteer units which now are withdrawn from Ruhr for dissolution. He asserted that the treaty minimum will be reached May 15.

Another admission is that the old military service law of the empire has not yet been rescinded because of the failure of the national assembly to pass the pending new law.

SWEDEN EXPECTS BIG BUSINESS WITH AMERICA

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, May 1.—Sweden is looking forward to a big future business in handling American manufactured products for Russia, according to Ira Nelson Morris, American minister to Stockholm, who now is in Paris en route to Chicago.

"Business conditions in Sweden are most healthy," he said, "considering the conditions in the rest of the world. The Swedes believe that they enjoy comparative tranquility. The nation is anxiously awaiting the allied action in regard to Russia. Great activity is expected when Russia renews commercial relations with the world."

40,000 Demand Scotch Soviet; Favor Lenin, Irish

LONDON, May 1.—During the May day celebration at Glasgow a crowd of 40,000 persons adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of a cooperative commonwealth. The resolution embodied fraternal greetings to soviet Russia and proclaimed the right of the Irish people to choose their own form of government.

3 DEATHS MAR MAY DAY REST OF PARIS REDS

Small Riot Caused by the Stoning of Busses.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, May 1.—Although three persons were killed in minor fighting between crowds and police, the May day demonstration in Paris passed with comparative calm. The day was tactily selected for a test of strength between the French government and the labor federation and each scored something of a victory. Although all industry was shut down, and transportation was somewhat crippled because hundreds of thousands quit work for the day, the government broke the railroad tieup and kept the city transportation moving with engineer students and strike breakers. On the other hand the senate in extraordinary morning session granted the demands of the union miners that the slate workers share in state pension awards.

Crowds Good Natured.

There were great crowds in the streets, but for the most part they were orderly. Gendarmes with sheathed bayonets strolled the boulevards in pairs; platoons of cavalry walked their horses along the streets. There was some jeering from the crowds, but generally it had the appearance of good natured holiday banter. At huadreds of labor demonstrations red flowers or ribbons were worn, but there was little of the "red flame of radicalism" in evidence. There were no barricades, no picket lines—nothing that in any way hampered the movements of the crowds. To this is attributed the absence of any extensive violence. The labor leaders themselves placed a ban on street speaking and processions.

Busses Cause Trouble.

It is not impossible that had no motor busses or tram cars been operated there would have been no trouble at all. For the outbreaks in which the fatalities and injuries occurred centered around the operation of busses by strike breakers.

Well dressed students manned the wheels of the busses. Beside them were "tinhatted" soldiers. A civilian conductor on the rear platform also had a soldier guard. The late afternoon crowd on Grand boulevard, between Portes St. Dennis and St. Martin, hurled stones. Some bus windows were broken. Flying glass injured some passengers. Gendarmes and cavalry cleared the streets, using the flats of their swords. A number were struck, but no serious injuries were reported.

Battle Before Barracks.

The clash in which the fatalities occured came at 5 o'clock in the Place Republique, in front of the barracks of the Republican guards. Some 300 demonstrators, who had been held tentative prisoners in the barracks courtyard since early afternoon—because they had been too demonstrative—were turned loose. As they marched out of the gates a wildly cheering crowd swept down on them, lifting them on shoulders and jeering at the police. Gendarmes drew their clubs and drove the crowd back. Well dressed young women in the crowd shook their fists under the noses of the police. Then they began pulling police mustaches and calling hard names. Some were accidentally hit by police clubs. Then the men began to fight.

Gendarms Use Pistols.

The guards charged with drawn sabres, using the flats freely. Eight or ten were slashed. In one or two instances a gendarme was forced to use his firearms. The deaths are believed to have resulted from these shootings. When the place was cleared of the crowd a number of wounded were left behind. These were taken by their comrades to the labor federation headquarters nearby.

One woman watching the fight from a window was hit by a stray shot and died later.

It is estimated that 50 per cent of the busses and 40 per cent of the streets cars were kept running. The hotel strike was mostly a failure, all the big hotels and most of the small ones manag g to care for their guests. Most of them, however, kept their gates barred and admitted guests only as recognized. The cafes were also closed and barred. Generally business was at a standstill.

15,000 MINERS IN CANADA CALL MAY DAY STRIKE

Toronto, Ont., May 1.—May day activities in Canada were featured by a strike of 15,000 coal miners in the Nova Scotia district, the men quitting work as a protest against the refusal of the authorities to release the Winnipeg strike leaders on bail, pending the hearing of their appeal to the higher courts.

In Winnipeg a great labor demonstration was held as a protest against the imprisonment of the strike leaders, but the crowds were orderly. Little interest was manifested by workers in what had been planned to be a monster demonstration in Toronto. In smaller towns throughout Canada strikes of only local significance were ordered.

France Forces Pension Bill to Placate Labor

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, May 1.—The government this morning hurriedly summoned the senate in extraordinary session and forced the passage of the bill, including the slate workers and quarry workers, in the pensions increases recently granted the miners. The chamber of deputies had previously passed the bill, but the senate had adjourned. Today's action indicates the government's inclination to yield to the workers rather than have trouble.

THE REVOLUTION IN MEXICO

According to Gen. Villareal, leader of the Mexican rebels at Agua Prieta, thirteen states have joined the revolution. They are shown shaded on the map, and include Sonora, Sinaloa, Chihuahua, Guirrero, Mihoacan, Zactecas, Hidalgo, Tlaxcala, Merelas, Tabasco, Nuevo Leon, Vera Cruz, Nayarit.

1—Carranza expected to flee from Mexico by way of Vera Cruz as revolution spreads to the north, making escape to the United States across the border precarious.

2—Juarez reported to have surrendered to the rebels, the garrison joining the revolution.

3—The Sonora junta reports Morella, capital of Michoaran, is in possession of Pascual Ortiz Rubia.

MAY DAY BRINGS JOHN BULL RED, BLISTERED FEET

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, May 1.—There was no stoppage of work on account of May day in England. A plan of hotheads among the railwaymen to strictly observe the rules petered out. A few men actually tried to observe the rules, but this proved so unpopular with their comrades that they had to drop it. In London there was a great parade of trade unions and socialist and coöperative societies. There probably was between 15,000 and 20,000 in the line, which took two hours to pass THE TRIBUNE'S London bureau on the way to Hyde park, where a great meeting was held.

Rioting in Finland.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Serious rioting broke out Friday night in the labor quarter during fighting between the peoples' guard and the police, resulting in many casualties.

No Trouble in Berlin.

BERLIN, May 1.—A sunny May day brought Berlin outdoors into the parks and open spaces. Orderly processions of men and women with bands paraded in the Thiergarten quarter and a feautre was to be noted in the processions of school children bearing green branches and mottoes, such as: "We, too, strike on May 1," and "We want secular schools."

The street cars and the elevated and underground railroads suspended operations and most of the stores were closed. There was no trouble.

Lunatic Fires On Parade.

MADRID, May 1.—Thousands of workers held demonstrations here today. There was only one disturbance. A Peruvian fired on a procession of workers, who returned the fire. No one was hit. The Peruvian was arrested. He is believed insane.

All Belgium Quiet.

BRUSSELS, May 1.—Throughout Belgium there was no May day disturbance. The workers confined themselves to speechmaking and parading.

JOFFRE VISITS BARCELONA.

BARCELONA, May 1.—Marshal Joffre arrived here today. His reception was of a purely civilian nature and there was an enthusiastic gathering of personages connected with Catalonian art, literature, and science.

"RED" MAY DAY IS RED, WHITE, BLUE DAY IN KANSAS

Topeka, Kas., May 1.—Kansas today is celebrating its first American day, in keeping with a proclamation issued by Gov. H. J. Allen, to counter balance the custom of European "reds" to devote the day to anarchical demonstrations.

Cities and towns throughout the state participated in patriotic demonstrations and parades for the day's program. Posts of the American Legion, national guards, Spanish war veterans, G. A. R., school children, and organizations of every nature took part.

He'll Move Fast Enough if You Show Him a Devildog

THE HAGUE, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Thorough preparations for the transfer of former Emperor William and his household from Bentinck castle at Amerongen to his estate at Doorn are being made by the Dutch government. Dr. J. B. Kan, charged with guarding the former emperor, has interviewed Count Hohenzollern and the members of his suite regarding the change. He has also discussed the matter with the burgomaster of Doorn and the captain of gendarmerie, who will supervise the actual transfer.

ONE YAWN AND A JOKE MARK OUR MAY DAY 'REVOLT'

'Bomb' Turns Out to Be a Bottle of Hootch.

Chicago woke up yesterday morning, yawned, and prepared for the "revolution." Hundreds of policemen, federal agents, voluntary aids to the military intelligence department, scattered hither and yon in readiness for deadly combat with the Red.

And so passed the quietest May day in Chicago's history. One red flag was flown—as a joke—from the top of a schoolhouse flagpole. One "bomb" was thrown at the federal building—a bottle of "Old Taylor" dropped through a skylight into a ring of petrified secret service agents.

A Man Skins His Knee.

One ambulance call was turned in—a man had skinned his knee skidding on the tiled floor of a loop lunchroom. One riot call was turned in—a moving van had tipped over, spilling its contents on the street. One arrest was made—a man from Cleveland had a Russian Bible in his pocket.

A TRIBUNE reporter crawled out at 8 a. m. under instructions to "keep touring" in troublesome districts.

On the north side he saw baby carriages and wheelbarrows, loaded to the guards, moving to new flats. He attended a May day church service at Bradley and Noble streets. He mingled with picnickers, searched diligently for a widely advertised Russian soviet in Humboldt park, found a basement, with twenty barrels of home made wine guarded by brawny men, and ate his lunch in a garlic atmosphere before starting southward.

Two I. W. W. Ladies Disagree.

Crossing Madison street, he wandered into I. W. W. hall, 119 South Throop street, where 300 ardent sympathizers were listening to Sam Hardy of England expound the doctrines of the One Big Union.

"Before next May the workers in all countries must unite in aiding their oppressed comrades—" the speaker was shouting when a voice cut through the tobacco smoke.

"What th' he——do they allow things like you in here?" Red Rosa, pride of the I. W. W., had just seen "Communist Lil" of "restful valley."

"Aw, beat it before I push in your face," was Lil's reply.

"You couldn't push a go-cart!" this from Rosa.

"Say, listen, you——" Lily began, but a husky wobbly hooked a burly fist into the communist locks and dragged her out of reach.

"Down with capitalism——" resumed the speaker.

Baseball, Silence, Et Cet.

Across the street, in Jefferson park, numerous holders of the red card were playing baseball.

At the Italian Sphagetti restaurant at 1022 West Jackson boulevard, little groups gathered silently around the tables. Conversations were in undertone. In one corner a girl of 16 with a red rose pinned on a necktie of scarlet, speared the serpentine fruit in silence.

On South Hermitage avenue, in the 4500 block, a former member of the national executive committee of the Communist Party of America sat in a little room littered with papers. He spent his May day writing the closing chapters of a book which he proclaimed would expose the real "inside" of American radicalism.

No Hint of Race Trouble.

In the district where race trouble was feared, from Sixtieth street south, quiet prevailed. Policemen yawned. Whites walked with freedom through the streets of the "Black Belt," and colored people traversed with safety the districts across the imaginary deadline.

In Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, Aurora and Joliet like conditions prevailed.

The revolution "just didn't happen."

CROWN PRINCESS OF SWEDEN DIES AT STOCKHOLM

Crown Princess of Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Crown Princess Gustave Adolph of Sweden, who before her marriage was Princess Margaret of Connaught, died here this afternoon.

The crown princess had been suffering with erysipelas, which affected the ear and maxillary suppuration, resulting in blood poisoning.

Father Receives News.

LONDON, May 1.—The Duke of Connaught received news here of the death in Stockholm of his daughter, Crown Princess Gustave Adolph of Sweden, amidst hundreds of congratulatory messages sent him on his seventieth birthday.

IRISH DESTROY MORE BUILDINGS; BALK AT BILL

LONDON, May 1.—The police barracks at Gortin, County Tyrone, was burned this morning by forty armed men, who held up the village and prevented interference. The police buildings at Plumbridge also were burned.

Won't Accept Irish Bill.

LONDON, May 1.—A statement credited to the Irish Nationalist members of the house of commons was issued tonight, saying they would refuse to countenance the Irish bill by their presence at further discussions in the commons.

LOST: 1 MAY DAY REIGN OF TERROR; FINDER, KEEP IT!

Tale of Duty Done, or the Vigilantes Vindicated.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Attorney General Palmer tonight looked into the vast federal dragnet thrown into every nook of the nation and backed by all the resources of the United States government, the powers of the states, and the authorities of the municipalities, and there he found Ilija Vidovic.

Mr. Vidovic was captured in Cleveland, O. He was distributing a pamphlet bound in red covers and bearing the legend "Hail to the Soviets!" The manifesto was signed by the central executive committee of the Communist Party of America.

With Mr. Vidovic's incarceration and the confiscation of his documents, the attorney general and the various metropoli of the eastern seaboard prepared to rest peacefully after a day in which every sneeze was a burning fuse, every slamming door was a bomb, and every bewhiskered pedestrian was an anarchist on business bent.

Capital Carefully Guarded.

While every city and village in America, amply apprised beforehand by the attorney general, was watching for bolsheviki and their devilment, the capital of our country was being protected. Extra guards were thrown about public buildings, the Washington monument, and the statue of Peace.

New York was especially careful. Eleven thousand policemen were on the alert; ammunition was issued to troops on Governor's island, and the militia left their telephone number with their commanders.

In Rutgers square, New York, a meeting of workingmen was dispersed by the police. Nothing else seemed to happen in New York.

No strikes which could be particularly connected with the date were called; no bombs were thrown; no raids were made; no revolution was called; no clashes with the authorities were reported.

Attorney General Palmer's predictions were at once unfulfilled and fulfilled; that is, there was no May day uprising of the proletariat, and there was considerable comment, as he said there would be, on his warning of a Red revolution.

Mr. Vidovic's Fate Unknown.

At a late hour, Mr. Palmer had not indicated what disposition he would make of Mr. Vidovic of Cleveland.

Later: All of the "big men" listed for assassination were checked up late tonight. None of them was missing, and all were reported relieved at their escape.

$1,000,000 AUTO "BLUE BOOK" OF HARRIGAN FOUND

Supposed Plan of Theft Drive Revealed.

Had the supposed plans of James J. Harrigan, burglar king, matured, 262 prominent Chicagoans might have been mourning the loss of a million dollars' worth of high priced automobiles, it was learned last night.

In the diary of the late master thief, police found names, addresses and makes of cars written in bewildering profusion. Deciphered and arranged, they presented a miniature "Blue Book" of costly machines and wealthy owners. With this list in hand, careful checking has resulted in the proven theft of only one machine, and an attempted theft of another. Each name marked down, according to police speculation, represented a plan for a future theft.

The Auto "Blue Book."

The Cadillac of Dr. M. J. Nicholson was stolen nearly a month ago by Harrigan, who stripped tires and accessories from it and then abandoned it.

CONFESSIONS GIVE CLEWS

Confessions from two men and an 18 year old woman obtained by the police yesterday, in whose possession was found a key for a Packard automobile said to have been stolen from the home of Mrs. Paul Balbach, 446 Oakdale avenue, last February, are linked also with the Harrigan notations. Mrs. Balbach's flat was said to have been used as a Harrigan rendezvous during her absence from the city and neighbors told of seeing two women spending much time there.

The capture of the trio occurred three days ago and was suppressed by the police, who were searching for a fourth man. The two men are Julius Suffin, 22, 1400 Mohawk avenue, and Marvin Griffin, a porter at the Hyde Park hotel. The third man, now wanted, is Eugene Harty. The woman is Mrs. Marie Carter, wife of Robert Carter, now awaiting trial for the murder of a movie cashier on Crawford avenue recently.

Pawned Watch Leads to Arrests.

According to the police, Suffin, Griffin and Mrs. Carter robbed the home of Harold Sage, 6912 Wayne avenue, recently, obtaining about $600 in jewelry and other valuables. A watch, part of the loot, Mrs. Carter later pawned at the shop of Max Spear, 517 North avenue.

Detective Sergeants Frank Casey and Thomas Duffy found Mrs. Carter at the home of her mother, Mrs. Louisa Ternowski, 1732 Bissell street. From her they got information that led to the arrest of Suffin at 5219 Dorchester avenue.

In his room were found suitcases taken from the Sage home. Suffin said Griffin had part of the loot, so Griffin also was picked up. Griffin implicated Harty.

Talks with Cellmate.

Suffin was locked up with a young forger at Central station. After a few minutes he started to talk about his association with Harrigan.

"Holy mackerel! Was he a good friend of yours?"

"None better. Say—see that scar on my arm. I got that in a gun battle out on Grand avenue a couple of weeks ago when we stuck up a man and got 2,000 bucks."

ELECTRIC CHAIR MAY KILL EIGHT IN SINGLE NIGHT

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The electric chair at Sing Sing is scheduled to take the lives of eight men on the night of May 24. Under present plans the eight are William Warmack, Leo Jankowski, Walter Levandowski, James Byrd, Joseph Milano, Joseph Usefof, Charles McLaughlin, and James Cassidy.

The latter four received a four weeks' reprieve last Thursday and, except for Milano, hope for a new trial on the charge of killing a subway ticket agent. Milano has assumed the guilt.

Rail Brotherhoods Tell Cummins: "We Fight You"

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 1.—[Special.]—The "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods informed Senator A. B. Cummins here last night that they were out to beat him, and that pressure would be brought to bear on every union man in Iowa to vote against him in the June primaries, because of his stand in the Esch-Cummins railroad bill for anti-strike legislation.

At their meeting they indorsed Col. Smith Brookhart, an overseas veteran.

"ME"

Mrs. W. J. Reitz of Oak Park (at left) and the mysterious "Me," who, she charges, wrote love letters to her husband, causing a suit for separate maintenance to be drawn up yesterday. Mrs. Reitz found the letters and the picture in her husband's clothes, she says.

OAK PARK WIFE NAMES COY "ME" AS LOVE PIRATE

Finds Husband's Notes and a Mystery.

mamma and papa have been bothering her about the piano, and she's cross about Irene, "that deceitful thing," and she could choke her. She doesn't think she'll ever have another girl friend—"the deceitful old cat!"

"But my old sweet honey is just the only dear, true person in the world," she continues, "and I know my faith in him is never going to be spoiled. It's just too stupid I can't get married until next year, isn't it, old dear? O, well, we will appreciate each other so much more by having to wait. I love you better than anything in the world."

"What do you think of that?" Mrs. Reitz asked. "My husband says he told the girl he was married, but that he and I had separated. He said she was tickled to death, and I remarked: 'She must be a fine girl to be so happy over wrecking another woman's life.' Guess she wrote him every day or two. This one's dated March 22."

Wants Letter Torn Up.

The letter she produced acquaints "my sweetheart" with the fact that "Me" is sorry she didn't leave a letter for him the day before, and adds:

"But, dearest, there isn't a moment of the day now that I am not thinking how dearly I love you, and how wonderfully sweet and good you are to me. You say you will love me if I don't change. There isn't a chance of my changing if you don't. I think it would kill me if I lost you now. I know there have been few people in the whole world who loved each other with the kind of love we have.

"Please, dearest, tear up this letter, for I love you, sweetheart, and this is only for you. I wouldn't want your father or aunt to happen to see it."

"She means Mrs. Hamilton Post," Mrs. Reitz explained. "His father's sister. She spends much time in Oak Park. She's there now. She and Will's father have never been friendly to me. I worked and helped Will with my money for three years; now that he is making money he finds another woman. Here is the last letter:"

The Last Letter from "Me."

This last letter says:

"Such a wonderful day, and while I am waiting for 1:30 I will tell you again how much I love my dear boy. I am so sorry you feel nervous. You must get to bed earlier and take better care of yourself. It rather worried me after I got home and got to thinking about the way you felt. I am going to have a vurry, vurry long, serious talk with you, honey, about taking care of yourself. I love my old sweet 'little fat Dutchman,' and I am going to help him be just the kind of man he wants to be. And Ooooooo honey, I do love you so MUCH! Please tear this letter up, honey, for somehow today I don't feel that I want any one to read what I write to you."

"He didn't tear up her letters," was the wife's comment. "They never do. Dear me!"

Jolly Bandit Life of Party as Pal Ransacks House

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Two polite bandits rang the front door bell at C. H. Dickinson's home in Woodcliff, N. J., today, at noon, and entered the dining room. There one of them, toying with a revolver the while, entertained the family at luncheon, while his companion searched the house. They departed with $500 in jewelry and $150 cash. Meeting the iceman on the way out, they relieved him of $200.

Those at the table were Mrs. Dickinson, her mother, Mrs. E. E. Thomas, who is 93 years old; her mother-in-law, Mrs. Alonzo Dickinson, who is 91, and Mrs. C. G. Thomas, her sister-in-law, who is 71 years old. All were gagged and bound with napkins just before the bandits left.

SUPER-BIGAMIST TELLS OF CANADA GIRL HE MARRIED

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—Walter Andrew Watson, alleged to have married a score of women and confessed that four of them died violent deaths, protested today to officers that he had told them the truth as to the location of the grave of Nina Lee Deloney, with whose murder he is formally charged.

"I hope you will believe me," he protested to officers who have been searching in vain for the grave in a desolate portion of eastern San Diego county. "If I were stronger I could go to the place with my eyes shut," he added.

The officers stated that in addition to offering to show them the grave, he also told them today of another marriage, unsuspected by them, to a Mrs. Watt in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, with whom, he said, he lived only one day.

Wilson Soon to Resume Week-End Trips on Yacht

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—President Wilson probably within the next two weeks will resume his week-end trips down the Potomac river and on Chesapeake bay on the yacht Mayflower. No announcement has come from the White House, but Admiral Grayson is anxious that the chief executive should have a change of environment, and Mr. Wilson always has thoroughly enjoyed such trips.

No Stylish Gowns Until Prices Fall, 12,000 Say

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 1.—[Special.]—Twelve thousand members of the Congress of Women's Clubs of the Pittsburgh district have pledged themselves to wear only "staple" clothing until prices of more modish garments drop and to place a two weeks' ban on potatoes in a campaign against the high cost of living.

Bosses and Patrons Wait on Tables in Loop.

The business agents of the local joint executive board of the restaurant and hotel employés' union called a strike yesterday. They went from hotel to club calling out the waiters, waitresses, cooks and kitchen help.

Members of the union followed them out in droves—150 from the University club, 250 from the Hotel La Salle, sixty from the Hamilton club, 225 from the South Shore Country club, 100 from the Blackstone, twenty cooks from the Auditorium, 175 from the Congress, 125 from the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Some of these places the pied pipers—Herbert Gould and John Wright—left helpless. The managements of other places met the situation and coped with it.

Tracy Drake Turns Waiter.

In the Blackstone the guests waited upon themselves. Tracy Drake, head of the Drake Hotel company, which operates the Blackstone, took up a tray and a napkin and showed his versatility, but took no tips.

Mr. Drake said later he would take no waiters back. Girls have been engaged and they will remain after the strike is over, he declared. He warned the waiters of this fact before the walkout. He told them the "Boost Chicago" organization was spending a $1,000,000 to attract trade to Chicago. That meant more guests for the hotel and more tips for the waiters—but the men would not listen. Anyhow 1,200 people were fed at noon and the management said there wasn't a single complaint.

Girl Waiters at Congress.

The Congress hotel management sent a crew of young women into the field left vacant by the strikers, and the change took place so quietly few of the diners knew a strike had occurred.

"We will serve all meals on schedule time," said F. W. Bering, manager of the Hotel Sherman, "even if we have to put aprons on our bellboys. All our employés are loyal and will do anything to tide over the crisis."

There were few banquets in the evening, but those that were held, together with many dinner parties, were served without trouble.

The srikers, backed by the Chicago Federation of Labor, have demanded increases ranging from 35 to 50 per cent, time and a half for overtime, and the closed shop. Ben Parker, president of the joint board, says that by tomorrow from 35,000 to 40,000 restaurant, hotel, and club employés will be affected.

Dairy Lunch Still Waves.

There has been no attempt yet to call a strike of the dairy lunch and cafeteria employés. Parker said that will "be attended to later"; it's the big places the strikers wish to tie up now.

Four of the big clubs, the Union League, the Chicago Athletic association, the Illinois Athletic, and the Chicago, and many of the outlying hotels and restaurants, have signed up with the strikers.

"The rest will have to come to us," said Parker. "Our headquarters are at 214 North State street. If the strike isn't settled in three or four days, some of the big hotels and clubs are going to be in an embarrassing situation, for 25 per cent of the strikers are going to the summer resorts."

Fight to a Finish.

A. G. Swanson, president of the Hotel Association of Chicago, issued a statement to the effect that the association is "united in its determination to continue the operation of its hotels and restaurants in such manner and under such control as will insure to the American public the kind of service to which it has been accustomed, and which it has the right to expect."

"To that end," the statement continues, "we will maintain our right to hire and discharge as we formerly have done, and as the interests of good hotel management demand. Under no circumstances will we permit outside parties to interfere with the conduct of our business."

The key to the entire situation is the hotel chefs, who are not organized and belong to no union.

In each of the affected hotels the chef remained on the job.

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Washington Bureau of The Tribune.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PALMER'S May day reign of terror did not materialize. No bombs were thrown, no officials were assassinated and no general industrial uprisings. In some quarters Mr. Palmer is being criticised for "seeing red."

AFTER forty years of discussion and agitation the senate today passed Senator McCormick's bill to create a budget system for handling government appropriations.

CHAMPIONS of Admiral Sims and his criticism of Secretary Daniels for unpreparedness insist that Mr. Daniels' own defenders in the navy proved by their testimony that charges were well founded.

PRESIDENT WILSON is believed to be contemplating approaching the allies with a policy of dealing more leniently with Germany in order to assist her in meeting the terms of peace.

ELIMINATION of the sales tax from the soldiers' bonus bill has been made necessary by the opposition of a group of Republicans as well as Democrats. The Republican members of the ways and means committee will attempt to find some satisfactory compromise substitute next week.

REPRESENTATIVE DAVET of Ohio, before the house rules committee, declared that Assistant Secretary of Labor Post is a menace to the country.

REPRESENTATIVE GOOD, chairman of the house appropriations committee, criticized the administration for failing to get results from appropriations designed to aid in reducing the cost of living.

Duke of Devonshire on Way Back to Canadian Post

LONDON, May 1.—The Duke of Devonshire, governor general of Canada, and the Duchess of Devonshire, who came to London for the marriage of their daughter, Lady Dorothy Cavendish, to Capt. Harold MacMillan, last month, left London this morning for Liverpool. There they will board the steamer for the return trip to Canada.

Albanians Are Massacring Greeks, Moscow Asserts

LONDON, May 1.—An Albanian rising against the Greeks has begun in Epirus, according to a Moscow wireless, and Albanian bands are massacring the Greeks.

PROMISE FIGHT ON KNOX PLAN TO BRING PEACE

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Democratic senators, it was reported today, are preparing to filibuster against the Knox peace resolution if necessary to prevent its passage before the national conventions.

A canvass showed today probably only one Republican senator, McCumber of North Dakota, would vote against the resolution. At least four Democrats—Reed, Gore, Shields, and Walsh of Massachusetts—probably will support it. This would give the resolution a safe margin.

It is the belief here that President Wilson would veto the resolution.

Daughter of the Sultan Is Married to a Prince

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 29.—[Delayed.]—The sultan's daughter, the Princess Sabiha Sultana, was married Thursday to Prince Omar Farouk Effendi, son of the heir apparent, Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi.

Damad Ferid Pasha, the grand vizier, and the members of the cabinet attended the wedding, which was held in the Yildiz palace. The Shiek-Ul-Islam pronounced the benediction. The princess is 22 years old. The bridegroom was educated in Vienna.

Cardinal O'Connell to Pay Visit to Vatican

ROME, April 30.—Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, who arrived in Rome yesterday, visited the vatican today and was received by the master of ceremonies. The pope immediately set Saturday for a special audience of the cardinal, but on second thought, recalling that Saturday was May day, he expressed the wish that the cardinal should not be out on that day and postponed the audience until later.

Hungarians to Get Copy of Treaty on Thursday

PARIS, May 1.—The council of ambassadors has fixed Thursday next for the delivery of the treaty to the Hungary delegation. The Hungarians will be allowed ten days for examination of the document before signing.

SALES TAX PLAN TO RAISE BONUS THOUGHT DEAD

Will Never Pass House, Is Belief.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—No soldiers' bonus bill can be passed by congress unless a satisfactory substitute for the proposed sales tax is found. This was the consensus of opinion of house leaders today, following the Republican caucus of Friday night, at which the opposition showed such strength as to cause an abandonment of plans to rush the bill through on Monday.

Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the house ways and means committee, who in an impassioned speech at midnight last night accused Republican members of the house of getting "cold feet," took the first train out of Washington this morning for his home in Michigan.

Committee to Continue Work.

As matters now stand the bill, which was approved by the ways and means committee yesterday by a vote of 11 to 10, is still in the hands of the committee. The Republican members of the committee will resume their conferences next week in an effort to find some sort of a compromise on which united party action can be based.

There is no intention to change the provisions of the bill providing for five alternative adjusted compensation schemes. In view of the determined opposition to any form of sales tax, however, it seems to be recognized that the provision for this form of tax will have to be eliminated.

For Retroactive War Profits.

Representative Johnson of South Dakota made a speech in the house today reiterating his opposition to a sales tax. He continued to approve the retroactive tax on war profits as embodied in identical bills introduced by him and by Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, Democrat.

Representative Pell of New York, a Democrat, made a speech opposing any form of bonus legislation. He said he believed himself to be committing political suicide, but that "honor would not permit him to follow any other course."

JOHNSON MUST PUT UP $50,000 FOR N. J. RECOUNT

Newark, N. J., May 1.—Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the Supreme court today signed an order for a recount of the vote cast in last Tuesday's presidential preferential primaries for Senator Johnson and Maj. Gen. Wood.

The recount will be for the entire state and will begin on May 10 in Essex, Morris, Camden, Gloucester, and Cape May counties, where the supporters of Senator Johnson allege that mistakes were made in vote tabulations.

The sum of $50,000 must be deposited with the secretary of state of New Jersey by Senator Johnson before the recount will begin to defray expenses entailed by the various county boards in the recount.

Let Reds Talk, Taft Says; Punish for Acts Only

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Former President Taft took a stand against wholesale deportations in an address today. He referred to the fact that the Supreme court of the United States had ruled that aliens may be deported without a trial. He added:

"No matter what a man may say, he should not be punished unless there has been the fullest inquiry into what is done or what may be done in connection with it. Let him talk.

"No matter what a man may do, no matter how horrible the crime may be, he should not be punished unless he has had every chance to defend himself."

225 NAMED FOR HALL OF FAME; 20 TO GET TABLETS

Barbara Frietchie Is Not Real, Electors Rule.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The Hall of Fame committee announced that several new selections have been received and conceded by the board of directors, making ninety-one new names to be considered "among the justly famous." Next fall the 102 electors of the Hall of Fame will select twenty, whose names are to occupy a place in the hall at New York university.

There are 111 names of men, and twenty-three names of women who have been held from the last election in 1915. This year there have been added eighty-seven names of men and four of women. Every name has been proposed by the public, and some received hundreds of public nominations. Only two public nominations were rejected this year by the committee of the Hall of Fame. These were Barbara Frietchie and Hiawatha. They were rejected because the committee ruled that both were literary characters. Several women's organizations have made determined efforts to have Barbara Freitchie's name among the fifty-six already in the hall.

Vote on Roger Williams.

Some of the nominations which have been made this year have caused much discussion among the members of the committee. One if that of Dr. John Clarke, whose proposers declared that he was the real founder of the Rhode Island colony. The name of Roger Williams will be voted on again this year, and a tablet bearing the name of this contemporary of Clarke in Rhode Island is ready for unveiling.

Frederick Douglass, the first Negro to be proposed, is among the the new nominations. His nomination has caused much comment among those who believe that Booker T. Washington would be more representative of the American Negro. Medical societies also are in controversy over their nominations.

Edwin Booth Proposed.

Walt Whitman has many supporters. The actors have indorsed the name of Edwin Booth. Admirers of Walter Hunt assert that he, and not Elias Howe, whose name is in the hall, was the real inventor of the sewing machine. Ottmar Mergenthaler, the inventor of the linotype, also has been nominated for a place among the immortals.

The names of women have caused less discussion. The women have a separate hall of fame, but their names are proposed and accepted under the same rules. Four women whose names go upon the preliminary ballot this year are Susan B. Anthony, Jennie June Croly, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Fanny Davenport.

Laurette Taylor "Riot" Inquiry Leads Nowhere

CRIPPLED CREWS OF GREEN BOYS BRING FLEET IN

Half of Atlantic Squadron Idle for Lack of Men.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The active half of the Atlantic fleet, consisting of eight dreadnaughts and thirty-three destroyers, manned chiefly by boys who never before had been to sea, returned to New York today from the winter maneuvers in Caribbean waters.

Secretary of Navy Daniels, accompanied by a score of reporters and photographers, joined the flagship Pennsylvania as the fleet passed the Virginia capes yesterday morning. The secretary spent the day with Admiral Wilson, commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, and Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operations, checking up the results of the first cruise since demobilization disorganized the service.

Friendly Race at Sea.

During the afternoon there was an hour's speed test of the battleships operating on two-thirds' boiler capacity, which was won by the North Dakota, in the coal burner class, at something better than twenty knots, and by the Pennsylvania, among the oil burners, at nineteen knots without smoking.

The secretary addressed a message to the fleet announcing the details of the new navy pay bill, which he promised would become a law within a fortnight, and, entering the Hudson river this morning, he greeted by wireless telephone and magnifiers a crowd in Times square, nearly ten miles distant.

"We shall soon have a navy two and a half times as large as we had during the war," Mr. Daniels assured the multitude.

Defense Armor Cracked.

As a result of the serious undermanning of the navy, the ships returning Atlantic fleet, which in turn is half the Atlantic flee, which in turn is half the navy, are all that are available for immediate defense of the eastern seaboard, and even these, on account of the inexperience of the crews, are far from prepared for war.

Of the sixteen battleships in the Atlantic fleet, eight are tied up for want of men to operate them, their crews having been depleted to furnish a sufficient personnel for the eight sent to the winter maneuvers.

Similarly, more than sixty destroyers and all the cruisers were stripped of men to operate the thirty-three destroyers which steamed into New York today. Even the shore stations were combed of men to take these ships to sea.

Pacific Fleet Helpless.

In the Pacific fleet, the other half of the navy, even fewer ships are available for immediate active service because of the large numbers tied up for want of sufficient men.

Admiral Wilson and the commanders of the dreadnaughts and destroyers did not conceal the anxiety which has weighed upon them since the fleet sailed for the drill grounds at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, four months ago, and the relief with which they returned without any great mishap.

The ships that participated in the maneuvers are about 90 per cent fully manned, but 80 per cet of the crews are boys averaging 18 years and practically all without sea training.

On the Pennsylvania, which has the fewest green recruits, there are 1,200 officers and enlisted men, of whom only 300 are traind.

Creep South in Fear.

With the officers and veteran gobs struggling desperately to teach the hordes of landlubbers how to operate the intricate and delicate mechanism of the floating fortresses, the fleet crept southward in January, at a cautious speed, never exceeding ten knots.

The officers, sleepless night after night, felt as if they were playing with dynamite, not knowing what moment a green hand might become bewildered and pressing the wrong button, or pulling the wrong lever, cause, a fatal accident or destroy millions of dollars' worth of machinery, if not wrecking the ship.

Arrived at the drill grounds, the fleet went through elementary maneuvers, which were all that could be attempted with so large a percentage of novices.

Target Practice—In Theory.

For example, there was short range, but no long range target practice and even then no competition between the ships was permitted. It was feared that the excitement of green hands in the stress of such a contest might result in some catastrophe.

The land boys, however, proved willing, obedient to discipline, eager and enthusiastic in the main, as is demonstrated by the comparatively small number of "undesirable" discharges today, and they have learned the rudiments of their duties.

It is impossible to accord too much credit to the splendid body of officers and veteran enlisted men, hailing from every part of the union, who have stuck to their posts, desperately striving to maintain families ashore on the government's pittance, facing disorganization and demoralization and yet determined to bring order out of chaos and start the navy on the upgrade once more.

A Lesson for the Pacifists.

It is regrettable that legislators and citizens, who begrude the men of the nation's first line of defense a living wage, could not visit the fleet and observe the patriotism and sense of responsibility animating these veterans who took a $300,000,000 machine, operated by green hands to sea and brought it back again intact and appreciated in value.

The newspaper correspondents who joined the fleet with Mr. Daniels were eagerly plied by officers and men with inquiries on details of the pay bill, which mean so much that is vital to them and to the future of the navy.

The look of discouragement in the eye of many a veteran told graphically how little a 20 per cent advance means to an enlisted man with a family ashore and the cost of living doubled since he joined the colors.

Married Men Despair.

To married officers the increase given is almost as inadequate. As the fleet neared New York officers were fairly beset by their subordinates for advice.

More than 1,000 men took their honorable discharges today to seek better paying civil occupations. It is feared by officers that there will be wholesale desertions of men whom the pay raise does not relieve of financial difficulties.

Beginning with July 1, thousands of four year enlistments expire, so the officers face the loss of a large percentage of the veterans who helped save this cruise from disaster and will be compelled to navigate the ships with even a larger proportion of green hands, whom it will take two years or more to train.

The representation of the middle west in the navy is increasing at a notable rate, officers say, and recruits trained at the Great Lakes station are highly prized.

In the ward room of the Pennsylvania one meets, for example, Chaplain Stewart W. McClelland, a product of the McCormick Theological seminary and the University of Chicago, whose wife lives at Joliet, Ill.; Lieut. A. F. Bigelow, Lafayette, Ind.; Lieut. Robert Emmett Keating, Jacksonville, Ill.; Lieut. F. E. Locy, Evanston, Ill., whose father is a professor at Northwestern university, and Lieut. G. Bannerman, Red Granite, Wis.

KOSCIUSKO FLYING SQUADRON IN POLAND LED BY CHICAGOAN

MAJ. C. E. FAUNTLEROY.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—The Kosciusko squadron, which is performing valiant service with the Polish army in the campaign against the Reds, is composed of American aviators who saw service with the American expeditionary force in France, and its commander is Maj. C. E. Fauntleroy of Chicago, who took the initiative in its organization. Capt. Merlin C. Cooper of Jacksonville, Fla., ranks next to Fauntleroy.

Other members of the original squadron, who were received by Paderewski in Paris shortly before their departure for Poland to serve under the White Eagle, are Capt. A. H. Kelly, Richmond, Va.; Capt. Edward Corsi, Brooklyn; Capt. Paul Brewster, formerly of the British royal flying corps; Lieut. G. M. Crawford, Wilmington, Del.; Lieut. Kenneth Shrewsbury, Charleston, W. Va.; Lieut. Carl Clarke, Tulsa, Okla.; Lieut. E. W. Chess, El Paso, Tex., and Lieut. Edwin Noble, Boston, Mass.

The members of the Kosciusko squadron have organized a post of the American Legion in Warsaw with other Americans who fought in the great war.

DESPITE DANIELS, NAVY DID WELL, HIS FOES AGREE

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—"The navy succeeded in the war despite Secretary Daniels," is the opinion of naval officers who side with Admiral Sims.

Admiral McKean and Capt. Pratt, who took Secretary Daniels' side of the controversy, Admiral Sims' friends declare, were forced to admit that the navy was not prepared, and that Secretary Daniels did not do all that he should have done.

They say that the hearing showed that the navy department was not ready for war, and should be thoroughly reorganized.

Ex-Editor Daniels Picks Flaws in the Newspapers

New York, May 1.—Josephus Daniels, who is an editor when he is not secretary of the navy, addressed the New York Press club tonight and replied to the many charges made against his administration, speaking, as he said, "from the viewpoint of a newspaper man." The people he said are apt to forget to read nothing but sensational headlines.

Pointing out the difference between what he termed good and bad news, Mr. Daniels said:

"There is no news when the 100,000 officers and men of the navy are studying and training and hitting the target in southern waters in spite of reduced personnel and delayed increased pay. But there is sensation if one vain admiral lets loose an unfounded assault upon the navy."

News and No News.

"There is no news," he continued, "when misguided disciples of the enemies of the country which has given them food and clothing see the error of their ways and renounce revolutionary doctrine. But there are scare and box headlines when we properly deport anarchists and we ought promptly to deport every alien anarchist and jail every home-brewed bolshevist."

Every member of the profession, said Mr. Daniels, should ask his conscience who is responsible for the disproportion of good and bad news which makes false perspective, adding:

"To be sure, a paper must be a 'map of busy life,' but are we as diligent to search out the meat in stories all around us of unselfish deeds as of the sordid performances? I tell you there was never a time when so many noble deeds illumined the lives of American men and women as in our day.

Overlook the Rich Nuggets.

"And yet we newspaper men pass through these mines strewn with rich nuggets of pure gold and pick up and polish and place in our show windows the glittering imitations which we inexcusably pass off as the best the mine affords. Moreover, there is more human interest in the stories of saving and helping and encouraging than in the doings of the miners and sappers of society."

Mr. Daniels urged giving the readers of newspapers the true pictures of life, the good and the bad.

"If we print only the good," he said, "the people will think then that this world is heaven and cease all efforts to reform. If we print only the bad, the people will think the world so wicked that it is beyond the hope of saving.

"We have no right to slander any man in public or private life. We have no right to permit personal or political dislikes to warp editorial utterances. We have no right to make the worst appear the better reason."

Colby "Interprets" Elections.

Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby made a defense of President Wilson. Mr. Colby said this country believes in a league of nations and that it has so declared in unmistakable terms over and over again.

KEEP U. S. DRY, SENATOR OWEN SAYS TO PRESS

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Senator Owen of Oklahoma, speaking at the forty-eighth annual dinner of the New York Press, advocated a Democratic national platform, "without any invitation to John Barleycorn to come forth from his well deserved grave."

The weakness of the American government is too many statutes, too little enforcement, too many officials, too little control over official nonfeasance, misfeasance, and malfeasance, Senator Owen declared.

Senator Owen objected to having the peace treaty "used as a smoke screen to conceal from public scrutiny our great domestic problems affecting the high cost of living."

AMERICA FIRST SHIPPING BILL IS URGED ON SENATE

Washington, D. C., May 1.—The senate commerce committee made favorable report today on the bill providing that coastwise shipping shall be entirely American owned, that 75 per cent of the stock of American corporations engaged in foreign trade shall be owned in this country, and no American ships, except those in commission more than ten years and of less than 6,000 tons, could be sold to foreign interests without consent of the shipping board.

The committee so amended the bill that expenditure by the shipping board for new construction or for aiding private concerns in new construction is limited to $50,000,000 accruing from the sale and lease of ships.

Even the Michigan Avenue gendarme is susceptible. A smile from the little lady of the electric will melt the most obdurate heart that ever beat beneath a star and though she shatter every rule in the traffic book, she will ride immune from the indignity of a "slip."

The ladies, bless their hearts, were assembled. A sparkling row of motors parked at the curb attested that twelve had run the gamut of the crossings and a glimpse of the caterer's boy staggering under his tray of toothsome indigestibles proclaimed to the vigilant neighbors that a bridge luncheon was at full tilt.

And the observation was correct. The festivities were in honor of a well known matron sailing soon for Europe and conversation was going at top speed.

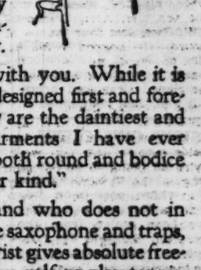
During the day the ladies assailed the servant shortage, flayed the golfing husband and unearthed some perfectly fresh and perfectly entrancing scandal.

Ah oui the party was a success!

Finally the talk centered on that most absorbing topic of all, clothes.

Of course, inferred an Oak Park newly-wed, the traveler would return with trunks teeming with the gay frivolries of Parisian shops: chapeaux, bijoux and silken lingerie.

Imagine, therefore, with what incredulity they heard her assert that, while she would feast her eyes, certainement, on all the treasures of Paris coutouriers, she would cling, nevertheless, to a good Chicago creation insofar as undergarments were concerned.



Why conceal it longer? Truth will out. The lady is a staunch devotee of Futurist. She tried these garments for the first time last year for vacation wear, thinking them limited to that type of service. But she found them divinely comfortable, learned that they came in a wide array of fabrics, even in sheerest Oriental silks, and espoused them for all time and all wear.

Then up spoke the hostess, "I for one quite agree with you. While it is true that Futurist are designed first and foremost for comfort, they are the daintiest and the most feminine garments I have ever worn. I have them in both round and bodice tops and wear no other kind."

If you love dancing, and who does not in these days of persuasive saxophone and traps, you will find that Futurist gives absolute freedom to the body. If you golf, or play tennis, there is no garment so comfortable. For fall or winter, summer or spring, any time, any occasion, Futurist is the proper undergarment.

Futurist comes in batiste, nainsook, voile, marquisette, crêpe and silk in flesh or white.

You can get Futurist at most good stores and shops. But if you have the slightest trouble finding it, just drop me a line and I'll tell you where. Anita Allison, 310 West Erie Street, Chicago.

FAT MEN BEAT WOMEN IN RACE TO CUT WEIGHT

Average Loss More than Five Pounds.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If they're are any distinguished service medals handy I would like to get in touch with them so that I might pin one apiece on my candidates for reducing honors.

In Dr. Robertson's class of women, sixteen entrants who were weighed on Thursday after a week's work had lost sixty pounds, an average of 3¾ pounds each. Twenty-one men in my class weighed yesterday after completing a week's work, had lost 112 pounds, an average of 5 1-3 pounds each.

I "suttinly is" proud of them. Their showing for a week's work is marvelous.

"But," says Mr. Wallace of the Wallace system of physical culture, in which school my pupils are putting in an hour's hard work daily, "I never saw such a fine bunch of men to work. It's remarkable the way they have attended the classes. And worked like trained soldiers. If they'll keep it up at the same rate for a few weeks more they'll be in dandy condition."

Still Much to Do.

Of course, I don't want to spoil them with praise, or they may get the notion they have done enough for their figures already. They must remember that the first week always shows the greatest reduction in pounds.

These men are sticking closely to the diet, too. They know they had better, what with the all-seeing eye we have turned on them at their respective mealtimes. So far the "eye" hasn't been overworked, because the reduction from day to day has proven they're following the golden rules.

Ruined by Pie à la Mode.

One man, however, fell by the wayside. We won't mention his name. But it shall be written on his tombstone: "He loved pie à la mode more than a good figure."

I bet he will be sorry when he sees the tabulated list of the men who had will power enough to diet. Mr. Wallace had to set an example, however, and expel him from the class. The pie and other forbidden fruits told on him when he mounted the scale.

It must be regretfully reported of one Penny Ross, too, that he fell away from the flock. He was full of good intentions the first day and the second—but the third day was too much for Mamma's Angel Child's Papa. He failed.

But, altogether, I am feeling pretty jubilant over this first week's work. And maybe the men aren't! One of them, W. W. Ford, lost four inches of waist measure. He begged to be excused while he went out to do the Highland fling by way of expressing his renewed youth and spirits.

Hours Planning Race.

Messrs. Starkweather, Reitman and Becker, all six pound losers, are planning an inside race for the next week.

And they're all going to be on hand this morning at the Tribune building, third floor, at 10:30 sharp, for the walk to which the ladies of the rival class have been challenged. It is going to be a constitutional, all right. The women pooh-pooh the idea of the men setting themselves up as star walkers.

Anybody wanting to come in on the walk is invited. We'll guarantee a lot of fresh air and a good time. Be prompt. And remember the time and place: 10:30, Tribune building, third floor.

Leaders in War on Avoirdupois

In the upper picture Mary Clarke, one of Dr. Robertson's favorite pupils, is shown in some of the exercises which have brought about her reduction in weight. In the lower, M. G. Evans, one of Antoinette Donnelly's stars, is shown as he appeared before he shortened the measure of his waistline and as he appears at the end of a week of training and dieting.

Federal Judge in Buffalo Upholds Lever Food Law

Buffalo, N. Y., May 1.—In a decision handed down in the federal court today by Judge John R. Hazel in alleged profiteering cases the Lever food control act provision against "unjust and unreasonable charges" is held to be constitutional.

BAKU, OIL TOWN ON CASPIAN SEA, TAKEN BY REDS

LONDON, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Russian bolshevik forces occupied Baku, an important port on the western coast of the Caspian sea and the center of an important petroleum field, on April 28, it was announced officially today.

The Azerbaijan government received an ultimatum from the bolsheviki on April 27 and the government immediately resigned. All parties then met and agreed to place the authority in the hands of the soviet administration.

The Azerbaijan government was thereupon recognized by the bolsheviki and a body of Red troops entered Baku next day.

Japanese Fight Reds.

VLADIVOSTOK, May 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—Severe fighting is in progress at Chita, trans-Baikalia, between the forces of Gen. Voitzekoffsky, the sole remnant of Admiral Kolchak's army in trans-Baikalia, and the opposing bolshevik faction, according to reports from a Russian source. The Japanese are declared to be supporting Gen. Voitzekoffsky.

ZAGER TO HANG FOR OWN STORY OF KILLING TWO

Jury Decrees Death for Courtroom Confessor.

Frank Zager, confessed slayer of two men, heard the death verdict read in Judge Sabath's court last night. Unless a new trial is granted, he will be sentenced to the gallows for killing Polidaris Serdakis three years ago.

He had deliberately placed the noose about his own neck on Friday, when he blurted out from the witness stand: "I bumped off Serdakis and shot his friend. I killed another man that same night."

Insanity Plea Fails.

Attorney Moran promptly changed the defense to an insanity plea, but when Drs. Clarence A. Neymann and W. O. Krohn, alienists, were called in they declared Zager was sane.

"Zager has had a chance for his life before twelve jurors and with able counsel to defend him?" said Assistant State's Attorney John M. Lowery in his closing arguments. "But he gave Serdakis no such chance.

"Jurymen, don't let the criminal world get the impression you are afraid. Don't let the community know that you fell for a fake plea of insanity."

Father Near Tears.

While the jury was out Zager talked with his parents and his pretty little sister, Annie. The father—a gray haired laborer—could hardly keep from weeping. The mother felt the pulse of the slayer and placed her hand to his forehead as he smoked a cigaret.

Zager was taken during the recent "Red" raids. An anonymous letter betrayed him.

ROUGH SLEDDING STILL FOR THOSE TOURING EUROPE

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—The American business man who goes over to continental Europe with the idea that he will have plain sailing in traveling through France, Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland, and that he will be received with open arms and treated with courtesy, has disappointment in store, according to Joseph De Wyckoff of the Vanadium Corporation of America.

Mr. De Wyckoff says restrictions are worse than during the war as far as the commercial traveler is concerned. He was forced to abandon a trip to Warsaw at the French border.

"In Paris I found every one was profiteering to the limit and that service was poor in the hotels," said Mr. De Wyckoff. "When I went to the prefecture of police for the necessary permission to live in Paris, I spent five days, in which I found more red tape and incivility than I have ever experienced before in the years I have spent on the continent."

PITTSBURGH, PA., HAS 588,193; INCREASE OF 54,288 IN TEN YEARS

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Pittsburgh, which in 1910 ranked as the eighth American city, now has a population of 588,193, an increase of 54,288 inhabitants during the last decade, the census bureau announced tonight. Pittsburgh's rate of increase for the last ten years was given as 10.2, which compares with a rate of 18.2 per cent for the preceding decade. The figures announced by the census bureau tonight follow:

	Pop.	Increase.	Pct.
Pittsburgh, Pa.	588,193	54,288	10.2
Terre Haute, Ind.	66,914	7,757	13.3
Harvard, Ill.	3,294	286	9.5
Averyville, Ill.	3,514	1,147	48.8
Lockport, Ill.	2,684	129	5.0
St. Charles, Ill.	4,099	53	1.3
Midland, Mich.	5,482	2,856	117.0
Joplin, Mo.	29,555	2,718	8.9
Hoquiam, Wash.	9,585	1,714	21.0
North Platte, Neb.	10,480	5,873	116.4
Connellsville, Pa.	13,804	950	7.5
Alameda, Cal.	28,806	5,423	23.2
Wilson, N. C.	10,653	3,956	58.8
Clifton, N. J.	26,470	14,691	122.0
Plymouth, Ind.	4,338	500	13.0
Grand Haven, Mich.	7,224	1,868	28.4
Bessemer, Mich.	5,482	899	19.6

Champaign county, Illinois, has a population of 56,945, an increase of 5,116.

Up to May 1, the bureau had announced the population of 713 cities and towns, the aggregate population of these places being 14,201,750. The list includes thirty-seven places which were not in existence as separate communities as far back as 1910, but as regards 676 places comparable figures are available for the censuses of 1900, 1910, and 1920. The population of these places increased from 8,594,103 in 1900 to 11,123,249 in 1910, and to 13,880,702 in 1920. This shows an increase of 2,529,146, or 29.4 per cent, from 1900 to 1910, and of 2,757,453, or 24.8 per cent, from 1910 to 1920.

WOMEN TURN POLITICIANS IN WINNETKA VOTE

Winnetka women turned politicians yesterday and spent the day hauling voters of the suburb to the polls in their automobiles to vote on the selection of a site for the proposed $350,000 school building. The board of education's choice of a site on West Elm street, a half mile from the center of the town, won by a majority of 251.

Three years ago the building was proposed, but lack of funds prevented carrying out the project. It was decided to raise the money by public subscription, and $150,000 had been obtained when opposition developed.

The opposition proposed additions to the Horace Mann school, in place of a new building. They demanded a referendum. The board agreed, with yesterday's results.

Among the women who worked for the site were Mrs. Victor Eltinge, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Wallace W. Chickering, and Mrs. Merritt Lum. Campaigning for the old school were Mrs. Grant Barlow, Mrs. Frank D. Fulton, Mrs. William A. Thrall, and Mrs. Earl Barber.

CALIFORNIA AND INDIANA TO HOLD PARTY SPOTLIGHT

G. O. P. Interest Centers in Two States.

With the Republicans in a bewildered state of mind as to what happened last week in the Republican direct primaries and state conventions, immediate political interest centers on what will happen this week.

Between now and Friday eighty delegates are to be elected to the Chicago convention. Indiana and California will have the spotlight. At the Indiana primaries next Tuesday a candidate must have the majority of the state's popular vote to secure the legal instructions to the thirty delegates, who, in any event, are picked, not at the primaries, but at the state convention to be held on May 12. If no presidential aspirant secures a majority at Tuesday's primaries the matter of instructions goes to the state convention. Or it may send an uninstructed delegation to Chicago—which is what the state's leading politicians desire.

In Indiana, Harding, Wood, Johnson, and Lowden are active contenders.

Interest in California.

Not less in popular interest is the primary in California that is to be staged on the same day as Indiana's test. California ostensibly furnishes a showdown between Senator Hiram Johnson and Herbert Hoover. They are the only two contenders and no one else figures. Each has a slate of twenty-six candidates for delegates to the Chicago convention, and the entire state votes on all of the twenty-six. In the event of a close finish between Hoover and Johnson there is the chance that the delegation would be split. The Hoover candidates include thirteen men and thirteen women. Johnson has eight women candidates out of the twenty-six.

The reports from the state are without satisfactory basis for pre-primary claims. Johnson managers claim to have a sweep-up on the way. Conservative Hoover men say that a one-third Hoover vote against the Johnson organization will be a substantial victory for Hoover, and they propose to make the fight for support of the uninstructed delegates from various states to the Chicago convention on the theory that such a showing of strength in California is in effect the state's indorsement.

Maryland Votes Tomorrow.

Maryland holds its direct primaries tomorrow. The law is mixed up and there has to be a state convention that elects the national delegates. Wood and Johnson are contending, however, for what is to be tomorrow's popular vote. The disposition of the responsible Republicans is to have an uninstructed delegation at Chicago.

The Utah state convention at Price tomorrow is due to send an uninstructed delegation to Chicago, controlled by Senator Smoot.

Michigan Holds Convention.

The Michigan state convention is to be held at Kalamazoo on Wednesday and is expected to carry out the popular vote and send a delegation to Chicago that will vote for Hiram Johnson on the first ballot. Most of the congressional district conventions have adopted Johnson resolutions in compliance with the popular vote of the state.

Missouri is to hold its state convention at Kansas City on Wednesday. The present indications are that there will be no instructions, but a delegation of four at large will be elected favorable to Lowden. The present status of the Missouri delegation is reported to be thirty-two for Lowden and none against.

The Colorado state convention at Pueblo on Thursday will elect twelve delegates to Chicago. The indications now are that there will be no instructions.

STATUS OF REPUBLICAN DELEGATES

THE following table shows the standing of the leading Republican candidates for the presidency in instructed delegates. In addition to those listed in the table Senator Poindexter of Washington has fourteen instructed delegates from his state, and Judge Pritchard of North Carolina seventeen of his state's twenty-two delegates:

Gov. Cox of Ohio Leads Among Kentucky Counties

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Returns from 73 of the 120 counties of Kentucky in which Democratic mass conventions were held today to elect delegates to the state convention to be held here May 4 showed forty-one counties had instructed their delegations for Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio for the Democratic presidential nomination. Thirty-two counties voted to send uninstructed delegates.

ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION 1920 ISSUE, SAY DRYS

Can't Repeal the Law, Leader Declares.

"The coming national political campaign will center around the issue of law and order so far as prohibition is concerned," says Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, in a statement made public yesterday.

"The eighteenth amendment will not be repealed because it will take two-thirds of congress even to submit the question. Such a reaction is very improbable.

"Furthermore, the amendment cannot be repealed because the wets would have to secure control of both branches of the legislature in thirty-six states. No one cognizant of the power of the Anti-Saloon league is optimistic enough from a wet standpoint to believe this can be done.

Law and Order the Issue.

"The question therefore is one of law and order. Candidates for the presidency, congress, and state legislatures will have to face the issue—'How shall the eighteenth amendment be enforced?'

"Experience in at least thirty-four states shows that the minimum standard for effective and capable law enforcement must be one-half of 1 per cent and fixed in the federal prohibition code. Every candidate for president or congress who stands for a more liberal standard than found in the Volstead act is in effect taking a stand against effective enforcement of the amendment.

No Candidate Yet.

"The Anti-Saloon league has not picked out any candidate for president to support. It first opposes those candidates who stand for a beer and wine amendment to the enforcement law. By the time the conventions meet the league will doubtless have some plan for using its forces effectively for a law and order candidate."

ILLINOIS TOWNS ARE JARRED BY AN EARTHQUAKE

Mount Vernon, Ill., May 1.—Mount Vernon and the surrounding country were rocked twice this morning by an earthquake or explosion. The first shock, lasting about a quarter of a minute, was felt at 9:01 a. m. and the second about 9:15 a. m.

Recorded by Seismograph.

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—An earthquake shock was felt in St. Louis this morning. Experts at Washington university stated the seismograph there recorded the shock as 200 miles from St. Louis.

Two shocks were recorded, one about 9:01 a. m. and the other at 9:16. The second lasted about thirty seconds. Buildings trembled violently in some parts of the city.

Washington university scientists believed the quake occurred either southeast or southwest of St. Louis.

GOVERNOR OF S. C. IS JEALOUS OF STATE RIGHTS

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Repeal of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution, and "others enacted since which encroach upon the rights of states," was advocated tonight by Gov. Cooper of South Carolina in an address before the annual dinner of the Palmetto State society.

"I do not approve of any further surrender of state sovereignty to the federal government," Gov. Cooper declared. "I am convinced after a few more years of experiments and disasters we will go back to the government established by the constitution."

"Extension of special privileges to either capital or labor," Gov. Cooper asserted, "is to forfeit the confidence of capital or labor in the integrity of the government."

"Both capital and labor know that in doing so, those in authority have some ulterior purpose," he added.

We Say to You
As We Say to All—

LET tone decide which phonograph you buy. Listen to different instruments, ask to have different records played. Compare The Brunswick with other phonographs.

Insist on a phonograph which plays ALL records, such as The Brunswick. Be not content with a phonograph designed for but one make of records.

The Brunswick plays ALL records, whatever make. And plays them exactly as they should be played, with the proper diaphragm, needle, etc. And our all-wood Tone Amplifier gives them greater richness.

The new Brunswick Method of Reproduction is the most advanced and finest way of playing yet devised. All old standards are now discarded.

We will be glad to prove to you that The Brunswick is the one phonograph you want. And to offer the same way of proving that Brunswick Records bring new standards. We abide by your decision.

WOOD-JOHNSON IN FINISH FIGHT FOR INDIANA VOTE

Desperate Race to Win Important Primary.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 1.—[Special.]—Hiram Johnson and his Indiana managers are making a desperate attempt to convert what seems to them to be a big plurality at next Tuesday's presidential primaries into an actual majority. Only by a majority, they now are willing to admit, can Johnson be sure of getting any Indiana votes at the Coliseum.

The Wood leaders do not concede that Johnson will have the edge on Tuesday. They say Gen. Wood without doubt will secure a plurality, and they have not abandoned hope of getting a majority—which assures the candidate obtaining it the thirty votes from Indiana until he personally releases them.

There is a movement in certain quarters to support Wood in order to prevent Johnson from securing even a plurality. It is too obvious to leave Gov. Lowden as his leaders much hope that the Illinois governor can win the state. Last minute appeals, made today in Indianapolis will transfer many votes from Lowden to Wood for the sole purpose of making trouble for the Californian. As between Johnson and Wood, the Indiana Republicans on the inside of things would prefer that Wood should have a majority vote if somebody has to have such a majority.

Hope for Free Delegation.

What they really hope is that no candidate gets anything that resembles a majority and that the delegation will be selected at the state convention by the usual Indiana convention method. Then the state's thirty delegates will be free of obligations caused by primary instructions.

The Lowden managers are in doubt as to what effect the position of the Anti-Saloon league, as announced in this morning's papers, will have. Up to this point the wet and dry issue has been kept carefully out of the campaign. In some parts of the state the dry indorsement tends to boost Lowden stock. In others, notably in Gary and other parts of Lake county and in sections of Indianapolis, the indications are that the announcement helps Johnson. It appears all of the candidates wish the news concerning the league had been kept quiet until after the primaries.

Harding Camp Gloomy.

Senator Harding arrived in Indianapolis this morning. He expects to have an easy lead in some sections of the state, notably in the counties that border Ohio, but in other parts he freely admits that he doesn't expect to be one-two. The attitude at the Harding headquarters seems to be rather pessimistic, generally speaking.

Wood, Johnson and Harding were in Indianapolis tonight. Gov. Lowden was in the steel mills section of Lake county. Johnson addressed a huge meeting tonight in one part of town, while Senator Harding spoke before a great crowd under the auspices of the Marion club. Gen. Wood arrived late, having made seventy speeches in the week, and with eleven more to make before the polls on Tuesday.

The utmost bitterness has developed between the Johnson and Wood contingents. The fact that Johnson has forced a recount of the New Jersey votes has been particularly displeasing to the Wood managers. Both Wood and Johnson have carried on a highly organized campaign, with much publicity and batteries of speakers all over the state.

Lowden "Heir Apparent."

The Lowden policy has been to keep away from the Wood-Johnson feud, and there has been little Lowden publicity. The conduct of the fight for Lowden has been such, the politicians agree, as to make the Illinois governor the residuary legatee of the state's vote, and, regardless of the actual figures Tuesday, the impression seems to be substantial that Lowden will finish the campaign with the best chance of getting the Indiana delegates when he needs them next June.

The Democrats have no candidate entered for the presidential preference vote and the Indiana delegation will go to San Francisco without instructions. It will be led by Thomas Taggart, who is to be the party's candidate for United States senator against Senator Watson.

LOWDEN WINDS UP CAMPAIGN.

Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois wound up his campaign for the Indiana presidential primary yesterday by making an extended tour of the Calumet region cities. Former Gov. Deneen was a member of the Lowden party.

They Watch—and Like—Our Smoke

Four Chinese Merchants, Touring World, Marvel at Chicago's Factory Stacks and Declare Them an Index to Its Greatness.

The smoking factory stack, which has jarred Father Dearborn's sensibilities these many years, has at last found an enthusiastic booster in S. C. Young, a Canton banker, who is heading a commission of four Chinese merchants on a tour of the United States. This is Mr. Young's first trip to America. Although educated in China, he speaks English fluently.

"The most wonderful things in this country, it seems to me, are your smoking chimneys," he said. "Everywhere I go I see smoke pouring from factories. Everybody is working, making something, producing. Smoke is the index of your productive energy."

Accompanying him are J. T. Wong, C. P. Chan, and S. Lau, managers of departments of the Asiatic Trading company of Hongkong. They are studying American industries and making large purchases of machinery, especially that used in the manufacture of textiles. They also are establishing American agencies to handle Chinese raw silk, leaf tobacco, tea, oils, rice, and rattan.

"We look to America as our friend," continued Mr. Young. "When we wish to buy we look to America first. On the other hand, we produce the raw materials you need. We get most of our automobiles from you. As yet not even Japan has been able to manufacture automobiles.

"Chicago is the most wonderful city we have yet visited."

The visitors, who are being guided on their tour by representatives of Pacific Ports, a publication printed by Frank Waterhouse & Co., will visit Washington and New York before sailing for England, France, and Italy.

HAYS, PENROSE, CONFER ON ENTRY OF DARK HORSE

'Touting' of Knox Stirs Up Party Tipsters.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—[Special.]—Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, was here today for a conference with United States Senator Boies Penrose. Unusual significance was attached to the conference, due to the statement late yesterday by Penrose that he believed his colleague, Senator Philander C. Knox, was the logical man for the Republican presidential nomination.

Penrose was quoted in an interview as saying he believed "Senator Knox is the best equipped, all around international statesman to meet the requirements of the present situation, who is available in public life."

Knox Johnson's Friend.

"The well known friendship between him and Senator Johnson has aided in turning attention to Senator Knox's availability," Gov. Sproul said. "It seems to me that Senator Johnson's strength as shown in the primaries of several states which have voted recently would indicate that his support will be a powerful factor in the convention.

"Close observers think much of the unexpected strength by Senator Johnson is due to his stand on the league of nations. Senator Knox represents the same point of view, and I agree with Senator Penrose that he probably is the best equipped international statesman and ranks with Senator Lodge in his position in the senate."

A number of prominent Republicans appear to favor a ticket headed by Senator Knox with Senator Johnson as vice president.

"Penrose's Voice Old Guard's."

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Political circles were agog today over Senator Penrose's announcement that he will support his colleague, Senator Philander C. Knox, for the Republican presidential nomination.

Penrose's voice still is regarded as the expression of the old guard and an indication of his preference has been eagerly awaited in political quarters for months. He was reported as inclined to support Senator Harding. Since Harding's failure to show popular support it has been whispered that the old guard would swing to Gov. Lowden.

Some political seers believe Penrose's announcement puts Harding out of the running and means that the old guard will not take the Illinois governor unless it must.

Early Texas Returns Say State Backs the President

Dallas, Tex., May 1.—Scattering returns from approximately 400 precincts out of more than 3,000 in Texas at 9 o'clock tonight indicated an indorsement of the Wilson administration by a ratio of 6 to 1 in rural and town districts as a result of precinct conventions held in this state today.

SEDITION BILL AUTHOR WANTS POST RELIEVED

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Additional testimony to support the charge that Assistant Secretary Louis F. Post has made wholesale releases of dangerous aliens scheduled for deportation was supplied the house rules committee today by Representative Davey of Ohio, Democrat. Inasmuch as Mr. Davey introduced the sedition bill, backed by the department of justice, his statements were regarded as reflecting the viewpoint of Attorney General Palmer.

Since Nov. 1, Mr. Davey declared, Assistant Secretary Post has ordered the release outright and canceled warrants in approximately 1,500 cases where arrests had been made by the department of justice, and deportation had been approved by both the commissioner of immigration and the inspector of immigration.

Mr. Davey said that nearly all remaining aliens caught in the department of justice net had been released with or without bond by Mr. Post.

"Tom Miliouskas, an alien member of the Communist party arrested, was released by Mr. Post the first of this week," said Representative Davey, "and within three days he was distributing circulars in Milwaukee urging a general May day strike, praising the soviet government."

"Charles Recht of New York, an attorney, is the 'go-between' for members of the Communist party and Mr. Post," Mr. Davey said. "Is it any wonder that when men like Assistant Secretary Post are permitted to turn back this human scum on the American people after making it impossible for honest, courageous officials to do their duty, there is imminent danger of May day trouble?

"The government should be rid of him right quick. Don't leave him where he can serve the alien enemies of our country."

PREDATORY INTERESTS IN MEXICO.

Opponents of intervention in Mexico base their objections partly on the theory of "self-determination," partly on the theory that practically intervention means the exploitation of Mexico by "predatory interests."

"Predatory interests"—it is a telling phrase, but what does it mean as applied to Mexico?

Without these so-called "predatory interests," that is, the enterprises initiated and supported by foreign capital, Mexico would be altogether, as she is still in part, an almost medieval state. Where these "predatory interests" are not at work south of the Rio Grande, Mexico is in the sixteenth century.

But the great mass of her people have not reached within centuries of even that stage of civilization. Four hundred years after the coming of the Spaniard, one hundred years after winning independence from Spain, the ten millions or more of pure Indians who make up the mass of the Mexican people are still illiterate aborigines, living as serfs, though nominally free, bound to the soil in which they labored. This soil belonged to their masters, great landholders, living like barons on their rustic estates, and maintaining, in spite of the pretense of a republic, the standards of feudal times.

In this world there was generally peace in outlying regions, though wars were waged and dictators rose and fell year by year at the capital. But there was no freedom, no progress for the people.

With the long rule of Porfirio Diaz came a change. But what brought the change? Those sinister forces which the American anti-interventionist calls "the predatory interests."

These predatory interests brought the railroad, the tramcar, the electric light and telephone, the manufactory, the oil wells, and, best of all, some beginnings of modern sanitation.

It is the predatory interests that have opened the doors to modern life for the Mexican people, and they alone. It is the predatory interests that built the railroads. It is the Mexican who has torn them up. It is the predatory interests that have sent the trainloads of products to Mexico over the railroads and brought back the goods that modern life needs. It is the Mexican who has ditched them. It is the predatory interests that have tunneled the mountains, chained the rivers, sunk the oil wells, developed the mines, lit the dark streets, and taught some at least of the cities to put their open sewers under ground. It is the Mexican who has gone back to the open with about the only modern tool he respects, the rifle, and made government by guerrilla warfare.

There are predatory interests in Mexico and the anti-interventionist is their most valuable ally. They are the Mexican politicians and military adventurers, backed by a small educated class which has always put partisanism and privilege above progress and patriotism. These are the "powers that prey" in Mexico. But the anti-interventionists put halos on their heads and hold them up as patriots fighting for independence and democracy.

It is a typical paradox of Wilsonian foreign policy that, while expressing concern "for the 85 per cent of the Mexican people who have never had a look-in on government," we have delivered them over to the very forces which for centuries have kept the door of progress and self-government locked in their face.

That is the natural result of cherishing a theory and keeping your eyes shut to facts. The Bryan-Wilson policy has not been a beneficence to Mexico and its 85 per cent, but a curse. Humanitarianism with its eyes bandaged works more injury than intelligent selfishness.

But THE TRIBUNE'S contention for intervention is not founded on a vague "humanitarianism," although we know that it will bring results in Mexico and the world beneficial to humanity. It is based on the peace and progress of the American people which demand peace and progress in Mexico.

MAKE CAPITAL PRODUCE.

There are now before the ways and means committee of the house of representatives several proposals for alteration of the income and excess profits tax laws. The secretary of the treasury admits that after the floating debt is retired—"probably in 1922"—such changes in taxation laws will be advisable.

The proposed changes include a recommendation that the surtaxes upon personal incomes be reduced on such portions of those incomes as are reinvested immediately in productive business. We believe such an arrangement will do much toward increasing productivity by improvement and expansion of facilities. If the plan is of value in dealing with personal incomes it should be equally valuable in taxation of corporation incomes.

Opposition to reduction of surtaxes no doubt will be widespread. The first thought is likely to be that no man is entitled to an income of $1,000,000 a year; that if he has such an income the government should seize a goodly part of it. Deeper thought will show that if a man with an income of $1,000,000 a year puts $975,000 of it into a new plant with modern machinery, the public will share in his profits through the increased productivity of the new plant. The advantage to consumers will be at least as great and probably greater than if the government took over a large fraction of the money and used it for pork and politics.

Under the present laws and in the present condition of the investment market, large industrial and utility concerns cannot finance essential improvements. If the income and excess profits tax laws are so amended as to allow a practical decrease in taxes on incomes reinvested in productive business it will go far toward stimulating production. In such cases, not only will the income itself be reinvested for improvement but the increased stability of business will strengthen the market for securities to aid such improvement.

Incomes which are used entirely for the personal or family consumption of the recipient, on the other hand, are contributing in no direct way to the benefit of the mass of consumers, and may well be taxed without reduction.

Capital must furnish the tools and labor must use them. Poor tools as well as inefficient or unwilling labor retard production. Good tools help materially in increasing production and improving the product. The suggested revision of the tax laws will go far toward solving the problem of obtaining better tools.

WOLF! WOLF!

The Red Terror seems to have been sidetracked again. Bolshevism did not move into the White House on May day. The bombs fizzled and the Red guards rested on their arms, if they have any. But Col. Charles Burpee of the gallant 1st Connecticut state guard regiment called out his command. General (Attorney) Palmer's men were sleeplessly at their posts. Gov. Coolidge issued a declaration that threats against his life were not important, but that the law would be enforced at all costs. If there was anything lacking it was a raid by our state's attorney's office.

In short, May day arrived, but not the revolution. May day passed, but not the republic.

Somehow we are reminded of the antique fable of the boy who cried "Wolf!" The actual effect of these alarms and excursions is to give irresponsible and doctrinaire radicalism in this country an importance that doesn't belong to it. It is to dignify a small and impractical minority by official fears and thus add to its prestige among the ignorant. No revolutionary clique is strong enough to make such a fuss over. Why help it to recruits by acting as if it were able to overturn anything more than a lamp post or a billboard?

The problem of protecting prominent men from assassination by fanatics is a police matter which is not helped by sensational publicity. On the contrary, the moron and the unbalanced are inflamed by it.

Both the psychology of the individual and of the crowd are susceptible to the disturbing suggestions of constant alarmist talk about revolution and revolutionists. Radicalism is advertised by it, and advertising pays. Weak mentalities are tempted by it. But the American people have not lost their common sense or their love of their own constitution. We realize that there is an election coming, but we should prefer aspirants would take a better way of making the first page.

BRINGING THE FARM TO THE CITY.

Railroad insufficiency, congestion, and labor troubles are opening up interesting new possibilities for city and suburban dwellers. The situation seems to promise a reorganization in the relations of urban and rural life, based upon the needs of both, and eventually redounding to the advantage of both.

The fact that the railroads are not equal to the present task of transportation of all commodities has been demonstrated more and more convincingly for several years. The delay of railroad service is particularly serious near large terminals. An indication of the extent of this terminal delay is contained in the statement of G. W. Mooney, secretary-treasurer of the Seaboard Steel and Manganese company of New York, that "when a car of freight starts from Chicago to New York City it has, in point of time and cost, accomplished just half of its journey when it reaches Trenton, N. J."

That statement was made before the switchmen's strike. It is the normal condition. Present terminal difficulties serve only to increase and emphasize it. It is evident that the situation is one of great expense and waste, and will have to be corrected. The railroads cannot correct it, even in normal times. But good trucks and good roads to run them on can and will help to correct it.

The Cook county agricultural district, we are told, is one of the most productive for its area in the world. It grew up around the city because the truck farmers originally were able to bring their produce into market by wagon, reducing expense, eliminating middlemen, and providing better commodities to the consumer. The expansion of the city has pushed them further and further away from the central market. Land values have increased, transportation costs have increased, and the middleman is made necessary, adding to prices.

But in general the same possibilities prevail. The city market is larger than ever, and beyond the ring of truck farms are other farms equally adaptable to the same purpose. The railroad situation is forcing frequent recourse to trucks for short hauls. Use of trucks will emphasize the necessity for good roads. The good roads in turn will mean more trucks and more direct access from the farm to the city market. Eggs, chickens, butter, milk, fruit, and vegetables can be delivered quickly and cheaply. Waste of delay, rehandling, and commissions can be eliminated.

The farmer will have access to the city not only for his produce but for himself, family, and employés. It broadens the scope of rural life and is likely to put it on a basis where there will be less difficulty in holding labor on the farm. It will mean close direct contact between country and city dweller with better mutual understanding of their problems. It will mean cheaper and better food in the city.

But in the last analysis it depends upon the development of a wide system of good roads. Such roads will solve many of our most perplexing problems.

Editorial of the Day

A "FLUID" PARTY.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

Mrs. George Bass, head of the women's division of the Democratic party, is of the opinion that the women of America will largely turn to that party and cast their fortunes with that unterrified organization.

Mrs. Bass' reason for the faith that is in her is that the Democratic party will be "more fluid" than the Republican party, and hence, will attract the voters who will not be likely to be bound by party lines, but who "will want to know what the candidates are going to do, how they are going to do it, and why."

This is an interesting, if not entirely lucid theory. Just why the fluidity of a party should facilitate illuminating discoveries as to what candidates are going to do, how they are going to do it, and why, is not apparent to the male observer who has been looking on at the game for a good many years and whose experience has been that the most difficult thing in the world, except one, is to find out what the candidate is going to do, how he is going to do, and why. The most difficult thing is to find out why the candidate didn't do any of the things he said he would.

THERE has been a good deal in the newspapers of late about "modern Bluebeards." Now, as everybody knows who has read "Les Sept Femmes de la Barbe-Bleue," that unfortunate gentleman was, like Macbeth, a victim of groundless gossip. Wednesday the public library received two hundred and fifty books from Mrs. Thos. Alexander. Some of the volumes are fiction and some contain instructive reading matter.

IT is not likely that the amateur brewer and distiller will be disturbed by Old Father Antic, because, as Burke said, "I know of no method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people." Besides, the drawing up of such an indictment would cost a larger sum than the national debt.

Impressionistic.

Sir: Kansas from the Santa Fé: Bleak, brown prairies criss-crossed with leafless windbreaks; in the middle distance a flivver throbbing its heart out through a hub-deep, mud road; maudlin windmills, neglected, winter-bleached farm tools, faded frame dwellings with the ubiquitous Monday wash of unlovely rural lingerie; a tin-plated grain elevator, nondescript hens with ruffled feathers scratching beneath a side-tracked grain car; a squat red "deepo" with its windswept platform, a hump-backed baggage truck laden with dented milk cans; the local expressman, cap pulled down to his ears, hands deep in mackinaw pockets; two hurrying girls, heads bound in fascinators and thin skirts flapping about their legs; shivering, red-nosed station loungers eyeing Limited passengers with self-conscious curiosity—then the Mexican section hands, and out on to the bleak, brown prairies again. Quite an eyeful when "Whistling Rufus," crack engineer, whisks us along at seventy miles per.

The Days of Real Sport.

Sir: P. T. Barnum's maxim, that one was born every minute, was passed as a heritage to certain grafting circuses, which, up to a couple of decades ago, traversed the country, employing methods rather raw. The question of paying salaries never gave much concern to some of the owners of the smaller railroad shows. Unless a member of the outfit was a skilled performer or otherwise valuable, when the demands for pay became too insistent the employé was "red lighted," which, in circus parlance, was being made to "hit the grit" from the moving train when making the night jump. I recall one show in Texas. Workmen were hired for $5 a week and "cakes." After several weeks without remuneration they would be red lighted, sans salary and sans anything else of value to which some of the "willing workers" might take a fancy. This organization carried a "fixer," or legal adjuster, who was a past master in evading the law. The Wisconsin Giant, a member of the side show, having a little matter of two months' salary due, and being sophisticated, applied to a justice of the peace, who issued an attachment for one of the cars. Part of the equipment was several horsecars leased from a private company. Transferring the horses, they pulled the train out that night, leaving for the local sheriff an empty car that did not belong to them. One of the candy butchers used to call out, thus: "Candy, six sticks for a quarter," and, upon receipt of this amount, handed out one stick. When the native remonstrated he was told: "I said thick sticks for a quarter. You must be deaf. Better get an ear trumpet."

The Last Word in Hobbies.

[Ad of a Lima, O., mortician.]

My profession is my hobby. We are told that every man should have a hobby, something interesting and constructive aside from his pursuit of the almighty dollar. Some find this relaxation in sports, some in music, and others in art, but only a few are able to turn to the more ethical phases of their own professions. Through all the years I have been engaged in mortuary service my work has proved a never-failing source of mental and spiritual stimulus. I confess that it is the one absorbing interest in my life. It has been my privilege to see the dread and sorrow associated with my profession, softened by many innovations which have become a part of modern mortuary service. To my assistance have been called music and art, and these have been established in a beautiful home, whose rooms are bedecked with flowers, the windows cheerfully agleam with light when the dusk comes.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

Dr. Evans' advice on "How to Keep Well" appears daily on the editorial page of The Daily Tribune.

REAPING "WILD OATS."

THE Bible tells us the sins of the parents are visited on the children "even unto the third and fourth generation."

There are many ways in which this divine law might manifest itself. An outraged community might visit its condemnation of a parent on the children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren by ostracizing them. A man of evil life might ruin his children and his children's children by association and bad social influence.

Prof. Adams of McGill university demonstrated that syphilis might be inherited to the second generation. Since the inheritance of syphilis is more clearly established than is that of any other disease, he suggested that the Biblical utterance applied to that disease. But while inheritance of manifest syphilis beyond the second generation is possible, it is improbable.

Fortunately, the stock tends to clear itself. The probability that a person infected with syphilis will not transmit the disease to his offspring is very strong. The chances are very strong that an adult with congenital syphilis will suffer only mildly from the disease and will not transmit it to his offspring. The chance that the disease will be conveyed to the fourth generation is very slight.

Recently I heard Dr. H. H. Goddard of the Ohio department of juvenile research offer some suggestions as to lines in which the effects of syphilis, if not syphilis itself, carry over into the third and fourth generation.

In their investigation of subnormal children they make routine Wasserman tests and examinations of the body for signs of congenital syphilis. They think they have discovered that a certain type of conduct is found in persons with congenital syphilis with such frequency that they think there is cause and effect.

The subnormals who are sent to them because of certain types of delinquency show positive Wassermans or other signs practically always. So closely are these types of delinquency tied up in their minds with congenital syphilis that they have made a diagnosis of congenital syphilis on behavior alone, and when they have had an opportunity to question the physician who attended when the baby was born have heard that the father was syphilitic and the baby was broken out when born and had been given active treatment.

Don't write me to know what this line of delinquency is, for I do not know. Furthermore, do not write to Dr. Goddard, because he is not ready to put it out finally. It is enough to know that trained investigators working with a great many mentally and socially abnormal people feel certain they have discovered something and are working on it further.

But, the objectors say, this only carries the visitation to the second generation. Do social and anti-social people marry? I should say they do! Do they have children? Lots of them. Are the children of the criminal classes likely to inherit the criminal traits of their parents? Yes. If the traits are not definitely criminal, only anti-social to a moderate degree—border line cases—are such traits inheritable? They are.

ANOTHER REMEDY FOR IVY.

C. H. R. writes: "For many years I have been very susceptible to poisoning by the ivy, and as I make a trip to the sand dunes of Indiana almost every Sunday—winter and summer—and walk from six to fifteen miles in the woods and marshes, I have been poisoned many times.

"In the tamarack swamp of that region there are acres of the ivy, knee high and matted, as well as much of it on the sand hills. I frequently get an infection.

"About two years ago on my return from the dunes I had a hot bath and went to bed. In the night I was awakened by an intolerable itching and found both wrists red with the characteristic watery pimples in rows. I could find nothing in my room to ease the itching, and as an experiment I used a 'styptic stick'—the small stick of alum sold by druggists to be used to stop the blood from a gash in shaving. I wet this and rubbed it over the pimples, the reddened skin, and for some distance around, went to bed and slept soundly. I kept the 'styptic' in my pocket and applied it frequently for a couple of days. It always stops the itching at once. The pimples cease to spread. I keep on applying it to the raw blisters and they soon dry up.

"This may not be effective with others, but it is entirely successful with me."

VEGETABLE DIET IS BEST.

G. writes: "1. If salt is harmful in cases of high blood pressure, how about sodium phosphate, Epsom or Rochelle salts?

"2. Are coffee and tea harmful?

"3. What are the best remedies for high blood pressure with nerve exhaustion, accompanied by giddiness?"

REPLY.

1. The continued use of any one of these is harmful beyond question.
2. Yes.
3. The treatment of high blood pressure is essentially dietetic. The nearer one comes to living exclusively on vegetables, fruits, cereals, and breads the better off he will be. The bowels should be regular. Bran bread, vegetables, and fruits should accomplish. The food should not be heavily salted.

PROBABLY A TUMOR.

E. S. L. writes: "I have a lump in the lower left side of my abdomen, which I first discovered last summer. It does not pain me any unless I press firmly on it and I cannot feel it when standing. When lying on my back I can feel it quite plainly and it seems to be about the size of a hen's egg. What can it be? What should be done about it? I am 38 and unmarried."

REPLY.

You have a tumor, probably of the ovary or uterus. Have an examination. Operation is the only cure if there need be a cure.

TO GO TO SEA.

Maywood, Ill., April 26.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—In what way are the merchant marine and the United States shipping board connected or are they both one and the same branch. Where can I see about enlistments in the merchant marine? I served in the army for twenty-two months. Will this help me any? Do they still have the merchant marine schools?
EX-SOLDIER.

The merchant marine includes all vessels shipping under the United States flag, whether owned by private concerns or not.

The United States shipping board controls only the ships owned by the government. The merchant marine is accepting enrollments. The schools are still in operation, as the men require a certain period of training before being placed on ships. Apply for full information and enrollment to the recruiting office of the merchant marine, 116 North Dearborn street, Chicago.

INSURANCE FOR THIRTY-ONE.

Maywood, Ill., April 27.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I am inquiring for my nephew about how much he will have to pay to keep up his insurance. He only carried $5,000 because he had another insurance before entering the army. He won't have to carry all that, will he? How much will it be for the different kinds of policies he can carry now after he changes it into an old line policy? He is 31 years old and I don't know how soon he will be 32. What determines the age at which he will have to pay.
A. H. M.

He may reduce his insurance to as low as $1,000.

As he probably will wish to carry only part of this $5,000 policy, the monthly rates given below are on each $1,000 of insurance at the age of 31:

Ordinary life, $1.51; thirty payment life, $1.73; twenty payment life, $2.14; twenty year endowment, $3.37; thirty year endowment, $2.16; endowment maturing at the age of 62, $2.09.

Premiums are paid according to rates at nearest attained age of the insured. The rates at 32 years are: Ordinary life, $1.55; thirty payment life, $1.77; twenty payment life, $2.19; twenty year endowment, $3.38; thirty year endowment, $2.18; endowment maturing at the age of 62, $2.18.

"TIN HORN" WAR.

Chicago, April 27.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—You seem to have an unlimited source of information so I am coming to you to settle an argument for me. You may do so by answering this question. Which war or uprising is called the "tin horn" war? It is credited to the United States.
M. H. E.

The "tin horn" war is the name often given to the war on the Mexican border from 1891 to 1893.

WISHES ENLISTMENT.

Chicago, April 28.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I was in the army from the beginning of the war although they were reluctant at first to accept me on account of very poor eye sight. I was honorably discharged and my eye test is 20-200. I have been wearing good glasses which corrects the defect to normal. Do you think I could get into the army again with such defective eyes? My vision positively does not seem subnormal when I have my glasses on. Where can I find out about this?
G. E.

Authorities at the local army recruiting office say that you probably would be eligible, but to call there in person. The office is at 526 South State street.

MICHIGAN AVENUE THROUGH SIXTY-THIRD STREET.

Chicago, April 18.—[To the Friend of the People.]—What are the prospects of Michigan avenue being cut through between Sixty-third street and Sixty-fourth? Having this street continuous would greatly enhance the beauty of the surrounding property and increase the use of this street.

STREETS VACATED.

Chicago, April 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me by what authority the following described streets have been vacated by the city, and fenced in by whom, and what did the city get for them, if anything? Hirsch street, between Kilpatrick (Forty-seventh avenue) and Cicero avenue (Forty-eighth avenue), Kilpatrick north to alley from Hirsch street, Keating, north to alley from Hirsch street.
E. N.

I return herewith communication inquiring about the vacation of Hirsch street, between Kilpatrick and Cicero avenues, and certain portions of Kilpatrick and Keating avenues adjoining same.

The portions of the streets referred to were vacated by an ordinance passed by the city council March 20, 1919, page 1866 C. P. The ordinance provided for the payment of $7,682.40 to the city, which amount has been paid.

A LEASE! TOO LATE.

Chicago, April 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—On May 1, 1915, I signed a lease for two years. After the second year expired I continued living for the same amount of rent, but did not sign another lease. The building was sold to a new owner and I continued for the same amount of rent for two more years.

On April 1 of this year I received notice of a raise in rent to begin May 1, 1920, which I intend to pay. Have I still a lease on my flat after May 1, 1920, and can he raise my rent again before May 1, 1921?

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONFLICTING ANSWERS AS TO CHANGE OF NAME.

Chicago, April 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About a year ago, relying on your advice, I changed my name without court proceedings. This morning I note in the "Public Service" department of one of the other Chicago papers that a person who had become a citizen by the naturalization of his father asks whether he can change his foreign sounding name without court proceedings and whether it will affect his citizenship. The answer given is:

1. A change of name to be legal must be done by petition and through a court in a way provided by statue.
2. If it is done as provided by statute it will not affect the citizenship of the person taking the steps.

This conflicts with the advice repeatedly given in your department. Which is right?
X. Y. Z.

The General rule, as stated in 29 Cyc. 371, is: "It is a custom for persons to bear the surnames of their parents, but it is not obligatory. A man may lawfully change his name without resort to legal proceedings, and for all purposes the name thus assumed will constitute his legal name just as much as if he had borne it from birth." For an extreme case, see 240 Ill. 454.

Sec. 4 (b) of the Trading with the Enemy act of Oct. 6, 1917, imposed certain restrictions on enemies or allies of enemies changing their names, but we know of no other important limitations on the rule as above stated.

Court proceedings have certain advantages in making the change a matter of public record so that it is easy to prove that the two names describe the same person, but the proceedings are not necessary to make the change legally effective.

WHAT MILDRED GETS FOR DEFENDING HER SEX.

Michigan City, Ind., April 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—While pondering over the several articles relative to the sense and humor of the feminine sex, it seems to me that the professor and the so-called party by the name of Mildred Hein would do well to use a little more discretion as to expressing their fanatic opinions. I happen to be one of the washwomen whom Hein refers to. Though a new hat or a new dress always brings joy, we should be thankful that we still possess that faculty of enjoying the little blessings that come to us. And I also wish to inform those rabid writers that we are also capable of handling the more serious problems of the day.
MRS. CHARLES SWANSON.

MISSING ONE POINT, BUT HITTING ANOTHER.

Chicago, April 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There seems to be quite an argument about some professor of the humane kind perhaps, but what I wish to discuss is Mildred Hein's view of the maid, cook, and laundress. She seems to think the maids, or under dogs in the home, have no sense of humor. But believe me, if they didn't have a trifle of it in their systems they'd sure be in Dunning asylum.

Will there ever be any woman who don't see a joke once in a while, a great many twice in a while? If they didn't take a joke a great many would never marry.

"A GOOD LESSON" FOR RUSSIA.

Chicago, April 28.—[Editor of the Tribune.]—Russia is now in much the same position as the man who, when he was going to be hanged, said: "This will be a good lesson for me." The way her former friends and allies are treating Russia now is certainly "a good lesson" for her; the question only is whether she is going to live long enough to benefit by the experience. We read in the papers that England is going to take, among other things, the Caspian oil fields—the richest in the world—away from Russia. Why, and by what right, no one but an Englishman could explain.

Russia's downfall should be a terrible example to any great nation which, instead of minding its own business, and instead of trying to make its own people happy and contented, listens to the honeyed words of false friends, and permits itself to be lured into hopeless foreign alliances where there is very little to gain, but a whole lot to lose.

For one thing, Russia had no business to ally itself with England. As an enemy of England she would have had a chance, but as a friend? none.

Look what Russia is getting for all her sacrifices. She is getting the rawest deal since Cain. The unfortunate nation is gradually being deprived of all its possessions and outlets; in fact, it is being strangled to death by the perpetual blockade. Lucky is Germany, and even Turkey, in comparison, because they are treated with more consideration than Russia is.

ON THE NEEDS OF A PRESIDENT.

Chicago, April 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In your editorial under the caption of "Junkets," you call attention to the fact that a "first hand knowledge, even though fragmentary, will be better than ignorance, and may mean wiser laws," the urgent need of which is generally admitted by all except the provincial and tide bound reactionary element.

In this connection would it not be well to give some consideration to the qualifications of the man to be elected president of the United States in the near future, and insist without regard to our previous party affiliations, that our next president shall have a "first hand knowledge," gained in advance of his election through actual contact with people and our trade relations with the world at large?

Is it possible that we have a prospective candidate for president other than Hoover who can lay the slightest claim to having a "first hand knowledge" of the actual conditions now confronting us throughout the world at large?

WHAT MAKES THE MEXICAN WILD!

Jackson, Mich., April 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A contributor to THE TRIBUNE is advocating "searching for and exposing the truth about Mexico." Gov. Sproul of Pennsylvania said a short time ago in an address that no chapter in our entire national history is more disgraceful and humiliating than the story of our relations with Mexico during the past seven years. But if we read the history of our war with Mexico in 1846-'48 we must believe he is in error. We plundered Mexico and thus laid the basis of the implacable hatred of Mexicans for the United States which presents today the main barrier to a friendly understanding between the two countries.
H. S. HAGERUP.

THE NOBLE RED MAN IN MEXICO.

Toledo, O., April 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Many thanks for your frank, practical editorial of April 23, "After Carranza—What?"

To us Americans who know Mexico and have an abiding affection for the stalwart Indian of their many races, your words make a strong appeal. This basic blood—the Indian blood—is much better stock than the mulatto of Cuba and can be developed into an influence for great good in the world.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"This Side of Paradise" [Scribner], by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"Many Junes" [Dodd-Mead], by Archibald Marshall.
"Tatterdemalion" [Scribner], by John Galsworthy.
"[illegible]" [Macmillan], by Ben Ames Williams.
"Peter [illegible]" [Knopf], by Gilbert Frankau.
"Harvest" [Dodd-Mead], by Mrs. Humphry Ward.

NONFICTION.

"The Letters of Henry James" [Scribner].
"A Labrador Doctor" [Houghton-Mifflin], by Wilfrid T. Grenfell.
"The London Venture" [Dodd-Mead], by Michael Arlen.

"NOW IT CAN BE TOLD," so long and so breathlessly awaited as the first stalking of the goddess of truth across the stage of life, has finally arrived. Philip Gibbs—now Sir Philip Gibbs—after five years of spiritual suppressions, after daily compromises between himself and his censor, after carrying about a heavy heart under the glittering breast of an English captain's well cut uniform (with a correspondent's C instead of pips), after serving his king and his fellow men by keeping their spirits uplifted by tales of heroism and the spiritual blessings of the martial life, has finally told the truth about the war. His truth—so long heralded—is less than the truth of "Under Fire." It is "Under Fire" with fine words disguising nauseating odors, with the cruelty, the bestiality of war caught in vignettes instead of in great sweeps of passionate denunciation. Philip Gibbs is still the suave, gentle Englishman, conscious of the social amenities. His tales of what war does to the souls of men might cure the stay at homes of a madness to rush into another war, but they are literary gestures compared to the tales that have been told by men who have come back, of their passionate hatred of war. "Now It Can Be Told" should be read by every one who believes that all wars are holy wars. But it will hardly be "startling" to any who fought in the great war because they knew that this one was. The principal "shock" in the book is Mr.—I beg his pardon—Sir Philip's pictures of the hardships of the German women and girls and his plea for a more Christian spirit toward the conquered.

The Chicago public library has a list of humorous books to add to the joys of a belated spring. You can find them—the books also—in the open shelf room on the third floor.

Witter Bynner is just now either in California waiting for his sailing or lolling comfortably in a steamer chair watching the lazy roll of the much press agented pacific Pacific. He is going back to China and Japan. "The Beloved Stranger" [Knopf], you remember, is the poetic sketch book of his last visit. His new volume of poetry, "Canticles of Pan," promised for this spring, is in the old Witter Bynner manner, with Spectra forgotten. That Spectra hoax has proved a boomerang to him. Written first as a colossal joke, the Spectra were taken so seriously by the world of poets, as well as the world of critics and readers (a fine opening for B. L. T. purposely left unguarded), that Witter Bynner found himself one of the best of the vers libertines (as they used to be called). There was a third member of the Spectra hoax, "Elijah Hay." He didn't appear in the published volume, but his work, with Anne Knish and Emanuel Morgan, was much laurel wreathed. His identity has finally become known in the inclusion of his verses in "A Woman of Thirty" [Knopf], Marjorie Allen Seiffert's first volume of verse. Mrs. Seiffert has for some time been using the word batiks which are the special art of the free versifiers. Her designs have brightened many a dull number of Poetry and shone gayly in many a brilliant one. "A Woman of Thirty" belongs in the collection of every one who is specializing in the new verse.

Parentheses, flittings of the mind through every open window of thought—an unconsciously thorough pursuit of each butterfly of thought, an unintentional but wholly and inherently self-expressive rounding up of each maverick of thought—though actually the symbol of the maverick is scarcely to be credited to that source, since, in his mind, the maverick as literary icon could never have replaced Pegasus, that is, to a person of extreme literary delicacies, the thought of the maverick could never intrude itself if one were considering an equine symbol for fleeing thoughts, and on the other hand the maverick, being a creature of a civilization long discarded by him, even granted that he ever knew of its existence—well, to get down to fundamentals, it was "The Letters of Henry James" that done wrong by our Nell. Here was she, a simple country girl, schooled in the high cost of words, for years counting the expenditure of every adjective, now and then riotously indulging in a few succulent adverbs, but repenting with a broken and a contrite typewriter for every yielding to temptation. And for one Sat'd'y evening, most of a sunny Sunday, and all of a Sabbath twilight and darkness and past the midnight of faintly heard weird sounds of choking taxicabs bearing home others younger and even more frivolous, she saw, not visions, but the actual fact of all the words in the world scattered about with Olympian lavishness, ideas pursued with Bacchanalian ifenzy. Two heavy volumes of letters, with never a thought for the cost of ink or the nerves of his stenographer. "The Letters of Henry James" are Henry James—one can't say concentrated exactly, but you know what I mean. Some of them are wholly delightful letters, but all of them are wholly—and they certainly do the opposite of putting a crimp in the style of any one who tries to write about them.

One of the most definite impressions which "The Letters of Henry James" leaves upon the reader is that every letter was written with publication as its ultimate goal. Mr. James felt that letters were literary documents. He says as much in reply to Miss Norton, who had objected to his showing her letters to another friend. The letters which have been collected by Mr. Percy Lubbock were each and every one—as they used to say in the good old days of oratory—obviously written as works of epistolary art. They lack, except in rare cases, that casual catching of the moment's whim which really intimate letters always have.

On the other hand, "The Letters of Anton Chekov" [Macmillan], selected and translated by Constance Garnett, have that quality of preserving the mood of the moment without seeming trivial. They are naive, charming records of a delightful writer. The impression they leave may be due to Mrs. Garnett's excellent editing. She has included only the letters which seem to her most characteristically Chekov. The result is a volume of great charm. But even if all one thousand eight hundred and ninety of his letters, published by Chekov's family in Russian, had been included, the charming casualness of Chekov as a letter writer would have still been evident. The latest volume of his stories to be translated by Mrs. Garnett is "The Chorus Girl and Other Stories."

Robert Cortes Holliday, author of "Walking Stick Papers," "Peeps at People," and "Broome Street Straws," volumes of chatty essays, and of Booth Tarkington," the pleasantest biographical-critical book on an author who is still alive and authing, and during office hours editor of the Bookman, is in our town. He is making a pilgrimage to the various springs of literary criticism, finding out what the American peepul really think of the great American game of literature as played in New York. Mr. George Doran, who owns the Bookman and a flourishing publishing business, got an idea one day that perhaps the masses outside the gates of New York might have some helpful ideas about books and magazines and he persuaded Mr. Holliday to ask 'em himself. He will be in Chicago this week, then flit to the Pacific coast for a week or so. In the meantime he is writing a better book than anything he's done before, even better than "Walking Stick Papers."

"One Hundred Best Novels Condensed" [Harpers] is the immortal work of Edwin A. Grozier, editor of the Boston Post, together with every one in his address book. Short versions of one hundred famous novels—pemmican for the T. B. M.—in four volumes a library of the world's best plots. Incidentally the Iliad and the Odyssey are here embalmed as two of the one hundred.

The Century company, after announcing a list of spring books, says satirically: "Of course, in these days it is needless to add that publication of the above books so boldly announced is always subject to the good will, friendliness, good humor, kindliness, and spirit of coöperation of our close friends—the printers."

"Miss Lulu Bett" [Appleton] is Zona Gale's latest story of the starved life of a small town spinster—a good story, a good picture of the soul crunching life of a family dominated by a cruelly joking tyrant, with the well known Happy Ending. Zona Gale with all of her rural atmosphere atmosphering. There are those to whom Zona Gale would be a penance but to the others "Miss Lulu Bett" is a Gale rose by another name.

Charles S. Brooks, whose delightful volumes of essays, "There's Pippins and Cheese to Come" and "Chimney Pot Papers," have won for him a devoted audience, has boldly buckled on the armor of a novelist and written "Luca Sarto" [Century], a good old fashioned "historical" thriller of the time of Louis XI. and the gay and charming reprobate, Francois Villon. Mr. Brooks obviously had the time of his life writing it—and the author's joy in writing a book is the best gift of the fairies to the reader.

"The Explorer" [Doran] is a publishing experiment which I, for one, heartily disapprove of. It is an old novel by W. Somerset Maugham, whose "The Moon and Sixpence" made him one of the most talked of novelists in the literary world this year, whose "Of Human Bondage" is a driving, powerful, grim masterpiece. Coming in the backwash of their popularity, it does much more harm than good to Mr. Maugham's reputation as a novelist. It is amateurish compared with them. It has none of the power, none of the virility of the novels which followed it. It is a combination of Mr. Maugham's cleverest [illegible] repartee—between the only two convincing characters in the book—and a shadow of the grim, uncompromising characters of the real work he has done. But it is only a shadow, a hint of what he would do later. It will be "liked" much better than either "The Moon and Sixpence" or "Of Human Bondage" by the lighter minded reading public. If it were all light comedy it would be a charming justification of its own being. But—if I were a successful novelist I would let the dead past bury its dead.

George Doran brought out on the same day two other reprints of old books, "Love and Mr. Lewisham," which has long been unobtainable in America, and which H. G. Wells is said to cherish as his personal favorite, and Alec Waugh's "The Loom of Youth," which created no little stir when it appeared four years ago, the work of a boy of 17. Its vogue in America was among the few, principally because there was no American edition of it. Since then young Alec Waugh has been through the war and has written "The Prisoners of Mainz," a book which was heartily denounced for its lack of vituperation against the Germans, but praised for its seasoned point of view.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

SELF-DEPENDENCE.
By Matthew Arnold.

Weary of myself, and sick of asking
What I am, and what I ought to be,
At the vessel's prow I stand, which bears me
Forwards, forwards, o'er the starlit sea.

And a look of passionate desire
O'er the sea and to the stars I send;
"Ye, who from my childhood up have claimed me,
Calm me, ah, compose me to the end!

"Ah, once more," I cried, "ye stars, ye waters,
On my heart your mighty charm renew;
Still, still let me, as I gaze upon you,
Feel my soul becoming vast like you!"

From the intense, clear, star sown vault of heaven,
O'er the lit sea's unquiet way,
In the rustling night air came the answer—
"Wouldst thou be as these are? Live as they.

"Unaffrighted by the silence round them,
Undistracted by the sights they see,
These demand not that the things without them
Yield them love, amusement, sympathy.

"And with joy the stars perform their shining,
And the sea its long moon silver'd roll;
For self-poised they live, nor pine with noting
All the fever of some differing soul.

"Bounded by themselves, and unregardful
In what state God's other works may be,
In their own tasks all their powers pouring,
These attain the mighty life you see."

O, air born voice! long since, severely clear,
A cry like thine in mine own heart I hear—
"Resolve to be thyself; and know that he Who finds himself loses his misery!"

COURTS DELAY EVICTIONS AND TENANTS STICK

Van Company Faces Fine for High Rates.

Evictions of tenants refusing to vacate apartments due to the high rent situation and the housing shortage were postponed yesterday for several days by Dennis J. Egan, bailiff of the municipal court. He granted grace because of the shortage of moving vans. As a result, moving day proceeded with only incidental cases to mar the happiness of thousands of movers.

The real excitement will begin tomorrow or Tuesday after writs of eviction are secured from the courts, according to Maj. H. S. Standish of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league. The number of possible eviction cases has diminished considerably today because new tenants have refused to take action against old ones.

Leads to Arbitration.

"There are a number of cases where new tenants have refused to sign leases or occupied apartments where old tenants are unable to get out or who have refused to move because of the rent situation," said Maj. Standish. "This is resulting in amicable arbitration between the tenants concerned and their old landlords."

"There will be no evictions for several days," said Bailiff Egan. "So many people are moving that all the vans are in use."

Judge Wells of the Municipal court intimated yesterday he would assess a fine against Joyce Bros.' Storage and Van company of 6428 North Clark street, charged with a violation of a city ordinance fixing prices. Twenty-six other cases against other van concerns had been filed in the Municipal court up to the hour of adjournment.

The Joyce concern stands accused of exceeding the legal rate by 150 per cent when household goods were carted from the C., B. & Q. freight house at Sixteenth and Jefferson streets to 1340 Farwell avenue. The bill was $36.75, when the ordinance prescribed $14 for the time and man power employed.

Daniel Webster, chief assistant prosecuting attorney, introduced a surprise when he read to the court a secret circular issued by the Furniture, Piano Movers and Expressmen's association, of which A. H. Hollander is president, under the ordinance.

The communication set up a list of prices, effective April 7 last, and the figures are far higher than those fixed under the ordinance.

Women in Fight.

A battle between two women featured moving day operations at 2036 How estreet. As a result, Mrs. Rose Mistretta, is suffering from a number of bruises, and is mourning the loss of several handfuls of hair and the breaking of her glasses. She says she was attacked by a woman who moved into her flat before she was ready to vacate.

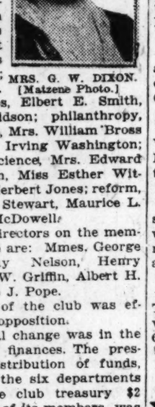
A. Frienzel of 1756 Mohawk street secured a five day notice from Judge Heap Friday for the eviction of Mrs. Nora Gerace from her apartment at 440 Sullivan street. According to Mrs. Gerace, Frienzel set her furniture on the street. Mrs. Gerace visited Judge Heap, who advised her to take out a warrant for Frienzel, charging burglary. The warrant was issued and last night Frienzel was arrested. He was released on bail.

PICK MRS. DIXON AS WOMAN'S CLUB VICE PRESIDENT

New Organization Plan Is Adopted.

At the annual all day business meeting of the Chicago Woman's club yesterday the following women were elected on the club ticket to fill offices falling vacant this year:

Mrs. George W. Dixon, first vice president; Mrs. Alfred Cogswell Tyler, recording secretary; Mrs. George R. Dean, treasurer.



MRS. G. W. DIXON. [Matzene Photo.]

The following women were elected members of the board of managers: Art and literature, Mmes. William Foster Young, George B. Carpenter, Albert R. Martin; education, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, Miss Mary Rozet Smith, and Miss Julia S. Smale; home, Mmes. Fletcher B. Gibbs, Elbert E. Smith, George M. Davidson; philanthropy, Miss Ida M. Lane, Mrs. William Bross Jensen, and Mrs. Irving Washington; philosophy and science, Mrs. Edward Hedges Thompson, Miss Esther Witkowsky, Mrs. G. Herbert Jones; reform, Mmes. Oliver W. Stewart, Maurice L. Goodkind, Irvin McDowell.

Newly elected directors on the membership committee are: Mmes. George Watkins, Murray Nelson, Henry Gerstley, George W. Griffin, Albert H. Roler, and George J. Pope.

Reorganization of the club was effected with little opposition.

The most radical change was in the administration of finances. The present system of distribution of funds, whereby each of the six departments received from the club treasury $2 annually for each of its members, was judged unsatisfactory.

With the new plan the appropriation will be made, not on a per capita basis but after a consideration of the proposed work of each department.

AT EQUALITY LEAGUE

Verbal bouquets and rhetorical candy were in order at the annual business meeting of the Chicago Political Equality league yesterday at Roosevelt hall, State and Lake building. One hundred women balloted with such unanimity that the nominees were referred to as "the newly elected officers" after half the ballots had been cast.

MRS. HARIETTE TREADWELL.

Mrs. Hariette Taylor Treadwell was elected president to succeed Mrs. Lula Smart Schweizer. The other new officers are: Mrs. Willa B. Laird, first vice president; Mrs. Julius Reynolds Kline, second vice president; Mrs. Rel W. Randall, recording secretary; Miss Thirza Riggs, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George S. Haskell, financial secretary; Mrs. Bertha Burnham West, treasurer.

The following were elected to the board of directors: Mrs. Harriet Stokes Thompson, Mrs. Lula Smart Schweizer, Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, Mrs. Marion H. Biel, Mrs. Warren C. Price, Miss Edith Swift, Mrs. Edward D. Gotchy, Mrs. George Pretzel, Mrs. Julius Loeb, Mrs. John C. Levenson, Mrs. Effie Freeman, and Mrs. A. L. Meyers.

CITY NEWS BRIEFS

MRS. EDNA M. BOWIE filed suit for divorce against John R. Bowie, New York stock broker, said to be worth $50,000.

JAMES LOCKINGTON, watchman for the New York Central, shot Albert Benkert, an automobile mechanic, when he made as though to draw a weapon.

FRANK DEMPSEY, 8351 Mackinaw avenue, South Chicago, was killed by a freight train at Torrence avenue and East One Hundred and Twelfth street.

THE CORN PRODUCTS REFINING COMPANY announce an increase of 10 per cent in the pay of 9,000 employés.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL JOHN J. BRADLEY returned from Washington with the assurance that deputies' salaries would be increased.

WILLIAM H. TAFT will speak at the annual dinner of the Committee of Fifteen at the Hotel La Salle May 10.

WALTER E. HODGES, 4139 Indiana avenue, was the first Chicago boy to enroll for the R. O. T. C. course at Camp Roosevelt.

THE CHICAGO TELEPHONE WOMEN'S chorus, under leadership of Miss A. Olin, will sing at First Baptist church, Oak Park, tonight.

MERCHANDISE VALUED AT $500, stolen from the Marshall Field & Co. wholesale warehouse, was found in the room of 16 year old Anthony Stegner, an employé.

THE ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION of Chicago merged with the advertising council of the Association of Commerce.

MORRIS HELD AS ".666 BATTER IN PERJURY LEAGUE"

Landis Sends Marcuse Partner to Jail.

Judge Landis yesterday held Lew H. Morris, one of the general partners of Marcuse & Co., to the grand jury, under $20,000 bonds, for perjury. He characterized him as "a .666 batter in his disregard for truth." Morris was sent to jail.

He was released later on bonds signed by Charles B. Heffenberg of 4914 Ellis avenue and Sam Berlin of 3400 Lake street.

The judge's action followed Morris' persistent evasions of the court's questions as to a loan of $5,000 made by Morris to C. B. Giles, a real estate man and his landlord, in January last.

Morris Put on Stand.

Morris was placed on the stand as court opened.

"Now, Morris," Judge Landis said, "I want you to tell me all about this $5,000 you loaned Mr. Giles."

"I told you all I knew, judge."

"Where did you get the money?"

"From the stockholders of the McCauley-Bondright-Morris company."

"But you loaned this money in January and you testified that you did not get it from the stockholders until February. How do you reconcile these statements?"

"I refuse to answer."

"Morris, you are a general partner of a bankrupt firm. Is that so?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then, with the assets of a bankrupt, can you tell me how you can move your residence from a $135 a month to a $300 a month apartment?"

"I refuse to answer."

Judge Landis turned to Michael Feinberg, Morris, attorney.

"Mr. Attorney, I want to call your attention to the number of acts of perjury committed by this man in this courtroom in the last few days. Details are not necessary. Yesterday, when questioned about this loan, he testified falsely two out of every three times.

Fixes Batting Average.

"This gives him a batting average of .666, which is high, even for a courtroom.

"I, therefore, enter an order holding Morris to the grand jury for perjury under $20,000 bonds."

DR. J. W. VAN DERSLICE NEW COLONIAL CLUB CHIEF AT OAK PARK

At the election held yesterday by the Colonial club of Oak Park Dr. J. Warren Van Derslice of 155 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, was chosen as president. The other officers are V. P. Griffith, first vice president; William Miller, second vice president; J. W. Ott, secretary; C. A. Royston, treasurer; directors, D. L. Quinn, W. A. Garner, D. F. Thomas, Robert E. Fisher, T. J. Morris and W. H. Kent.

AFTER 40 YEARS U. S. MAY GET A BUDGET SYSTEM

McCormick Bill Passes in the Senate.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—After forty years of congressional discussion of the advantages of a budget system the senate today passed Senator McCormick's budget bill without a roll call or a dissenting voice.

The house has also passed a budget bill and with it the McCormick bill will now go to conference. There is considerable difference between the two measures but it is believed these can be adjusted without much delay.

The action of the senate today marks the end of years of agitation in and out of congress for reform of the method of preparing estimates for the federal government's expenditures. When the measure becomes effective it is the belief of its authors that it will eliminate much waste and extravagance in appropriations and enable congress to legislate far more intelligently in providing revenue fixing taxation.

Centers in Treasury Department.

The McCormick bill establishes a budget bureau in the treasury department instead of in the president's office as provided for in the house bill. It was considered that this change was advisable for the reason that the treasury department would actually prepare estimates. The McCormick bill, however, in no way relieves the president from responsibility for the total amount of the estimates.

Other important features of the bill differentiating it from the house bill are:

There is provided instead of the director and an assistant director of the budget bureau, a commissioner and two assistant commissioners, who shall be appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the senate, and who shall hold office for a term of six years. All other employés of the bureau are placed under the civil service rules.

There is provded in each of the departments and establishments of the government "a general financial secretary" who shall have supervision over the formulation and the preparation of the budget estimates for his respective department or establishment.

On or before Oct. 1 each year the head of each department and establishment is required to submit to the commissioner of the budget "his final revised budget estimates for the ensuing fiscal year."

Detailed Reports Demanded.

The heads of the departments are further required, when their budget estimates are in excess of existing appropriations, or when they are entirely new, to set forth in detail, by means of a note, the reasons why such increase or new item is requested.

On or before Nov. 1 of each year the commissioner of the budget is required to report the result of his investigations regarding the organization activites and methods of business of the various services of the government, in the interest of securing economy and efficiency, to the secretary of the treasury. He is also required on that date to submit to the secretary of the treasury the budget estimates which have beeen submitted to him.

ASKS $100,000 OF BANKER FOR DOUBLE ARREST

Reputation, Job Lost, Ex-Examiner Says.

OWEN T. EVANS.

Owen T. Evans of St. Charles, a former bank examiner with offices in the Standard Trust building, filed the declaration of a suit for $100,000 against Frank H. Elmore, president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, yesterday. Evans alleges he was falsely accused and flung in jail on two separate occasions, Sept. 9 and Dec. 19, 1919.

Since the latest arrest, the declaration states, he has been unable to obtain employment in his capacity of bank examiner. His credit and reputation not only have been greatly injured, but his "good name has been brought into public scandal, infamy, and disgrace," he says.

Three Others Named.

Besides Mr. Elmore, who lives at 6003 Winthrop avenue, Henry A. Berger, former assistant state's attorney; Henry M. Hagen, an attorney for the Bank of Commerce and Savings, and John D. Collins, policeman at the Chicago avenue station, are made defendants in the suit.

According to Francis J. Callahan, representing Mr. Evans, the suit is the result of trouble which grew out of an alleged overdue note held by the bank. "My client was in no way involved in the affair, but was arrested along with numerous others at the time," said Mr. Callahan. "Mr. Evans has never been in trouble in his life, and I believe he was deliberately brought into the affair with which he had no connection."

Aiding Swindlers, Charge.

At the time of Evans' arrest in the Rector building, he was charged with aiding a gang of supposed swindlers headed by Charles W. French. A telegram in which he asked advice concerning his answer to an offer of a position with the local federal reserve bank led to his arrest.

SEES CRIME CURE IN PSYCHIATRIST AS COURT ADVISER

The habitual criminal is sick. He should not be punished or educated. He should be segregated for life unless cured. Every judge should have a psychiatrist at his elbow to examine law breakers for mental and physical ills.

These were a few of the observations made last night by Hessel Postma, doctor of psychophysics at the government educational institution for girls at Zeist, Holland. Dr. Postma is investigating American court systems for his government. He has spent three days in the municipal courts.

"The subnormal should be constantly under the eye of the government because their characteristic irresponsibility makes them potential criminals," he said. "As it is now we catch a mentally sick person in a crime, throw him into jail for a period and then turn him loose and allow him to go right back and commit the same crime.

"This man, if an examination shows he is mentally deficient, should be locked up for the rest of his life unless his mental condition improves."

BOARD OF TRADE CITES E. M. HOYNE AND 3 FOR TRIAL

Eugene M. Hoyne, manager, and Eugene De Bronkart, assistant manager of the bankrupt brokerage concern of Eugene M. Hoyne & Co., together with Henry D. Sturtevant of Pynchon & Co., have been cited to appear before the directors of the board of trade next Tuesday to answer charges of uncommercial conduct.

The charges were filed with the board by the investigating committee of that body and are the result of statements alleged to have been made by the three at the time Hoyne and Dr. Bronkart joined the board in December, 1918.

Hoyne has been a frequent visitor to the board recently, it is reported, and is alleged to have made overtures to members looking toward "gentle handling" of his case. He refused to comment yesterday on the action taken by the investigating committee.

Should the men be found guilty of the charges they may face either expulsion or a long suspension. Similar cases in the past have resulted in expulsions or in suspensions running from six months to twenty years, during which the member must pay his dues, but cannot dispose of his board membership or receive any of its benefits.

Philip R. O'Brien, a corn trader for the Hoyne company, also has been cited to appear before the directors within several weeks, the date not being set as yet. O'Brien is said to have been in debt to the Hoyne concern to the extent of $60,000 at the time of the failure and is charged with overtrading.

CONNECTICUT TO BE RAIDED TODAY OF SUFF LEADERS

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Prominent suffrage leaders will assemble here tomorrow, as members of the suffrage emergency corps, which will invade Connecticut on Monday to convince Gov. Holcomb that he ought to call a special session of the legislature to act upon the suffrage amendment.

Those from the middle western states will include Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, St. Louis, former vice president National Suffrage association; Mrs. Andreas Ueland, Minneapolis, president Minnesota State League of Women Voters; Mrs. James A. Devitt, Iowa, a delegate at large to the Republican national convention; Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, Chicago, and Mrs. Ben Hooper, Milwaukee, Wis.

Chests of Silver
"LANSDOWNE"

SILVER—The Gift Supreme

THREE and four times a day we have occasion to use knives, forks and spoons—but Oh, the kind that are frequently placed before us! Even the most frugal meal is given an added grace and delicacy by good silver.

Ours may well be termed the "Store-House" of silver! Silver will always be the most appropriate and most acceptable of gifts. Oak and Mahogany chests, containing any number of pieces in any combination desired, from the simple set of 18 pieces—knives, forks and spoons—to the most elaborate imaginable. The name of "Peacock" on the chest vanishes doubt!

The "Lansdowne" is but one of the many beautiful patterns displayed in Sterling Silver.

THOUSAND TONS OF SUGAR SENT TO CITY'S RELIEF

Arrival Expected to Prevent Boost in Price.

A cargo of 2,000,000 pounds of refined sugar will start on its way to Chicago tomorrow from Marine City, Mich. It is coming by boat and probably will arrive here within five days' time. This news tended to set at rest rumors prevalent in the wholesale district yesterday to the effect that sugar is being withheld from the Chicago market in order to boost the price to the consumer.

The huge shipment, made by water on account of the rail freight embargoes, does not promise to bring down the price, however, as it all was contracted for some time ago by Chicago jobbers and is valued at $500,000. This would make the retail price about the same as at present.

Clyne Starts for Chicago.

Meantime the special federal grand jury, which convenes tomorrow, will take up the profiteering cases. District Attorney Clyne left Washington for Chicago last night following a conference with department of justice officials regarding profiteering in sugar, potatoes, and other foods.

"You may say," said Mr. Clyne to a representative of THE TRIBUNE before boarding his train, "that we are going to get hot after Chicago profiteers, particularly those who are gouging the public on sugar and potatoes."

Recent sale prices show a margin of from 11 to 16 cents a pound profit between the time sugar leaves the refinery until its arrival in the corner grocer's bins.

It was said that sugar purchased fifteen days ago in the east at 18 to 19 cents a pound was being disposed of yesterday to Chicago dealers at 31 and 31½ cents. A bid for 10,000 pounds at 32 cents made yesterday morning by an Ohio dealer was ignored.

Chicago Price Way Up.

On the New York market sugar brought 18½ cents a pound yesterday. It costs ½ cent more to place it on the Chicago market. A dealer could sell at 19 cents, the retailer at 20 cents, and make a profit, but Chicagoans paid from 27 to 31 cents a pound for it.

Chicago wholesalers said yesterday that there is enough sugar now in storage here to last several weeks. In general, however, only as much was received during the last ten days as would normally be placed on the market in two days.

80,000 Pounds of Sugar Seized in Omaha by U. S.

Omaha, Neb., May 1.—Federal agents last night seized a car of sugar containing 80,000 pounds, as it was about to be sent to Des Moines, Ia. They said the sugar was sent from San Francisco on March 22 to a Chicago firm, and diverted at Savannah, Ill., to Omaha. The sugar belonged to a sugar brokerage concern. Seizures here now total 250,000 pounds.

PENS CURSE FOR GIRL WHO SCORNED LOVE, THEN DIES BY GAS

"I've tried so hard to please you, but I can't. So there is only one end. I shall curse you the rest of your days, for I shall be beside you every step you take and every move you make. But I love you, love you, and I will always be with you."

This is an excerpt from a note penned to Miss May Malone, 19 years old, of 6 West Superior street, by Edward C. Watson during the last moments of his life. His body was found early yesterday in a rooming house at 26 West Ohio street. He had turned on the gas.

Six other letters, telling of his unrequited love were read at the inquest. He and Miss Malone, a waitress, had been employed in the same restaurant at one time.

"I realized he loved me, but I never encouraged him," Miss Malone testified. "I had to leave the restaurant because of his attentions."

Charles Hildebrand, a lunchroom manager, testified Watson often had spoken of ending his life.

PLAN FOR COUNTY DAIRY REVIVED BY COMMISSIONERS

Cook county is in need of a dairy farm from which to supply its institutions, according to President Peter Reinberg of the board of county commissioners, and yesterday Henry Zender, superintendent of public service, presented plans for a dairy on the county farm operated in connection with the county infirmary at Oak Forest.

It was planned two years ago to establish the dairy, but certain commissioners, said to be interested in the fortunes of their farmer constituents, are charged with obstructing it. An attempt a few days ago to get favorable action on a bid under which the county would be compelled to pay an advance of 9 cents a gallon for milk—31 cents instead of 22—was frustrated by President Reinberg. He caused the rejection of the bid and advertised for others. It is expected they will be read at the regular meeting of the board tomorrow.

Only one bid was tendered last Monday, and it was hinted that the dairymen had agreed that only one of their number should make a tender. It was this action that caused President Reinberg to revive plans for a county dairy.

MERIT TEST LIST POSTED.

The city civil service commission yesterday posted a list of examinations to be held during the ensuing month. Among them are those for assistant engineer in the waterworks division, $3,000 per year; bridge designing engineer, $2,760, and assistant engineership in the construction division of the waterworks system, $3,000.

'U. S. RUNS MADLY AT PRICES—AND LO, THEY ARISE!'

Good Refuses Role of Goat in Futile H. C. L. Drive.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—Criticism of the administration for its failure to accomplish anything with funds furnished by congress for the reduction of the cost of living was voiced by Representative Good, Iowa, chairman, appropriations committee, today in the house.

"Complaint has been made of the failure of congress to make appropriations to reduce the high cost of living," said Mr. Good in discussing the pending sundry civil appropriation bill.

Wrongly Blame Congress.

"Executive officials have openly charged that the failure of the administration to bring down the cost of living was due solely to the refusal of congress to make appropriations therefor.

"Appropriations have, however, been made by this congress to reduce the high cost of living. In some instances, notably the appropriation to the federal trade commission of $150,000, remains unexpended.

"That commission recognized the fact that to have expended the money appropriated, to reduce the high cost of living, although asked for by the executive, would have been a flash in the pan, a total waste of the people's money. Therefore, it refused to expend the appropriations.

Really Raise Prices!

"Other appropriations made to bring about a reduction in the cost of living have resulted in no appreciable decrease in price. But during the time this money was being expended the price of many of the necessaries of life has materially advanced, sugar having doubled the price at it which it was selling when the appropriations to reduce the high cost of living were granted."

INDICT 36 VOTE OFFICIALS FOR FRAUDS IN 1918

One Woman Named by Grand Jury.

The April grand jury completed its month's work yesterday by returning conspiracy indictments against thirty-six judges and clerks of election, one of them a woman. They are charged with making false canvasses and unlawfully marking ballots.

The indictments are the result of alleged frauds uncovered before Judge Foell in the recount of ballots in the November, 1918, election.

List of the Indicted.

Those indicted are:

Ninth precinct of the Twentieth ward, Nathan Roitman and Morris Bass, judges, and Joseph Goldsholl, clerk.

Fifth precinct of the Twentieth ward, Herman Schulberg and Charles Marks, judges, and Morris Moseson, clerk.

Forty-fourth precinct of the Fifteenth ward, A. S. Maxwell, S. La Rocco, and Joseph Ehrenberg, judges.

Fifty-seventh precinct of the Thirty-first ward, William Smallman, Arthur Holland, and Dennis Hurley, judges.

Fifty-second precinct of the Twenty-first ward, William A. Lang, Lew Nelson, and Lester Kirk, judges, and David Derden and William C. Ohle, clerks.

Eleventh precinct of the Twentieth ward—Louis Kohn, Nathan Regenstraf, and Louis Besser, judges, and Harry L. Smargon, clerk.

Twentieth precinct of the Sixteenth ward—Anton Krych and Ignatius J. Schroeder, judges, and Stanley Schenke, clerk.

Fourth precinct of the Twentieth ward—Harry Goldstein, Jacob Kissel, and Benjamin Price, judges, and William Morris, clerk.

Forty-first precinct of the Eighth ward—Minnie Schneider and Louis A. Jannotta, judges; Vincenzo Guiliano, clerk; and James Santi and Cornelius Hallahan, Republican watchers.

Fifty-fourth precinct of the Twenty-ninth ward—Frank J. O'Boyle, William H. Moldenhauer, and Thomas Ahern, judges.

Urge Better Vote Officials.

The grand jury recommended to the election commissioners that they exercise more care in the selection of ballot officials, so that fraud may become less frequent.

Staats-Zeitung to Resume Publication Next Sunday

The Illinois Staats-Zeitung, the only German language morning daily in Chicago, announces that it has been able to get its paper supply, and that publication of the daily edition will be started again, beginning next Sunday. By that time the Staats-Zeitung will have moved from 24-28 South Wells street to its new quarters at 25-27 West Illinois street, located in the heart of the coming newspaper district.

CAR LINES ADD MORE LOADING POINTS IN LOOP

The Surface lines' experiment with additional loading points on Wabash avenue has been so successful that the plan is to be extended. Beginning tomorrow westbound passengers may board any of the eastbound loop cars on Madison, Washington, Randolph and Lake streets at Wells street, and stops east of that street, and receive westbound transfers.

The arrangement will also apply to southbound passengers using loop lines in State street, who will be permitted to board northbound cars at Monroe street, and stops north thereof, receiving transfers punched "south."

In Wabash avenue, where the plan was tried out, it was found that during the evening rush hour hundreds of passengers took advantage of the new rule, boarding the loop cars northbound, getting seats, and reducing the crowding at the southbound loading points. The theory on the part of the company that many persons would be glad to take a little more time on their journey if they could be sure of seats was borne out by the results attained.

KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

HERE is the most economical toilet soap in America. For many years it has won its millions of friends on merit alone. It is so good that we have felt it only fair to tell you about it in this, the first advertisement we ever gave it.

KIRK'S COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE is unique. It is the only hardwater castile soap made by the exclusive Kirk Purity Process. In hardwater or salt water no soap in all the world lathers more quickly or profusely—just bubbles, bubbles everywhere—that soften the hardest water, chase away the grime and dirt at once, and then disappear with rinsing as easily as they came, leaving the hands and skin soft and purified and the hair clean and lustrous. The big, white oval cake is purity personified. Made from sweet cocoanut oils only—no artificial scents—contains only the natural cocoa odor. Millions have used it—on land and sea, in homes, offices and factories KIRK'S COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE gives universal satisfaction.

Now you try it! Be sure it bears the name "Kirk." You can buy it anywhere good soap is sold. At Your Druggist, Grocer or Department Store

RICHERT'S FATE IS STILL BEFORE SLATEMAKERS

Final Decision Is Not Due Until Tomorrow.

Still deadlocked over the finance committee chairmanship, the organization committee of the city council began to amble into the city last night after two weeks of slate making in Mississippi.

Whether the biggest plum in the gift of the council is to go to Ald. Clayton F. Smith or to Ald. John A. Richert, who holds the important post at present, will probably not be decided until tomorrow morning, when the organizers will hold their final session to approve their report for the council, which meets in the afternoon.

Smith Tells Position.

Ald. Smith, former city treasurer, who is being backed by Ald. Cermak, said last night that he would not be a candidate if Ald. Richert wants the post. He added, however:

"If Ald. Richert's health will not permit him to serve or if the council directs me to take up the finance committee gavel I'll follow orders, although I am not seeking the place."

As Ald. Lipps, Cermak, and Olsen neared Chicago last night there was some talk of striking out of the committee's report the proposed rule requiring the council to organize through a committee selected on the council floor instead of at a caucus called by the Municipal Voters' league. This will be taken up again tomorrow.

Rule on Caucus.

The proposed rule follows:

"For the purpose of facilitating the adoption of rules for the succeeding council and to effect and recommend a nonpartisan organization thereof, the following shall be the procedure:

"On the second Tuesday of March of each year the city council shall convene as a committee of the whole for the election of a committee on committees and rules. The committee on committees and rules shall consist of five members, one to be chosen from each of the following by a majority of the aldermen therein present and voting:

"District No. 1—Wards 1 to 7.
"District No. 2—Wards 8 to 14.
"District No. 3—Wards 15 to 21.
"District No. 4—Wards 22 to 28.
"District No. 5—Wards 29 to 35.

"The aldermen shall vote by roll call of their respective districts. In the event in any district no candidate shall receive a majority vote after five roll calls, then the selection shall be made by a roll call of all the members of the council. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes is elected."

Fights Food Bureau.

Ald. Horne wants to abolish the bureau of foods, markets, and farm products, and at tomorrow's council meeting will introduce an ordinance repealing the one which created the bureau. The bureau was established last July. It was made an adjunct of the health department and given an appropriation of $25,000.

HEARST URGES HIGHER RATES FOR NEWSPAPERS

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Five and seven 10 cent daily newspapers are coming, Frank A. Munsey, New York publisher, told the senate committee investigating the newsprint paper shortage. He urged drastic reduction in the use of newsprint and governmental regulation both of the paper and the wood pulp sources.

William Randolph Hearst, a New York publisher, in a letter to the committee, advocated a 20 or 25 per cent cut in the size of newspapers, but said he believed the time for governmental regulation had passed. Mr. Hearst urged that publishers double both advertising and circulation rates, saying such action would automatically cut down the size and number of copies without reducing revenue.

The government could not reduce newsprint consumption by regulating the number of pages of papers admitted to the mails, Mr. Munsey told the committee because scarcely any of the large city dailies rely for their revenue on mail circulation.

Detroit Papers Raise Price.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—An increase from 2 to 3 cents a copy, effective May 3, was announced today by the Detroit News and the Detroit Journal, evening papers. Increased production cost is given as the reason.

Off to Sound the Horn for 7,000 Miles

Pacific Coast Trippers of the Association of Commerce Leave on Three Weeks' Journey to Boost Chicago as the Great Central Market.

Baird at the Helm

"Chicago, the Great Central Market," will be advertised throughout the United States by fifty members of the Chicago Association of Commerce who left yesterday on a special train for a 7,000 mile junket. They will be gone three weeks.

The itinerary includes El Paso, San Diego, Los Angeles, Seattle, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and middle west cities. The party is headed by John P. Hovland, chairman of the delegation, with Willys W. Baird, president of the association, as honorary chairman.

The roster of those making the trip, in addition to Mr. Baird and Chairman Hovland, includes the following:

John W. Thomas,	Henry C. Niemann,

FIRST PARISH OVER TOP IN CATHOLIC DRIVE

The first parish to top the $10,000 mark in the Associated Catholic Charities campaign for a $1,000,000 "Jubilee Year" fund, which began last week, is Presentation parish, whose pastor, Father Henry P. Coughlin, yesterday gave in a check for $10,000. This parish centers about the church in Garfield boulevard and Halsted street.

The appeal to last year's contributors to increase their contributions is being responded to well. Edward N. Hurley, former head of the shipping board, who last year gave $2,500, gave his check for $10,000. George Donnersberger, who last year gave $250, gave $1,000.

Additions made to the executive committee include the following:

P. B. Flanagan,	Thomas F. Delaney,
W. W. Murphy,	John Higgins,
H. J. Cassady,	W. L. O'Connell,
Stuyvesant Peabody,	M. A. Donohue,
Edward I. Cudahy,	John P. Harding,
Edward M. Kerwin,	John A. McGarry,
W. P. Nelson,	Thomas H. Cannon,
Edward Kirchberg,	Edward Houlihan,

PLAN TO APPOINT JUDGES AROUSES IRE OF LAWYERS

Con Con Proposal Called Insult to Voters.

The judiciary committee of the constitutional convention listened yesterday afternoon to the advocates of the proposed court plan of the Chicago Lawyers' association. Their principal point was elective judges.

"To appoint the judges in Chicago and elect them down state is an insult to the voters here who believe in democracy," said Clarence Darrow. "The constitution which takes away rights which the people now have will not have a chance in the world to be adopted.

City Residents Intelligent.

"Chicago people are not less intelligent that those downstate. In fact, the country people are more narrow, more provincial, and less educated because they do not mix as much with their fellow men. Yet it has been suggested that these people are qualified to elect their judges while Chicagoans are not.

"I know the weakness of elective judges. If our judges were appointed we would get what is commonly called better judges. We would get better trained lawyers, more capable and with more experience. These lawyers gravitate to the property class, and we would have the lawyers with the property class viewpoint as the judges."

Calls Proposal Ridiculous.

"To appoint the judges here and elect them down state is a preposterous, ridiculous proposal," asserted Judge John R. Newcomer. "I think that we could get better judges by having them selected at nonpartisan elections."

Judge Marcus Kavanagh opined that with a system of appointive judges the members of the bench would be more in politics than now.

"Because," he went on, "the judges would be selected by one man or a small group, who had been elected in the ordinary political way. The people can be trusted. That has been proven in Cook county. We have judges who have been on the bench for twenty-five years, and a few for thirty years. Judge Gary was on the bench for forty-six years and Judge Tuley for forty-two years."

Suggests Referendum Plan.

Andrew R. Sheriff suggested that the constitutional convention continue the elective system, but also grant the legislature the power to provide for appointive judges, subject to a referendum of the people. Clarence Darrow said he would not be averse to that scheme.

Chief Justice Olsen of the Municipal court made a plea for speedier work in criminal cases.

"The greatest defect in the system locally is the delay," he said. "Witnesses are tired out. In the ordinary burglary, robbery, and larceny case there is no reason for the grand jury. Permit the state's attorney to proceed by information.

How System Works.

"At present the burglar gets a preliminary hearing in the Municipal court. His lawyer delays the case as much as possible. The crook gets out on bonds to steal more to pay his lawyer. There is more delay in connection with the grand jury and still more in the criminal court. The newspapers tell us there are 125 men in jail awaiting trial for murder."

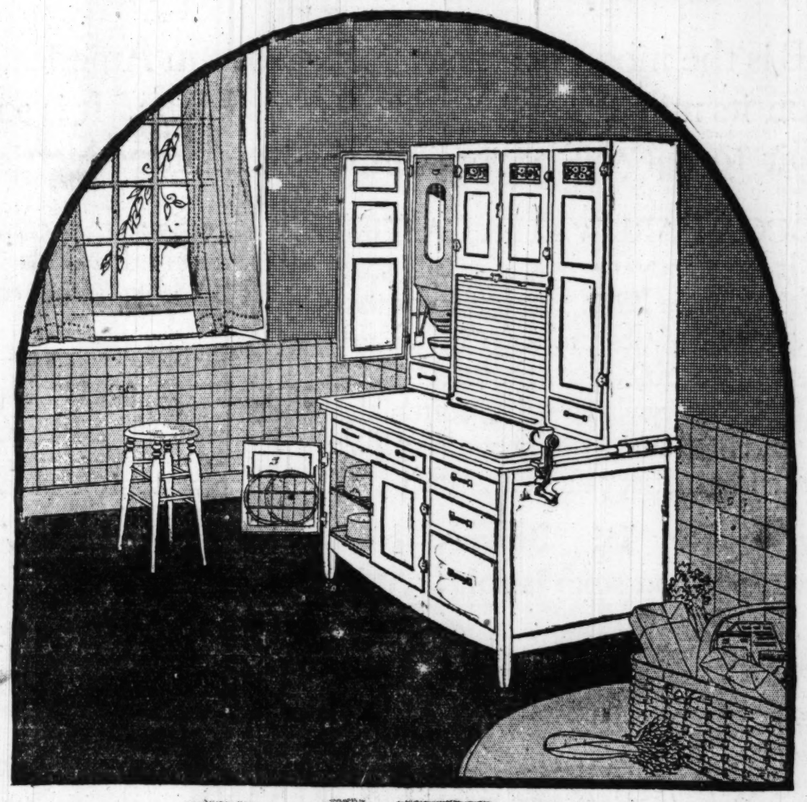
Relative to the selection of judges he said: "On the whole the people ought to elect them, but there should be some improvement in the nomination of men for the bench."

WILL TALK ON ADVERTISING.

"Linking Advertising with Sales Effort" will be discussed by George W. Hopkins at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Advertising Council of the Association of Commerce in the Hotel La Salle. Mr. Hopkins is president of the New York Advertising club and is general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone company.

McDougall

THE FIRST KITCHEN CABINET



Half Your Kitchen on Four Legs
—in a McDougall Auto-Front!

Have your cupboard, pantry and kitchen worktable all in one—in a McDougall. Sit—and reach conveniently for any of your 400 most used things. Save yourself a maze of steps. Have a tidy kitchen. Have a place for everything. Watch how work takes wings. ¶ McDougall Auto-Fronts are today's finality in kitchen cabinets. They are modern descendants of the first kitchen cabinet. Ancestral leadership, steadfastly upheld, exhibits itself in their fine character of construction and complete convenience. ¶ See for yourself the scores of McDougall supremacies. See how a McDougall combines lustrous beauty, sound oak sturdiness and rare utility. ¶ Visit a McDougall display this week. Among the seven styles—in either white or oak—you will find one exactly suited to your needs.

See the "Auto-Front," the famous McDougall patented wood curtain (above the tabletop) which drops open automatically. Disappears entirely! Leaves no groove to catch food or dirt. Lifts shut and locks! See it work!

See the tabletop that locks as firm as rock when pulled out. Can't jiggle up and down or rattle when worked upon.

See the handles, latches, catches and hinges handsome refrigerator-style. Can never break or pull out. Finest used on kitchen cabinets.

See the lustrous finishes that distinguish all McDougall's. Those in oak are Spar varnished—won't turn white despite kitchen steam, heat, or washing.

See the high-leg bases that can be swept beneath—sanitary!

See the construction in a McDougall. Built like a good sideboard. All joints mortised and tenoned solidly together instead of merely nailed or screwed. Nothing rickety.

See the steel braces in the eight corners of the base—staunch as Gibraltar! The drawers are dovetailed and mortised like dresser drawers—won't get out of shape and stick. McDougalls are the finest built of all. They do not grow wobbly and creaky with age.

See the flour bins, sanitary cleanable (latest improved types) with cleanable sifters; see the sanitary glass sugar jar (noncorroding); see all the supremacies that McDougalls have.

VISIT A McDOUGALL DISPLAY THIS WEEK!

69,400 GRAVES OF A. E. F. STILL TO BE CARED FOR Fund So Far Raised Provides for Only 600.

Contributions received by THE TRIBUNE toward the fund to decorate the graves of American soldiers in France on Memorial day, reached the total of $605.25. This will take care of about 600 graves. There are 70,000 graves to be covered with flowers through the work of the Red Cross, the American Legion, and the Memorial day committee in Paris. The Paris staff of THE TRIBUNE is cooperating with this committee and will take care of all funds sent from America, guaranteeing that the money will be spent in this service.

Rockford Republican Aids.

The Rockford Republican joined THE TRIBUNE yesterday in this work. There are eight newspapers in the west now associated in making the fund big enough to take care of this tremendous task. The money is needed soon, so that the Paris representatives may know just how far they can go in their arrangements and perfect their transportation plans to reach the hundreds of cemeteries where American soldiers lie buried under the rows of white crosses.

In sending his check for $5, Orin L. Gordon of Robinson, Ill., writes: "Chicago is fortunate in that she possesses an institution which is not only able, but willing, to handle this matter better than any individual or any government. Our son fell at Blanc Mont, and lies buried in Miomandre military cemetery, No. 101, where he will be permitted to remain."

Praise by Ettelson.

Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, in sending his bit, said:

"This is a beautiful idea and a most worthy cause. I feel that every American should deem it a privilege to have a part in this tribute to those who made the sacrifice."

James G. Brophy Post No. 195, American Legion, sent $5 and this note:

"The James G. Brophy post, No. 195, is glad of the opportunity afforded by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to participate in the decoration of its dead companions' graves in France on Memorial day.

"EDGAR J. MCCABE,
"Commander."

One woman of 72, whose hand shook as she wrote, said:

"My boy was in Battery A, 69th coast artillery, died at Libourne, France, with pneumonia and was buried outside the city limits. His name was Ernest P. Blake. Hoping some one will put flowers on his grave, I inclose $5 for the memorial fund."

S-O-M-E SHOW!

Dance of the Seven Veils Thrills Patrons of Y. W. C. A. Circus.

IRMA PABST, THE "BARKER."

"This way! This way! See the Dance of the Seven Veils. Only a nickle, half a dime. You won't miss the money. You can't miss the show. This way! This way!"

Outside the tent stood Irma Pabst, Northwestern university co-ed, dressed in oriental costume. She was ballyhooing for one of the sideshows of the circus held yesterday for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A.

The show was known as "The Dance of the Seven Veils." Not far away was a show booth marked "For Men Only." This show also was popular, but the other led as an inciter of grins and chuckles.

The men who went into Miss Pabst's booth were treated to a vision of a clotheseline, on which hung seven veils. Miss Pabst made the veils dance. The men in the other place got a dance with one of seven "oriental beauties"—one dance, one dime.

Charges Husband Tried to Kill Her in Auto

Cruelty and infidelity are charged against John V. Bermes, manufacturer of automobile accessories, with a reported income of $50,000 a year, in a bill for separate maintenance, filed in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Lillian Bermes. She recites several acts of cruelty.

On April 11, the wife says, Bermes tried to take her life by attempting to drive the automobile in which they were riding into a ditch at a high rate of speed.

"LOWBROW" IS PILLAR OF OPERA, NEW HEAD SAYS

Lays $100,000 Annual Deficit to Upper Class.

Grand opera is appreciated in Chicago only by the commonalty, or, in the vernacular, the low brows, according to Herbert M. Johnson, newly appointed executive director of the Chicago Opera company. The upper classes must be educated, he thinks.

"We have a deficit of $100,000 here each season," Mr. Johnson said yesterday. "No, it isn't the movies or the variety houses that hurt us. In fact, the cheaper seats always are sold out. Movie fans are our best patrons. The trouble is with Chicago's well to do citizens. They don't patronize opera. We must do something to inspire them with a love of art."

Efficiency New Keynote.

Efficiency is to be applied by the new management as one means of reducing the deficit.

"The first thing I intend to do is to eliminate all sources of waste. There seems to be an opinion that opera's chief expense is artists' salaries. That is not so. Salaries are a minor element compared to the expense of production.

"Next year we shall produce fewer operas. It is impossible to run one opera more than three times during the season here.

"On the fourth presentation we have an empty house. This is because our opera public apparently is only large enough to fill the theater three or four times. What we intend to do is to run the same opera with different casts, so the public will be drawn by the singers as well as by the play."

Seeks American Opera.

Mr. Johnson said there would be an American opera next year "if we can find one." A manuscript has been submitted which has a satisfactory story and Fino Marinuzzi is now studying the music. Mr. Johnson would not disclose the name of the American composer for fear of rousing false hopes, he said.

ANOTHER VERDICT IN ENDLESS CHAIN MULE LITIGATION

Once upon a time there was a young mule. That was about six years ago. Now, as mules go, it is getting along in years. But away back when it was young and loved oats it got lonesome. Joseph R. Morris, a director in the Peoples Gas, living in Deerfield township, who had purchased the mule, was invited by his neighbor, James Doyle, a retired Chicagoan, to place the mule in his pasture where there were sixteen other long eared specimens of the same balky tribe.

When Morris went to get his mule, there was a dispute as to which one it was: If the mule ever had a name it failed to answer to it. Doyle claimed Morris picked out a much better mule. Morris got a lawyer and a writ of replevin and the mule. Doyle had the verdict in favor of Morris set aside.

Three times the case dragged through the Lake county and Circuit courts at a cost of $200 a day to the taxpayers. Morris won twice and a jury disagreed at the third trial.

Yesterday Judge C. C. Edwards, at Waukegan, entered a judgment in favor of Doyle for $750. Doyle charges Morris had possession of the mule for seventy-five months and that its services are worth $10 a month.

Undismayed by the fact that the witness and attorneys' fees have climbed into the five figure mark, Morris entered a prayer for an appeal.

P. S.—The mule is valued at $225.

William Fennimore Dies After Illness of Two Years

William Fennimore, who was born May 3, 1848, in Chicago, near the site of old Fort Dearborn, died on Thursday at his residence, 1447 Kenilworth avenue, after an illness of two years. He was educated in the schools of Chicago, and was married on June 5, 1895, to Frances E. Hay, daughter of Alexander B. Hay. For more than thirty years he was in charge of the official Board of Trade provision, inspection, weighmaster, and registrar's office. He retired from active business life about five years ago. He was a member of Pleiades lodge No. 478, A. F. & A. M., of which he was master in 1874, and of Wiley M. Egan chapter No. 126, R. A. M., and Butler chapter No. 36, O. E. S., having served the latter as sentinel for twenty-eight years. He is survived by his widow and two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Holden and Mrs. R. Conger, both of Evanston.

One of "Innocents Abroad" Twain Made Famous Dies

Mrs. Julia Sewell Jackson, widow of the late Dr. A. Reeves Jackson, well known Chicago surgeon, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lavinia J. Russell, at 3716 Lake Park avenue, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Jackson was born in the early 30's in Bradford, Vt.

She met Dr. Jackson in 1867 during the excursion of the "Quaker City," a tour made famous by Mark Twain in "Innocents Abroad." They were married in 1871 and came to Chicago to live shortly before the great fire. Dr. Jackson died in 1892.

Mrs. Jackson was well known in Chicago literary circles. In accordance with her wishes, the body will be cremated. Interment will take place at Janesville, Wis., her old home. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Russell.

Rosehill Mausoleum Addition Now Under Construction

A visit to this magnificent building should readily convince one of the advantages of this modern custom of burial; no doubt upon investigation you will wish to consider this most important subject.

This addition will consist of twenty-two beautiful MEMORIAL ROOMS, varying in size to meet requirements.

The foundation has been completed and erection of the walls is now in progress, the granite for which has been delivered.

We have found from experience that no building can long endure severe climatic changes without provision for heating, ventilating and proper care.

These features have been provided for in our Mausoleum, the perpetual maintenance of which is safeguarded by a Trust Fund exceeding $125,000.00.

As the number of rooms available is limited, an early selection is advisable. In the present building there remain but few family sections and single crypts.

A representative will be at the Cemetery each day to show visitors through the Mausoleum and give further details.

Trust Funds which assure permanent upkeep of Rosehill Cemetery now aggregate $1,400,000.00 and are increasing daily.

Light and Comfortable —Walk on Air.

Can't Come Apart—because of this same process which drives the various parts of the shoe together into one solid piece.

Corrugated Tire Tread Soles—made tough and pliable by the special Hood method. "Wear like iron." Prevent slipping. Leather-topped fibre inner soles keep the feet cool.

Mailbag Duck Uppers—like the Government uses, but of a heavier quality. Lined with lighter duck—sturdy and strong.

Hood Pneumatic Heel—patented—contains air chambers which receive and eject air at every step. Takes the jar out of walking. You can be on your feet for hours without fatigue.

The Munson Army Last—on which Hood Wurkshus are made, means that they fit in a comfortable, easy, restful way. Keep their shape, too.

For the Whole Family — Hood Wurkshus are made for men, women, boys and girls. Every one in the family should wear them. A great shoe for work, for play or for school. Will cut down footwear bills because they cost little and last long.

ONE OF A SERIES OF TIMELY DISCUSSIONS OF MOTOR CAR VALUES

Compare thus any MARMON of the 34 series

—as proof that stabilized design insures stabilized investment

FIRST, look at any Marmon of the 34 series. The average man cannot tell them apart, year by year. Except to an expert, their appearance is almost identical.

A renewed Marmon looks like a new car.

Whether built in 1915 or 1920—or in between—every Marmon 34 offers advanced style and distinction.

Note fine cars. Then review that passing show of yearly models throughout the industry. Then think of the Marmon 34 as a car of stabilized appearance—one that does not become out of date each season.

This appearance test shows conclusively that a Marmon 34, of whatever year of the series, affords a permanent, matchless investment.

The reward of pioneering

OF more vital importance is stabilized engineering, for that means constant service at minimum cost.

When the Marmon 34 was brought out in 1915, it was a veritable revolution in design. Some were skeptical

But years have proved the soundness of our basic ideas.

Every Marmon 34 built during these six years embodies the same fundamental advancements.

New Marmons of current production have refinements, of course.

But renewal makes any Marmon completely satisfactory. Many units and parts are interchangeable. Renewal by our careful method brings a car that can't be equaled by any new car of like price.

Thus advanced engineering and exacting standards of manufacture have insured prolonged life to the Marmon 34—constant newness, unvarying performance.

This is the secret of that spirit of comradeship towards a Marmon.

Crystallized endorsement

As the supreme test of superiority, we now make public this fact:

The Marmon 34 is a favorite car of the foremost automotive engineers, automobile company executives, parts and equipment officials.

Their names we can't print here because space is lacking.

But the list is a Blue Book of that inner circle of motordom. It shows men who both financially and knowingly can pick and choose from the entire field.

These men know cars intimately. They know all the secrets of the industry. They know comparative values. So due significance should be attached to their preference toward the Marmon 34.

It is obvious that only one car can attain this coveted position.

All this should affect the judgment of the man outside the automotive world. For the car that is accepted thus, bears authoritative approval.

Before buying any car

COME at once and see for yourself the amazing bargains we offer in our Renewed Car Department. You get new car values at a considerable saving.

We give you any color combination you desire, personalizing each car, at your option, without extra charge. And we offer every Marmon model—Touring, Club Roadster, Sedan and Limousine.

Don't buy until you see these Renewed Marmons first. Come today—we are open Sundays—or come tomorrow. If out of town, write.

Let us show you how we renew completely. Let us give you the same demonstration given with a New Marmon.

You can't afford to miss these rare offerings—to decide without investigating them is to make a real mistake. So come at once.

HYDE PARK WINS AT LAKE FOREST BY RALLY, 8 TO 3

Losers Beaten for First Time in Two Years.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

High school boys of average ability may accomplish good results on the baseball field by being wide awake, alert at all times, and using their brains. One is assured of that after watching the youths from the big Hyde Park school perform in a game. They battled the Lake Forest academy lads yesterday on the Lake Forest field and, although the north shore school boasts a good team that hadn't lost in two years, Hyde Park won, 8 to 3, because the south siders took advantage of every possible chance to gain results and put up a splendid defense.

There didn't seem to be any batters of unusual strength on the team. Neither did any one stand out as a fielder or base runner who might set the world on fire some day, and the pitcher was only a slim young boy. But there was a fighting spirit on the squad that was admirable and an intensity in their play that one would expect only on some team more mature in years. Only once or twice did any one do the wrong thing.

Rally Wins for Chicagoans.

Right at the start they executed the bunt and run play and seemed to catch their rivals a bit off their guard. Anyway the play went through and it was necessary for the young batter to bunt a ball that was over his head. He did his part and not only protected the runner but bunted the ball safely, advancing the man and when the third baseman booted it, the batter, too, was on. With the first two men on and no one out, the Hyde Parkers fell upon the north shore boys and tallied three times before the side was out. After that they had things rather easy, though they weren't safe until the eighth when Lake Forest blew up and allowed five Chicago boys to romp home.

The Hyde Parkers are directed by "Scotty" Cameron, who was a star in baseball and football at the University of Tennessee a few years ago and now seems gifted with the knack of teaching the game to others. Not only has he drilled them until they are expert in handling the ball but it looks as if he devotes much time to skull practice. At least his pupils played as if they knew what it was all about. They backed up plays. They took chances on the bases when such a thing was in order. They exercised great care in their defense all the time, thus protecting the lead they had acquired. They gave encouragement to the pitcher whenever he showed the slightest signs of distress.

Misplay at First Base.

Once a midget second baseman made a mistake that might have proved costly. At the time, Hyde Park led by two runs. Their opponents had runners on first and second, with one out. The batter slashed a hot grounder to the second baseman. It was a rap made to order for a double play. Anyway, he should have tossed to second, forcing one runner, but he shot the ball to first, retiring the batter. That put rivals on second and third, where a hit would have driven in two runs and tied the score. The hit didn't come, but it might have. If he had made the force play at second, a hit would have driven in only one run.

But every one of the infielders saw the lad's mistake and the coach talked to him afterwards.

It did look as if the Hyde Park outfielders played pretty deep at all times, but in this case it happened that a couple of them were in the right spots to spoil long shots. However, the south siders played just as deep for a midget batter at the tail end of the list as they did for the clean up man.

Johnson Has Control.

Capt. Jimmy Johnson was the Hyde Park pitcher and was good because he had control along with plenty of speed. Roy Simons, star fullback of the football team, was catcher and as active as any "prep" I have seen. Ray Eakin took the throws at first base in sure style. Charles Duval handled the plays at second and Lowrey Holt did well at third. Jack Clause at short showed up splendid in all things. Art Cody, Jerome Rogers, and Bernie Weber, the latter only 15 years of age, did the outfielding. Little Bernie made one beauty catch. Mills and Poffinberger were along as utility men, the former being a pitcher. Score:

SOX BUMP ST. LOUIS SIX TIMES IN SECOND; WIN LOOSE GAME, 8-5

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—[Special.]—By the simple process of easing over six runs in the second inning the White Sox were able to wallop the Browns in the opener of the series, 8 to 5. It was just an ordinary ball game, and the Sox won it because they bunched hits and fielded well. The Browns did neither.

Jimmy Burke started Elam Russell Van Gilder on the slab, but the rookie phenom didn't enjoy much success. The Chicagoans soaked him for a tally in the first and then cut loose for the aforementioned half dozen in the second. Van Gilder wasn't around, however, when the rally ceased, having been relieved by Dixie Davis after five had scored and the sixth tally was still on third base. Davis then carried the hurling job until the start of the ninth, when Burwell relieved him.

Kerr Replaces Faber.

Red Faber was Gleason's choice for mound toil, and it was lucky for Faber that his mates gave him a comfortable lead almost from the outset. The veteran Red seemed to have nothing except a desire for work, and he had a terrible time getting by until yanked for Dick Kerr in the fifth, when the Browns had the bases loaded. Kerr managed to stop the impending rally,

PREVIOUS RECORD

The previous long game record was held by Boston and Philadelphia of the American league, who played twenty-four innings at Boston, Sept. 1, 1906, Philadelphia winning, 4 to 1.

Boston, Mass., May 1.—With Joe Oeschger and Leon Cadore occupying hero roles and "Hank" Gowdy ably assisting, in one of the most remarkable ball games ever played, Boston and Brooklyn of the National league today battled twenty-six inninings to a 1 to 1 tie, establishing a new long game record for the major leagues. At the end of the twenty-sixth round, after the clubs had battled twenty scoreless innings, darkness ended the fray.

"HANK" GOWDY.

Both twirlers established records by going the full twenty-six inning route. Both were going strong at the finish of the battle, ich was a hurler's duel all the way. Oeschger allowed only nine hits and in sixteen innings the Brooklyn batters were retired in order. Oeschger has allowed only two earned runs in fifty-five consecutive innings this season.

Brilliant Fielding.

The fielding on both sides was brilliant. In the seventeenth inning one of the most remarkable double plays ever seen in Boston retired Brooklyn. The bases were filled and one was out when Elliott grounded to Oeschger. Wheat was forced at the plate, but Gowdy's throw to Holke was low and fumbled. Konetchy tried to score from second and Gowdy received Holke's throw to one side and threw himself blindly across the plate to meet Konetchy's spikes with his bare fist.

Olson saved Brooklyn in the ninth when, with the bases filled and one out, he stopped Pick's grounder, tagged Powell on the base line, and then threw out the batter.

How Runs Scored.

Only twice did a Brooklyn runner reach third, in the fifth, when Krueger scored, and in the seventeenth. Cadore was hit hard, but pitched superbly in many pinches. Boston threatened to score repeatedly, but Cadore's mates came to his rescue.

Brooklyn scored in the fifth inning on a pass to Krueger, a fielder's choice and Olson's single. Boston scored in the sixth on Cruise's triple and Boeckel's single. Boeckel was thrown out at the plate, trying to score from first base on Maranville's double to right center, Hood making a remarkable stop. Cadore's interception of the throw and quick peg to Krueger just nipped Boeckel, and made it possible to play the record breaking game.

Few Passes Given.

Though they pitched practically three full games, Oeschger walked only four men and Cadore five. The Bostonian fanned seven and Cadore six. Eleven Dodgers were left stranded on bases and sixteen Braves. Oeschger allowed nine hits and Cadore fifteen. The game was played in three hours and fifty minutes.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN WIN TEAM EVENT IN BOWLING MEET

The Stein Juniors of St. Louis won the team event in the Women's National Bowling association tournament with 2,454 yesterday. Mrs. M. Kelly Jr., Mrs. O. C. Berghaus, Mrs. A. Ferder, Mrs. Gertrude Bornblaser, and Mrs. P. Humphreys compose the team. The Leffingwells of Chicago were second with 2,448.

Bowlers in the doubles failed to affect the standing of the three leaders. Mrs. E. I. Willig and Mrs. J. Walz of Chicago holds first place with 1,042. The tournament will be concluded today.

TIGER OARSMEN TWICE IN FRONT; ONE TO HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., May 1.—A Tiger fairly clawed the waters of the Charles river basin this evening to win from the varsity eight-oared crews of Harvard and University of Pennsylvania. The crimson, which had led by nearly a length half way on the Henly course of a mile and seven-eighths, finished second, three-quarters of a length behind the Princeton eight. Pennsylvania was three lengths behind, never a factor, although by many considered a favorite. Princeton's time was 9:47, Harvard's 9:50. Pennsylvania's time was not taken officially.

The oarsmen of Nassau earlier in the regatta had won the freshman sheet with Harvard over the same course, leading by half a length to finish in 10:24. The Crimson junior varsity eight was the only crew to force the Tigers to take its wash, winning the second contest by one-third of a length in 10:07 1-2. Pennsylvania rowed only in the big race.

Weather conditions were good for the earlier races, but the varsity event was held over roughened waters, with a wind aiding the crews by a quartering blow from behind.

MAY DAY BOMBS BY CARDS RIDDLE CUB BUNCH, 12-4

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Cardinal being a shade of red, the Rickeys of St. Louis celebrated May day by exploding a flock of bombs on Cub park yesterday afternoon and riddled three Chicago pitchers for a total of eighteen swats, retiring victorious by a score of 12 to 4.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

Jack Fournier was the top Card in the bombing squad, with three consecutive two baggers, but he was aided and abetted by Roger Hornsby and Harold Janvrin, each of whom made three hits off our trio of right handers.

Nick Carter was the first victim of the bombers, but he lasted only a few minutes, being driven to shelter by Fournier's first double with only one out in the first spasm. A whole lot of things happened to Mr. Nick while he was under fire, however. There was a bobble, a pair of passes, a sacrifice hit, a double steal, and a wild pitch ahead of the two base Fournier blow.

Martin Succeds Carter.

Speed Martin took up the lost cause and lasted through the seventh in spite of a lot of slamming by the Cards. By that time they had increased their runs and the Cubs were showing signs of getting busy, so Martin gave way to a pinch hitter, and let Bailey finish. The Cards treated Link just like his predecessors, and mauled him for four more tallies before they were squelched.

Neither team played well in the field, and erred about equally often, but the Cubs were not hitting the ball enough to profit much by the Cardinal boots, while the home team's slips were sure to be preceded or followed by some heavy stick work.

There were occasional flashes of brilliance, and an unassisted triple play would have been registered by the Cubs in the seventh but for the fact one man was already out when it happened. Hornsby was on second and Smith on first. Janvrin gave them the office for a hit and run play and both started. The batsman lined a fly to

NATURE APPRECIATED.

I stood upon the very brink,
Far below the Colorado flowed,
While from across that yawning void,
The fleecy clouds with sunlight glowed.

Those sculptured canyon walls enclosed
A world of shrines and temples old,
Of painted spires and minarets,
Of castles grim and bleak and bold.

I stood there, awe-inspired, transfixed,
My tongue in reverence mute,
When a dear young thing close by exclaimed:
"Oh, Harold, ain't it cute?"

He rakes and he hammers,
He pokes and he jams;
He rips and he rammers
A chorus of slams;
With tortuous bombing
And maddening whine
He keeps up his plumbing
The room next to mine.

I hope he is stung for
His last cent of jack!
I hope he is hung for
His murderous clack!
If he gets ALL that's coming

BRITONS HANG UP WORLD RECORD IN TWO MILE RELAY

Oxford-Cambridge Team Features Penn Meet.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—English varsity runners scored a great international triumph today when the combined Oxford-Cambridge university team of half milers defeated the leading college quartets of this country in the two mile championship relay race, the feature contest of the University of Pennsylvania's relay carnival. Forced to a terrific speed by their American competitors, the visiting collegians finished in new world's record time of 7:50 2-5.

G. B. D. RUDD. [U. and U. Photo.]

The four runners, W. G. Tatham, Cambridge; H. B. Stallard, Cambridge; W. R. Milligan, Oxford, and B. G. D. Rudd, Oxford, clipped 2 3-5 seconds from the previous world's record, which was jointly held by the Irish-American A. C. team consisting of Riley, Bromilow, Sheppard and Kiviat, and the Yale university quartet composed of Rolfe, Cooper, Barker, and Overton.

Race Cream of U. S.

The English team lined up at the start with rival quartets from Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ames, Cornell, Yale, Notre Dame, and Massachusetts Tech under conditions almost ideal for the race. The wind which blew down the stretch was not strong enough to impede the runners.

H. B. STALLARD. [U. and U. Photo.]

With the pistol the contestants, closely packed, swung up the stretch, and it was not until the opening quarter had been run that there was a break in the group. At the close of the first circuit of the 440 yard track Mayer of Cornell was setting a fast pace, with Spink, Illinois, a Notre Dame man, and Tatham of Cambridge a few feet apart.

Stallard Takes Lead.

In the second half mile Stallard, the real hero of the race, began a sprint which landed him in second place at the three-fourths mile mark, a few feet behind Stanton of Cornell. Rounding the back stretch, the Englishman lengthened his stride and shot into the lead and finished the mile with a margin of about eight yards over Stanton, with Schuh, Illinois, third. The effort took everything out of Stallard and he collapsed as he crossed the line in a temporary faint.

Milligan of Oxford increased Stallards' lead to thirty yards over Abreu, Cornell, and Emery, Illinois, at the mile and a quarter. The latter made a game try and fought his way into second place about ten yards behind Milligan when the batons were passed for the final half mile.

Rudd, who is Rhodes scholar from South Africa and one of the best all around runners developed in England in years, set out to widen the gap between Yates, Illinois finalist, and drew away rapidly, until it was evident before he encompassed half the track that nothing but an accident could prevent his winning. Stride by stride he forged ahead, until he was fully forty yards in front of Yates when he broke the worsted cord at the finish. Earl

RUTH HITS HOMER OVER POLO FIELD ROOF IN 6-0 WIN

Lands First Circuit Drive in Yank Uniform.

New York, May 1.—New York defeated the Red Sox, 6 to 0, today, the first time New York won from Boston this season in five games. Ruth hit his first home run in a New York uniform in a league game, driving the ball over the right field roof of the stadium.

"BABE" RUTH.

Ruth's feat has pulled only twice before since the Brush stadium was erected in 1911. Last September Babe turned the trick while breaking the world's home run record, and Jackson of the White Sox hit a ball over the roof in 1913.

Mays, Shore, and O'Doud of New York were ordered off the field by Umpire Dinneen. Score:

Wisconsin 4; Indiana, 1

Madison, Wis., May 1.—The University of Wisconsin defeated Indiana again today, 4 to 1, in a western conference baseball game. The Badgers won in the eighth inning, when, with the score 1 to 1, Jeffries, Indiana pitcher, walked four men in succession, forcing in one run before he was relieved by Walters. A single by Davey scored two more runs. Ogle, who pitched for Wisconsin, allowed only six scattered hits.

NOTES

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—[Special.]—Same teams tomorrow. Gleason may start Roy Wilkinson.

Real summer weather brought out about 15,000 patrons.

Jackson did not do so badly at bat. He only unloaded a single, double, and triple.

A gent named Pat Collins batted for Davis in the eighth. Gerber was on first at the time, having singled. All that Pat did was to bounce to Weaver for a double play.

Faber had absolutely nothing, and Gleason had Kerr warming up as early as the first inning. The Sox run rally delayed the removal, however. Even Kerr was none too good, not possessing much speed.

WHITE SOX NICK BROWNS, 8 TO 5, IN LOOSE BATTLE

and then went along to the finish, excellent support by his pals being of material assistance.

Besides having bum pitching, the Browns made themselves a bit more laughable by staging some typical St. Louis fielding. Numerous errors were injected at just the proper moments to aid the Sox scoring. Frequent passes also provided additional means to aid the Gleasons.

Sox First to Score.

The Sox started by getting a run in the first inning. Weaver singled with one out and continued to third when the hit got past Williams. Buck scored while Collins was being thrown out by Gerber. Jackson added a double, but nothing further happened. The Browns evened it in their half on Austin's single, a pass to Gedeon, and two sacrifices.

Jourdan's single opened the second round upheaval. Risberg sacrificed and Schalk's single sent Jourdan across. Faber walked, Leibold lofted out, and a pass to Weaver filled the corners. Collins beat out a bounding infield hit and Schalk counted. At this juncture Jackson stepped in with his triple to right center, Faber, Weaver, and Collins parading over the plate. Van Gilder was removed in favor of Davis, and Felsch greeted the latter with a hit, sending Jackson home. Jourdan ended the round with a pop to short.

KENTUCKY DERBY OPEN RACE WITH FIELD OF CLASS

No Pronounced Favorite for Big Turf Event.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—The first $40,000 Kentucky derby promises to be the greatest in the history of Kentucky's celebrated 3 year old specific. The field of starters that will line up at the post at Churchill Downs next Saturday to gallop one and one-quarter miles before a crowd of 45,000 to 50,000 men and women will include eight or ten stars.

The derby of 1920 will be no race of an Omar Khayyam, or a Sir Barton, or a George Smith, or a Regret, against a bunch of second and third raters. There are ten or a dozen horses of both sexes in this season's event that are as good as ever was Omar Khayyam, or George Smith, or Sir Barton.

A general recognition of this fact makes the derby an open race. The favorite should be 4 or 5 to 1.

Plan for Record Crowd.

Preparation for handling an extraordinary crowd has been made. Seating capacity for twice the number that were present when Sir Barton won last year has been created.

As the richest Kentucky derby so far, the race of 1920 also will show the best there is of American sportsmanship. Prince Pal, regarded as the great western hope, will bear the silks of Henry Oliver of Pittsburgh and Edward F. Simms of Kentucky and Texas, oil magnate, thoroughbred producer, and sportsman. Maj. Thomas Clay McDowell of Lexington will have one starter certainly; he may have two. Harry Payne Whitney, for many years the east's most considerable thoroughbred horse producer, will be represented by at least two first class horses; he may have three. Damask, winner of the Louisiana derby; Upset, John P. Grier, and Wildair are all ready for the colors.

Stars from Many Stables.

Capt. Ral Parr of Baltimore and his partner, J. A. Cosden, another oil magnate, will start Blazes and Paul Jones, both winners at Havre de Grace. Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, whose thoroughbred nursery at Ross farms, in Montgomery county, Md., is fast becoming one of the great breeding establishments of the Atlantic seaboard, will have two or three. Just now his most likely candidates appear to be King Thrush, Irish Dancer, and Constancy. None of these, perhaps, is as good as Sir Barton was a year ago, but King Thrush is an impressive colt.

Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, one of America's leading sportswomen, will send on her French bred Sweeper colt, Golden Broom, the top price yearling of the season of 1918 and the winner last summer of the Saratoga Special. Walter M. Jeffords may have a starter in Kinnoul, the juvenile hero of last spring's racing in Maryland. George W. Loft, candy manufacturer, politician, and member of the racing commission of the Empire state, will have Donnaconna, a $10,000 colt by Prince Palatine, and On Watch, an American bred son of Colin and Rubia Granda and the winner at Latonia last fall of the Queen City handicap.

Brookholt a Possibility.

It is possible that Monfort Jones, still another oil magnate, may be represented by Brookholt, a $45,000 son of Ballot that wintered at Hot Springs.

Probably there will be other starters. One can never tell what a derby may bring forth. Last season's race was won by a colt that went into winter quarters at the end of his first year a maiden. The season before last the previously obscure Exterminator galloped home in front of a raft of the most widely touted colts.

BRITTON VICTOR IN QUAKER BOUT

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—Jack Britton, the dady of all welterweights, gave Frankie McGuire of Williamsport, Pa., a boxing lesson over the six round route at the National A. A. tonight. Six of the half dozen rounds went to the champion. What was left Maguire was entitled to. In spite of Britton's mastery over the Williamsport lad at the art of boxing, Maguire was the aggressor most of the way. Bill Rolfe of San Francisco beat Joe Augalis of this city in the semi-windup, which went the limit.

Oak Pk. Relay Team Wins Northwestern U. Contest

Oak Park won the interscholastic quarter mile relay which was held at an added attraction to the annual Northwestern university circus at Patten gym last night. Deerfield was second, Senn third, and Evanston fourth. The time was 1:19. About ten Chicago and Suburban schools competed.

POPULARIZING OF BOXING LEAVES ILLINOIS IN COLD

State After State Gives Approval to Sport.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Is the sport of boxing on the uplift? What a question to ask!

While we "cheated" followers of the sport in the state of Illinois must sit back and accept substitutes for the glove sport, or else pay the "hard" fare demanded of us by the common carriers to see fistic contests in some other state, things, and big things, too, are being done in other parts of the country, which show how the pendulum is swinging in favor of the ring game.

Illinois Out in Cold.

It is no fault of the fans, it is no fault of the boxers, but of far greater moment, it is no fault of the legislature which did its part in the execution of the work which make boxing legal if.

There we run plumb into that little two lettered word which is productive of greater failure than any one syllabled proposition we know of. But we just can't get away from Mr. It, for "he" must be used prominently in explaining why we can't sit at the ringside and see 'em go. IF Gov. Lowden of Illinois had signed the bill passed by both the senate and the house in the state capital at Springfield, we would have boxing today. But Gov. Lowden exercised his power of veto so Illinois is out in the cold as a boxing proposition. Out in the cold is right.

How Other States Line Up.

Now for the gravy. Smeared sweetly over the followers of boxing in Wisconsin, in Michigan, in New Jersey, and in other states, we find it, to say nothing of the promised treat in the states of New York and Kentucky. Then, too, we may graze on other states where the sport isn't legal, but where it is "tolerated" under so-called city supervision, and that brings in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and others. Bouts under city oversight are tried now and then in Illinois, but the success of such ventures depends mostly on how well the promoters are able to "get away with it."

PROGRESS OF BOXING IN OTHER STATES; ILLINOIS LONESOME

New York passed the Walker bill permitting fifteen round bouts to decisions, which is now in the hands of Gov. Smith awaiting signature. This measure is sponsored by the army, navy, and civilian boxing board.

Kentucky passed a bill allowing ten round no decision contests. This bill is in the hands of Gov. Morrow for his signature.

New Jersey, which three years ago passed a bill permitting eight round no-decision bouts with eight ounce gloves, has found the sport so popular that legislation has been enacted increasing the limit of contests from eight to twelve rounds. Gov. Edwards immediately signed this measure.

Philadelphia, one of the big cities of the country in which boxing under city supervision is allowed, has increased the limit on bouts from six to eight rounds.

Tribune Decisions

Decisions of The Tribune fight representatives are:

At Lawrence, Mass.—Jimmy Wilde knocked out Bobby Dyson [1].

At Philadelphia—Jack Britton beat Frankie McGuire [6].

At Buffalo—Chip Davis beat Jack Sharkey [10].

GEORGES TO EARN $200,000 IN U. S.

New York, May 1.—[Special.]—Georges Carpentier will have no reason to regret his trip to America if he does not get into the ring with Jack Dempsey. Without ever pulling on a fighting glove Georges will earn during the next few months more than twice as much as he earned during his entire ring career in Europe. Before Georges quit the ring in 1914 to help defend his country, Carpentier earned a little more than $100,000. In 1909 he earned the paltry sum of $185; in 1910, $460; in 1911, $6,600; in 1912, $35,000; in 1913, $44,000, and in 1914, $32,000.

WILDE KNOCKS DYSON THROUGH ROPES FOR KAYO

Flyweight Champ Scores Win in 2 1-3 Minutes.

Lawrence, Mass., May 1.—It took Jimmy Wilde of England, flyweight champion of the world, just two minutes and twenty seconds of the first round of their scheduled twelve round battle, to knock out Bobby Dyson of New Bedford, the New England bantamweight champion, this afternoon.

A few seconds before the final smash, the British sensation sent Dyson to the canvas with a left hook. Bobby took his time coming up, taking the count of nine, while Wilde coolly stood off a short distance and waited. Wilde immediately attacked, shooting a slashing right to Dyson's chin and a lightning left hook to the body. Dyson went through the ropes and was counted out.

Mrs. Wilde sat at the ringside. Jimmy kissed her just before he stepped into the ring. When the battle was over, he turned at once to her and waved his hand.

Fifteen thousand fans jammed into the arena for the contest, which was under the auspices of the Atlas A. A. Both boys weighed in at 116 pounds ringside.

Deerfield Track Squad Beats Joliet, 108 to 14

Winning firsts in thirteen of the fourteen events and making a clean sweep of all three places in five, Deerfield High school athletes defeated Joliet, 108 to 14, in a dual meet at Highland Park yesterday. Dave Kimball of Deerfield led the field in individual honors, amassing 23 points, winning four firsts and taking second in the javelin throw. Lauridsen of Deerfield collected 14 points and McIlwain 12.

Tom Milton, Speed King, Stops Off to See Friends

Tommy Milton, whose record breaking performances on the Daytona Beach track at Daytona, Fla., last Sunday stamped him as the world's speed king, stopped off in Chicago yesterday on his way to St. Paul.

Charlie Postl Has Gone Over the Top

They Are Called Doe Boy Vacuum Rubber Heels

These heels resemble the Doe Boys in so many ways that there is, perhaps, no other word or term which expresses the qualities of our heels so completely and so thoroly.

Doe Boy Rubber Heels are made of live, active, springy rubber—and the Doe Boys come from the livest, most active and most capable race in all the world.

While the rubber compound is springy and resilient, it is nevertheless, strong and durable. As strong in comparison as the mighty millions who went "over there," and as durable as those who "carried on" at the front.

As our safety as a nation, and your safety as an individual, depended on the Doe Boys, so your safety in walking depends on Doe Boy Vacuum Rubber Heels. They won't slip. They can't slip. The vacuum ringed surface won't let them slip.

Doe Boy Rubber Heels are shock absorbers of the jars and jolts of walking on hard pavements—just as the Doe Boys absorbed the shocks and jolts of the enemy's bayonets and screaming shell fire.

So there is really no other term which could cover the qualities of our heel so completely.

Have your shoe repair man put a pair on your shoes today. If he does not have them he will get them for you. Made in all sizes of black and tan for men, women and children. Don't accept a substitute. For your own safety insist on Doe Boys.

VARDON AND RAY PLANNING TOUR OF U. S. COURSES

English Experts to Come Here About July 20.

BY JOE DAVIS.

William M. Burke of the Burke Golf company of Newark, O., a visitor in Chicago last week, brought authoritative news regarding the visit of Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, British professionals.

HARRY VARDON.

The Burke company represents Vardon on this side of the water and is making arrangements for the tour. The Englishmen will sail from Liverpool the second week in July and expect to arrive about July 20. They will start playing exhibition matches in the east and then go west to compete in the national open championship, which will finish Aug. 13.

Now Planning Schedule.

Then they will play exhibitions through the middle west and south under the management of Mr. Burke or Mr. W. C. Sherwood, Newark, O. Clubs desiring dates are requested to communicate with these men.

Belmont and Indian Hill were forced to postpone the formal start of their 1920 golf schedules yesterday on account of the condition of the courses.

Ready at Bob o' Link.

Bob o' Link Country club plans to start its formal schedule next Saturday. Following the golf events there will be a "get-together" dinner and party at the clubhouse.

The open professional tournament which was to have been held on the West Baden Springs hotel golf course April 21-22 will be played Tuesday and Wednesday, May 25-26.

Beverly Concert Today.

Beverly Country club will stage the third of its series of week-end concerts this afternoon at the clubhouse. Several interesting numbers are on the program.

No inconvenience was encountered at any of the country clubs as a result of the threatened strike of the waiters. The managements accepted limited reservations, and some of these were provisional.

Canadians Called to Play on Club's Lacrosse Team

A meeting to organize a lacrosse team to represent the Canadian club in the field this year will be held in the clubrooms at 106 West Monroe street tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

WOODS AND WATERS

BY LARRY ST. JOHN.

WISCONSIN FISHING LAWS.

THIS is the time of year when many a winter weary angler permits his thoughts to wander to some wilderness lake or wooded stream in beautiful Wisconsin. Already the trout season is on and those who pursue the black bass, muskellunge and others of the pike tribe, are putting on their war paint.

Wisconsin laws are not always what they seem and contain not a few complications and exceptions, easily overlooked. Some of these will be pointed out as we go along, but every angler, resident or nonresident, who fishes Wisconsin waters should get the complete fish laws from the conservation commission at Madison, and study them carefully.

The open seasons in Wisconsin are: Trout of any variety, except lake trout, May 1 to Aug. 31; large and small mouthed black bass, July 1 to March 1; white bass, June 1 to March 1; rock bass, June 1 to March 1; pike, pickerel, muskellunge, catfish, June 1 to March 1. Exceptions: Black bass on the Mississippi river, June 15 to March 1; no closed season on white bass in Big Wolf river from Lake Poygan to New London; no closed season on rock bass in Green Lake county. There are no closed seasons on strawberry bass, calico bass, silver bass or crappies nor on sunfish except in counties bordering on the Mississippi river, June 1 to March 1; perch are also unprotected except in counties bordering on the Mississippi and in lakes Winnebago, Butte des Morts and Poygan, Fox river and Wolf river, and tributary streams within Winnebago county, June 1 to March 1.

Size and daily limits are: Black bass, 10 inches, 10 per day; trout, 7 inches, 35 per day; white bass, 7 inches, no daily limit; rock bass, 6 inches, 30 per day; pike, 13 inches, 10 per day; pickerel, 16 inches, 15 per day; muskellunge, 24 inches, 2 per day; catfish, 15 inches, 10 per day.

Exceptions: Perch in Lake Kegonsa, Dane county, 25 per day; muskellunge in Vilas county, 30 inches or 6 pounds round weight; in Lake Wisconsin, pickerel, 13 inches, 10 per day; wall eye pike, 16 inches, 10 per day; black bass, 12 inches, 10 per day. Daily mixed bag on blue gills, crappie and sunfish of 50 fish.

Licenses.

Any male not a resident of Wisconsin must have a nonresident fishing license to fish in the inland waters of the state. There are two forms of nonresident licenses. One, costing $3, permits the holder to take all variety of fishes during the open season; the other, which costs $2, permits the taking of all fishes except trout.

Transportation of Fish.

Each nonresident license has three coupons and one of these must be attached to every package of fish shipped from the state. The nonresident may ship from the state not more than one package containing not more than twenty pounds of game fish, other than trout, but not more than one day's legal catch, or in lieu thereof not more than two fish of any weight. Shipments must not be made oftener than every seven days; nonresident females over 16 years, who wish to ship fish may buy nonresident fishing license for the purpose. One shipment only, containing not over twenty pounds of lake trout, or thirty-five other trout, may be taken from the state when accompanied by owner. In other words, trout may not be shipped.

Minnows.

In inland waters minnow seines must not exceed forty feet in length nor five feet in depth; minnow dip nets must not be more than six feet in diameter. Minnows must not be seined or netted in any trout stream unless the work is supervised by a warden. It is unlawful to transport within the state of Wisconsin any live carp or dogfish fry.

Unlawful Fishing Methods.

The laws of Wisconsin prohibit the use of snag lines, unlicensed set lines, explosives, chemicals to kill or stupefy fish or medicated bait of any kind. It is unlawful to take any kinds of fish from a trout stream during the closed season on trout; fishing within 500 feet below any dam, lock or fishway in Burnett, Washburn, Sawyer, Oneida, Florence, Vilas, Iron, Ashland, Bayfield, Douglas counties, or north of townships 35 in Price and Forest counties is unlawful. It is illegal to capture or have in possession any crab or crawfish between the first day of March and the succeeding first day of July.

Irving Park Rifle Marksmen Capture First Illinois Honors

Teams belonging to the Chicago Rifle association made an excellent showing in the annual national civilian small bore indoor tournament conducted from Washington, according to returns for the ten rounds of that shoot. Results in the national shoot also were computed for the state championship of Illinois, there being thirteen teams entered from this commonwealth, and the Irving Park club of this city captured the state honors.

This team shot a team aggregate of 9,883 of a possible 10,000 points. Rogers Park of this city was second for the state title with 9,828. T. G. Lively, captain of Irving Park, was high individual for the state with 1,988 of the possible 2,000 score, J. B. Sutherlund, the Rogers Park captain, being second with 1,983.

Mark to New Haven.

The national record was shattered by the Quinnipiac Rifle club of New Haven, Conn., with 9,991, having only nine misses in ten weeks of shooting for 10,000. This record was never before approached in any such competition. For the last four weeks the New Haven club shot 1,000 team marks.

Illinois made a fine record for participation in the national tourney, the object of which is preparedness in handling firearms. Of 142 rifle teams in the nation wide shoot the thirteen from this state represented 9.2 per cent, and Chicago's nine clubs were 6.3 per cent of the total. Joliet entered three teams and Evanston one.

"Perfects" by Sutherlund.

One of the features of the local end of the national and state shooting was the performance of Sutherlund of Rogers Park, who ran four successive perfect 200 scores in succession.

Following are the final aggregates of all the Illinois club teams, which competed in the national event:

Irving Park [Chicago], 9,883; Rogers Park [Chicago], 9,828; Commonwealth-Edison [Chicago], 9,820; Centennial [Chicago], 9,817; Chicago R. C., 9,814; University of Chicago No. 1, 9,764; Joliet No. 1, 9,763; Hawthorne [Chicago], 9,738; Ridgeville [Evanston], 9,620; Joliet No. 2, 9,598; Chicago Engineers, 9,472; Joliet No. 3, 9,463; University of Chicago No. 2, 9,447.

CLASS YACHTING AGAIN FEATURE OF LOCAL CLUBS

A revival of class racing among Chicago yachts this summer has been made possible by members of the Jackson Park Yacht club, who have assembled four "R" sloops at the south side harbor. These boats are Chaperon, Virginia, Grey Jacket, and Jackson Park If.

The size of these sloops is admirable for races of all lengths. They are not quite as large as the famous "P" boats, which included Intrepid, Michicago, Valiant, Olympian, and Mavourneen, but are larger than the "R" or raceabout craft. They are exceptionally stanch and capable of sailing the Chicago-Mackinac course with absolute safety and slight discomfort to their crews.

Moorings are being set in both north and south side park harbors. Many owners are planning to tie up at their summer stations this week. Local boat yards are humming.

LATE last night the Board of Experts was kept busy putting the official tag on cars that passed 100% inspection.

Today these splendid values stand ready for your selection.

Among these very special automobiles are Touring Cars, Roadsters, Sport Models, Coupes, Sedans, Limousines, Custom built jobs; 4-6-8 and 12 cylinder models.

Also Trucks and Commercial Cars.

EXHIBITS will be changed as rapidly as cars are sold.

The "pick" and "cream" are here now—awaiting your selection.

Don't delay—let one of the experts in attendance help you to a conclusion.

You can't go wrong—the inspection tag is your guide—your guarantee of price and value.

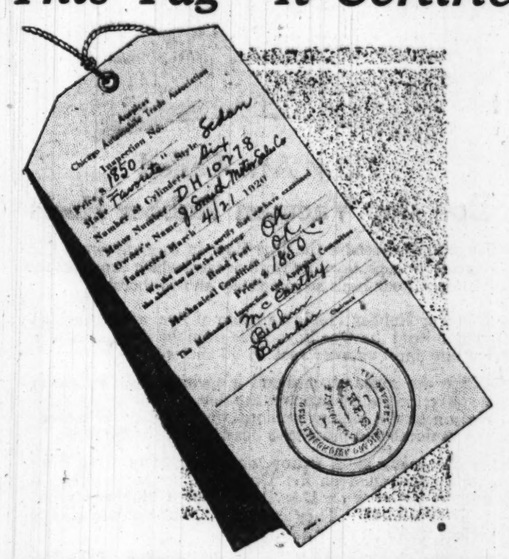
Come early TODAY—your car is here!

Look for This Tag—It Certifies the Car

IDENTIFICATION

Each car, as it passes inspection, will have sealed on it, in a conspicuous place, the Inspection Card shown opposite. The car thus certified has measured up to all requirements.

It indicates to the buyer that the Board of Experts has declared it mechanically right and priced right. The price will also be shown very plainly. You can't go wrong and you pick your car by an expert's judgment.



INSPECTION

All cars must pass the rigid inspection of a Board of Experts. Competent judges, selected for their known mechanical ability and integrity by the Chicago Auto Trade Association. They determine the price and adjudge the mechanical condition of each car.

Only cars that meet the high standards the experts set are allowed to be put on sale.

AS WOOD BOOSTER GOV. ALLEN IS ONE FINE 'DARK HORSE'

Kansan Makes Big Noise with Industrial Court.

This is the fifteenth in Mr. Evans' series of sketches of the presidential possibilities.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Ever and anon these nervous days every G. O. P. candidate pricks up his ears and stretches a neck toward the "dark horse" paddock whence issues a noise suggestive of Sousa.

It sounds like the big parade, but it's simply Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas on his way with a drum no other candidate can play on, and that's the Kansas Industrial court act. He has been thumping it up and down the country, before legislatures and chambers of commerce, and he's developed into such a virtuoso that he makes the old tympanum sound like a whole brass band.

Some of the candidates have a vague suspicion that the public is rather fed up on budget solos on the piccolo and tax reforms on the saxophone—they fear popular favor, always fickle, may follow the drummer.

All Wrong, Says Labor.

At Allen's heels troop Samuel Gompers and his labor chieftains; each has thrown away his horn and got a hammer. Allen, they say, is wrong, all wrong in his industrial program; the stuff he is trying out in Kansas blew up years ago in New Zealand and Australia, and, besides, it is a side swipe at the palladium of American liberties or something.

Without pausing to weigh the merits of Allen's industrial court law it may be remarked that at any rate it is the cause of much fine advertising, which is more precious than rubies at this political pass, although, of course, than such an idea nothing is further from Allen's thought.

The governor is not a candidate, but is out campaigning for Gen. Leonard Wood.

"Not Evan a Bay Horse."

"A dark horse?" said Allen on the train the other night. "Why, I'm not even a bay. I'm for Wood, from start to finish."

But in Kansas, as elsewhere, many of the prognosticators forecast the coming convention in its early balloting stages as a series of explosions in which Wood, Lowden and Johnson will all blow up with a bang, leaving an open track for a dark horse. The friends of the governor are saying if it is found impossible to nominate Wood, Allen will be the natural heir to the Wood strength as a nucleus.

They take much cheer from the reflection that Garfield, who was nominated to break a deadlock, went into the convention as manager of another man's candidacy. The Johnson men, too, they argue, would naturally line up behind Allen, who was a pillar of the Moose party, while the eastern conservatives could readily rally around the Kansan if he came within striking distance of the ticket.

From Stand Pat to Mooser.

Allen is an editor and he was born in Pennsylvania fifty-two years ago. He owns the Wichita Beacon and he was elected governor of Kansas while in France in the Y. M. C. A. service with the overseas forces. He first broke into politics as a candidate for congress, running as a "stand pat" against Charles Scott, a "boss buster" some dozen years ago, the "boss buster" winning.

Allen became secretary to Gov. Stanley, and he broke into the "big circuit" politics in 1912, a year which spelled opportunity for many a man. Allen was a leader of the Kansas delegates to the Republican convention that year, and he was a floor leader of the Roosevelt forces; one of the hardest hitters among the Moose. On the last day of the convention he made the speech interpreting the position of the Progressives, following it by reading Col. Roosevelt's personal message, and then walked out with the rest of the Moose.

In the Progressive national convention in August that year he made a speech seconding the nomination of Roosevelt. He served as a hard campaigner, a bearcat on the stump, and with William Allen White sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers," all over the west.

In 1914 he ran as a Progressive for governor, but was beaten by Arthur Capper, Republican. He campaigned for Hughes in 1916, and just before the armistice in 1918 he was elected governor while in the "Y" in France. He had gone into the Red Cross when we entered the war and had made a record by establishing the Red Cross home communication service, the bureau which kept the soldiers in touch with the home folks.

He cut red tape right and left to get the bureau going, and then went into the Y. M. C. A. and was with the soldiers from Kansas and Missouri in the Vosges and the Argonne.

Gov. Allen's industrial court act follows other ventures in governmental innovations. Soon after he went to Wichita. Allen started a campaign which put the city under the commission form of government. Later becoming interested in the city manager plan as an improvement over the commission form, he led the fight for that, and now Wichita is one of the few American cities employing the city manager method of government. On a single contract the city made a saving of ten times the manager's salary, due to the working of the new régime.

Ran Mines During Strike.

The immediate spur for the enactment of the industrial court law came from the coal strike in November, during which the governor operated the "strip" mines by volunteers.

"It's just a natural evolution," said the governor on the train. "It's the application to industry of processes we have applied to other phases of social relationship. In the beginnings of law people settled private disputes by fighting it out. The public, through the law, intervened, and took charge of criminal prosecutions.

Then civil courts were established to take charge of disputes over property. Each time there was objection as the people said their liberties were being infringed upon. Now labor and capital have so developed that strikes and lockouts no longer are in the realm of private dispute, but vitally affect the public.

Third Adjudication Division.

"Therefore the public must take charge, just as it did in instituting criminal and civil courts. Thus a third great division of adjudication is erected, that of industrial relations. Where did I get the idea? Oh, this was something on which I had been studying for years."

Allen is rather short and stocky, with a ready manner and an infectious smile, and he talks as one who is much in earnest. He has always been a fighter.

The governor is trying to bring the Kansas constitution up to date with two amendments to be voted on next election—one for a change in tax laws, the other to permit the state to lend money from the school fund to tenants who wish to own farms. "Plant the farmer in the soil," is one of his hobbies, and he is for a state of home owners. The governor is a Methodist.

W. B. RIDGELY OF SPRINGFIELD DIES IN THE EAST

Fails to Rally After an Operation.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—[Special.]—William Barrett Ridgely, of Springfield, Ill., and Washington, former controller of the currency, died early today at Union Protestant infirmary, Baltimore, death coming from sudden complications following an operation.

Mr. Ridgely was born in Springfield, Ill., July 19, 1858. He was the son of Charles and Jane M. [Barrett] Ridgely. He attended the public schools in Springfield, and was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnical institute in 1879. He received the degree of civil engineer.

Married Senator Cullom's Daughter.

In 1882 he married Ella M. Cullom, daughter of the late Senator Shelby Moore Cullom of Illinois. His wife died in June, 1902, and he married Kate A. Deering of this city, Dec. 30, 1905.

He was engaged in mining, manufacturing and banking in Springfield until May 1, 1899. He then became secretary and vice president of the Republic Iron and Steel company, serving in that capacity from 1899 to 1901. In 1901 he was appointed controller of the currency, which position he held for seven years. Mr. Ridgely was a supporter of the Republican party.

Member of Many Clubs.

He was a member of the Iron and Steel Institute of Great Britain, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He was a member of several clubs in Chicago, New York and Springfield, and was a member of the Metropolitan club and the Chevy Chase club of this city.

His wife and several members of the family were at the bedside at the time of his death. Arrangements were made to take the body to Springfield for burial.

Jews Plan Jubilation Over Winning Palestine as Home

A meeting of the managing committee of the Palestine Restoration fund drive will be held this morning at the Hotel Sherman to discuss plans for a jubilation to be held over the assurance that Palestine is now a homeland for the Jews.

Arrangements will also be made for the participation of the Jews of Chicago in a special convention to be held in New York, May 9 and 10, to arrange to meet the new conditions brought about by the recognition of the British mandate.

The drive for funds for the restoration of Palestine will end May 11, and it is hoped the Illinois quota of $1,000,000 will be raised.

Lumber and Coal BUSINESS FOR SALE

The best Lumber and Coal retail business of Rockford, Ill., is for sale at a price much less than actual value. Good will is not included in this price. Buildings, which are in excellent physical condition, are figured away down. The location of the business is the very best.

This is a genuine bargain, and the opportunity, we believe, is the greatest of its kind that will be offered in Illinois this year. Sickness in the family is the only reason for selling. Terms are liberal. A part payment with sound security is all we require. Requires around $150,000 investment.

THE FRANKLIN CAR

Its Reversal of Ordinary Motoring Principles Has Revolutionized Performance Standards

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% slower yearly depreciation
(National Averages)

THE above combination of results is not possible by cheap methods. That knowledge is the reason for Franklin owner confidence.

Another big element in Franklin owner satisfaction is comfort. Comfort cannot be expressed in figures, like economy, but it can be demonstrated just as positively.

It is easy to show that a Franklin owner can travel farther in a day than his neighbor without fatigue, and more days in the year without trouble.

CHURCH WORLD FUND DRIVE IS CONTINUED WEEK

BY THE REV. F. L. GRATIOT.

The financial campaign of the interchurch world movement, which was to have closed today, has been continued for another week. This is for the purpose, it was announced, of completing the "friendly citizens'" division campaign, which did not get under way last week.

The interchurch goal is $366,777,572 for the 1920 budget. Incomplete reports show about $150,000,000 subscribed to date. It is believed the amount is much larger, as many churches will not report until their full quotas have been reached.

Busy Collecting Pledges.

"For the most part the week has been given up to the collection of pledges from church members," said R. D. Jenkins, Chicago director, yesterday. "The quota for those not directly connected with churches—the 'friendly citizens'—is fully half the total in the Chicago district. This division has hardly been touched upon because workers were so busy rounding up church members."

It is announced that any who are overlooked by the canvassers may send their contributions or pledges to James B. Forgan, treasurer Interchurch World movement, care the First National bank, Chicago.

Million Mark Passed.

The Chicago total reached the million dollar mark yesterday. The total quota for Chicago is $4,802,153, of which $2,650,000 is expected from the "friendly citizens."

The fund in Illinois during the day went to a total of $3,000,000.

Today's reports are expected to show a great increase, as many workers will make their first statements for the week.

Lyman L. Pierce, director general of the campaign, gave a statement of the national situation yesterday.

"Every indication points to the most marvelous advance ever made by the churches," he said. "Early reports from places which seemed the least hopeful give an indication of what to expect. There is a feeling of exhilaration at headquarters at what God has wrought. We are actutally working together for the world again, as we were in the war."

RUSSIAN SCIENTIST DIES.

MOSCOW, April 29.—The death is announced of K. A. Timiriasefi, the Rusian scientist. He was 40 years old.

NEWSBOY GIVES MITE

George Dubiltch, a 12 year old newsboy, yesterday contributed a day's earnings, 45 cents, to the Chicago fund of the Interchurch World Movement.

GEORGE DUBILTCH.

He is a protégé of the Wabash Avenue Community house, which the Methodist church maintains at Fourteenth street and Wabash avenue.

"Our Sunday school superintendent asked us to help make Sunday schools all over the world. I can make 45 cents every night, here is one night's pay for the interchurch world movement."

The Rev. Robert Kleiber of the Lawler Avenue United Brethren church announced he had received a contribution of $100 from a Jewish merchant.

START CLEANUP OF LONG MURDER DOCKET MONDAY

The business of trying 135 Chicago murder cases, some of them pending since 1913, will start in earnest tomorrow morning. Three trials will commence before judges especially assigned to Criminal court to clean up the murder dockets.

The fight for speedier and more certain punishment of murderers, which the Chicago crime commission has carried on for a long time, brought results this week when Chief Justice Theodore Brentano and Judge Marcus Kavanagh of the Superior court and Judges Kickham Scanlan and George F. Barrett of the Circuit court were assigned to hear nothing but murder cases until the docket is cleared.

Tomorrow James Martin, under indictment for murder since 1915, will be arraigned before Judge Kavanagh. Thomas Flannigan, facing a murder indictment since 1913, will be brought before Judge Barrett. Eva S. Shaver, against whom indictments on three charges were returned in 1914 and 1915, will go to trial before Judge Brentano.

The judges will sit in the county building, as there is room for only one more judge in the Criminal Court building.

LEGION NOTES

The 1st Division auxiliary, No. 1, A. E. F., will hold all future meetings in the Knights of Columbus hall, 165 West Madison street, instead of the county building. The meeting night also has been changed—from Tuesday to Thursday. The next meeting will be Thursday, May 6. The auxiliary plans to make it more of a social occasion than one of business.

Walter S. Poague post, No. 161, has adopted resolutions commending the stand of Congressman Henry T. Rainey in favor of raising funds for paying ex-service men a bonus by a retroactive excess profits tax.

Rosinia Quits as Hoyne Aid to Form Partnership

Assistant State's Attorney Michael F. Rosinia, assigned to the Court of Domestic Relations, yesterday sent his resignation to State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. Mr. Rosinia has been connected with the state's attorney's office for five years. He was assigned first to the Morals court and has been for the last four years in the Domestic Relations court. He will form a partnership with Stephen A. Malato.

Investigate Nokol before you buy next winter's fuel for your home

No matter how cold it is outside, Nokol will maintain an even temperature at all hours of the day and night.

Nokol can be readily installed in most any steam or hot water boiler or hot air furnace with out alteration.

The greatest problem in home heating is uniform temperature. Nokol solves it

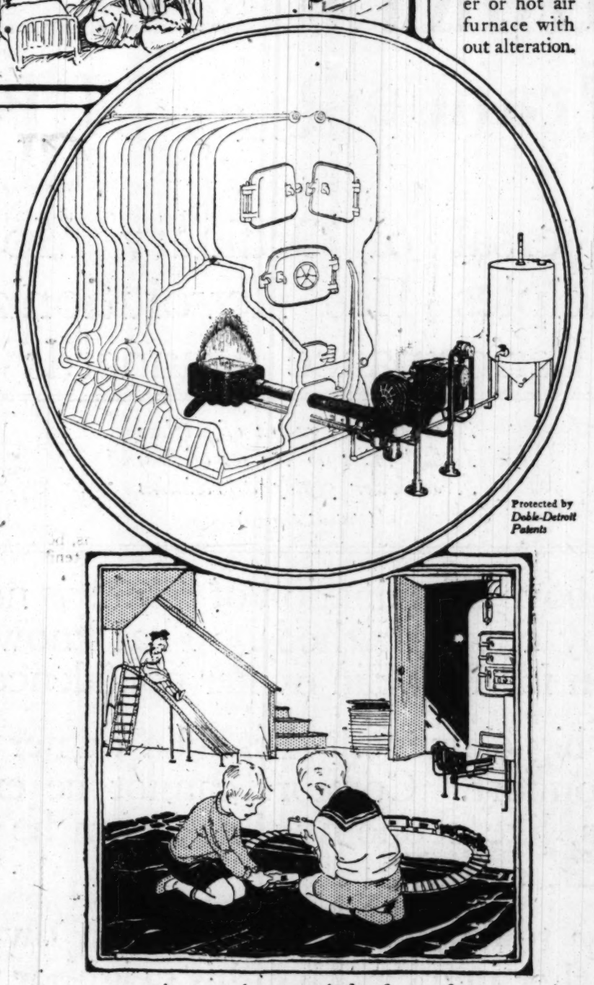
ONE of the best things about Nokol in your furnace is that it heats only as heat is needed. Take, for example, the usual Spring day—not the kind we've had lately; the kind we ought to have; gets pretty warm by 10 a.m., and stays warm until, say, 4:30 or 5 p.m.

You don't need any fire during the day; but you have to keep the coal fire going, as low as possible; you're lucky if it doesn't go out. The house is too warm; you open windows and doors; burning up fuel all the time that you'd like to save, for heat you don't need.

With Nokol, you have none of that. When the house gets warm in the morning, Nokol doesn't burn at all. When the temperature begins to fall, it burns; you don't have to look after it; it works automatically. It keeps the house at an even temperature, all the time, no matter how cold it may be outdoors. It is modern.

Price, $325, f. o. b. Chicago. Orders placed now for Nokol will secure favorable delivery date.

There are some places, particularly in suburban communities, where dealers have not been appointed. In such places, to the right kind of men, we offer an attractive opportunity.



Protected by Dobb-Detroit Patents

—then your basement is free forever from dust, soot, dirt and ashes; you may even turn your old coal-bin into a playroom.

CHURCHMEN OPEN BIG CONFERENCE BY LIQUOR PLEA

Des Moines, Ia., May 1.—[Special.]—Cheering rocked the coliseum today when the Methodist general conference adopted a resolution calling upon the national conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties to declare for the enforcement of the national prohibition amendment. The resolution was presented by William H. Anderson, superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon league, and a delegate to the conference. It was adopted unanimously.

The resolution alleged "a flagrant attempt by and in behalf of the brewers to nullify the prohibition amendment," and "an effort to bring back the saloon by using beer of low alcoholic content as the entering wedge." It urges a plank in each party platform declaring not only for obedience to and enforcement of the law, but also "recognizing that prohibition is now the settled policy of this nation."

Investigate Church Boards.

Dr. E. P. Dennet of California was the author of another resolution adopted today calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the expenditures connected with the work of the various church boards.

Dr. Edmund M. Mills of Syracuse, N. Y., acting secretary, was elected permanent secretary when the general conference session opened. He received 496 votes, 100 more than were necessary to elect. Dr. R. J. Wade of Chicago, one of the nominees, withdrew before the balloting began.

Promptly at 10 o'clock Bishop Joseph Berry of Philadelphia, ranking bishop, called the great assembly together. Practically all of the delegates were present and several hundred spectators sat in the balcony.

Pleads for "World" Action.

"The urgent needs of a whole world will tax our powers to the utmost," said the high church man in a brief introductory address. "We must remember that we are not simply an American church but a world organization, and that the legislation framed here must be with a view of fitting the needs of Europe, Asia, and Africa. We are face to face with issues upon which we do not agree. Pray that we may have patience and charity to give unselfish service."

Bishop Earl Cranston followed with a prayer, after which the apostles' creed was repeated in unison but not in the same tongue. A feature was scripture reading by the Rev. G. L. Lorenzo of Northwest India conference and by the Rev. W. P. Cohen of north China, both men garbed in native costume.

Here's a drink with that good old real-beer taste

Buck has it! That satisfying flavor you've missed. And you know it the minute you taste it!

Take it from me: I've tried 'em all; as fast as they came out. But the taste wasn't right.

Then I tried Buck. The very first bottle sold me. It hit the spot with that same good old flavor I had missed so long.

Buck is made from finest grains—corn, rice and barley—with good old hops to give that real-beer flavor. You'll like it! It will tone you up and quench your thirst.

Get some today. Have a case sent home and you'll thank me for tipping you off to a real drink.

THE AMAZING HISTORY

Our Army Wrote in France

ALL THE OVERSEAS ISSUES OF

The Stars and Stripes

BOUND IN ONE BEAUTIFUL DE LUXE VOLUME

The One Priceless Souvenir of the Great War That You Will Enjoy Above All Others

$812.50 Paid for Single Copy

The first sixteen single copies of The Stars and Stripes to reach the U. S. from France were auctioned off in New York upon arrival and were eagerly snapped up at an average of $812.50 each.

History Written While the Guns Were Popping

The Bound Volume of The Stars and Stripes is a history of a war written while the guns were being fired and the outcome in doubt. A history written by the soldiers themselves, most of whom had no thought of being writers. A history devoid of fiction, a chronicle of actualities.

Rare Copies Reproduced in the Bound Volume

There are editions in this Bound Volume of The Stars and Stripes which never reached the United States because they went down with a submarined ship, making it a rare and priceless volume.

Overseas Issues Reproduced Exactly as Published in France

There are less than a dozen complete files of the original issues in existence, but the reproduction of the 71 issues published from Feb. 8, 1918, to June 13, 1919, cannot be distinguished from the originals.

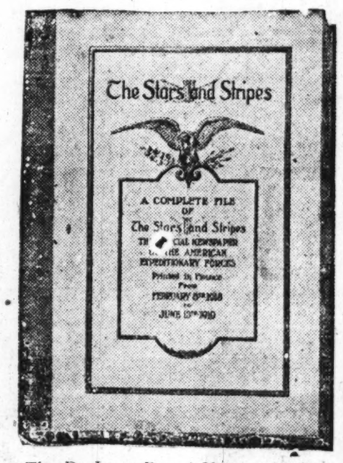
$500 Paid for One Issue to Complete File for Famous Library

A New York collector of rare books paid $500.00 for one of the original issues of The Stars and Stripes to complete his file. This file is carefully preserved in one of the most famous private libraries in New York City. The Bound Volume now offered is complete in every detail.

YOU remember reading in the home papers how they squealed "Kamerad" when the doughboys got into action with their fire-spitting babies? They did sure clean them up in Chateau-Thierry, and again in that nest of German machine guns planted everywhere in the Argonne forest. But the home papers did not carry half the news of these great battles. Neither does any history of the great war heretofore published give the actual happenings as they happened.

The Bound Volume of The Stars and Stripes, the only real American history of the Great War, written by the men who actually did the fighting, is just now off the press. It is the largest historical record ever published and contains all of the intimate and authentic thrilling experiences and sayings of the officers and men of the A. E. F. Matter which could not possibly be assembled by any organization of writers outside of the A. E. F. It is a book that should be in every American home.

The Bound Volume of The Stars and Stripes is the greatest collection of intimate war writings—done on the spot, at the time things happened—ever published. It will give you a tremendous advantage when discussing leading historic events of the war, it being a veritable reference book of happenings on the firing line and back of the lines. All the best war poetry, humor and pathos has been preserved.



The De Luxe Bound Volume of Overseas issues of The Stars and Stripes, Official Newspaper of the A. E. F. Size 18½ by 24 inches—71 separate issues, 568 pages of solid war history. Written by our army for our army. To the men who were there it is a priceless souvenir. To those whose sons were there, no book could be prized more highly. The most remarkable war record ever published.

Send No Money

You can examine the complete bound volume of the Overseas Stars and Stripes before you pay a cent. Simply mail the coupon and your copy will be sent immediately. If you are satisfied you may pay the expressman and keep this great souvenir of the war, otherwise return it and you will not be out any money. Don't send any money in advance; just mail the coupon.

These shoes are best quality leather, and were purchased in the open market during the summer of 1918 before the price of leather started on its sensational rise and when the authorities at this Station decided to purchase all the shoes they could provided they came up to Government specifications.

They must now be sold at a sacrifice as they are not Regulation Navy pattern.

They are a wonderful bargain when you consider the prices now asked for shoes and the fact they have passed Navy inspectors.

COLOR

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

A Breathless Tale of a Man and a Girl—and a "Yellow Streak" That Faded

IT was a sufficiently sinister insult that my young friend and confrère, Neil Kerry, should have been stricken with influenza aboard the train while on his way to Chicago to address a medical committee detailed to report upon the disease. His case was not a serious one in itself, but to the insult of its attack there was added a mortal injury of rendering him hors de combat in his particular field of service.

This was to some extent Neil's own fault, as on being seized by the warning malaise on the flyer, he had tried to abort the attack by free doses of alleged whisky furnished him by the porter at a price even more prohibitive than the national measure which had made Neil's paying it a necessity. Perhaps it may have impaired the activity of the flu microbes, but Neil lost all interest in their offensive on discovering the following day that there was a large round blur in the axis of vision of both eyes, and that neither of them reacted at all to color.

"Wood alcohol," said the oculist to whom he addressed himself. "I've had a number of such cases recently. Some recover and some do not, depending on the degree. Yours is pretty serious. You are not going blind, but it's an even chance whether or not you get back your color sense. If you begin to recover it within the next few weeks you may count on a cure. Otherwise it is doubtful."

Neil had not begun to recover it at all a month later when he came in to see me. He was in a state of such profound depression that I was alarmed. Although a graduate of medicine he had never practiced, but devoted himself from the start to bacteriology, in which during the last five years he had achieved very distinguished recognition.

"I'm a gone goose, doctor," said he. "A microscopist with no color vision is about as much use as a gas engine without a spark. A green tree looks the palest shade of yellow and the blue field of the national ensign looks black, and a slide of microbes stained carmine or methylene blue doesn't look like anything at all. I can't distinguish them."

Neil, in a word, found himself suddenly deprived of that part of a special sense which in his line of research was of incalculable value to stricken humanity and to himself. Not only was he utterly devoted to his research work, but also possessed of a burning ambition to effect the conquest of the most recent eruption of an ancient plague. He had believed himself standing on the threshold of this, and with the sanguine eyes of youth began to picture himself stepping thence to a niche in the Hall of Fame on the tier of Lister and Pasteur and Kitisato.

"Don't despair, my boy," said I. "Color vision is a very subtle thing and so is the action of wood alcohol. Prostration resulting from the flu may delay the recovery for some time, but you are of the fibrous type and will surely pull out of it. Try to concentrate on building up your general health."

He promised to do his best to follow this advice and left that afternoon on the Bar Harbor express to join his family, rich folk and socially prominent. I next heard from him indirectly and most unpleasantly though from a charming source. This was at Bar Harbor, where I had stopped over for a brief visit with some friends en route for the Chain Lakes club in Canada, of which I am the founder and have still the honor to be president.

Here I learned to my pain and surprise that Neil and Nancy Lovell had broken their engagement and that he had gone on to the Chain Lakes club. I looked up Nancy and asked her about it. She is a graduate of my infant class of patients and a walking advertisement for the soundness of my hatred of medicines. It struck me immediately, however, that in such a respect she was not for the moment at par.

"It's just like that live wire, Neil, to short-circuit you both because he thinks he's going to be a useless incubus with the best part of him burned out by a slug of wood alcohol," said I disgustedly.

"It's not that, doctor," Nancy answered dejectedly. "Or at least, his eyes are only a part of it. I told him he had a yellow streak because he was afraid to take me for a sail when it was blowing a fresh gale. He agreed with me and said that he could never be so color blind as not to recognize that shade in himself."

This struck me as more serious than I had thought, because I had for a long time known of what might be called a constitutional defect in Neil's character and this was such as might be misunderstood by a thoughtless or stupid person. Most high strung individuals have a physical dread of some particular thing or quality, snakes or spiders or rats or bats or height vertigo or perhaps an elemental phenomenon like a thunderstorm or fire or water.

In Neil's case it was the last. He was possessed of a dread of bodies of water, whether a river, or lake, or the sea, while at the same time these held a peculiar fascination for him. He had realized this as a boy and set himself stubbornly to overcome it, learning to swim and handle boats and making long sea voyages, with the result that, while able to control the failing in its reactions on his conduct, he had yet been unable to conquer the dread itself.

Nancy was quite aware of this. "It was my fault," said she. "I shouldn't have taunted him when he was so depressed about his eyes."

"How did you taunt him?" I asked.

"In the meanest way. It was really blowing pretty hard and he was in a cold sweat at the idea of going out. I told him that I didn't see how, if life held as little for him as he claimed, he should be so afraid of losing it."

"I plainly see," said I, "that you have less heart than I have always given you credit for, also less intelligence. A constitutional dread is not amenable to reason. It is fear of the thing itself and not what it may do to one."

"I know it," Nancy answered. "Mother would be terrified at lightning if she were in an insulated glass room. But I lose patience with Neil because he's superstitious about it. He showed me a horoscope he had cast when in college and got dabbling in astrology. It said that the 'native' had an inborn dread of water

by WM. DONAHEY.

THE Teenie Weenies were quite friendly with most of the mice that lived in the big houses near the rose bush. The little folks had nothing to do with the mice who ate holes in table cloths or gnawed into cupboards. Rats the Teenie Weenies knew little about, for they were usually very rough characters and so surly the little people always kept out of their way.

There was one rat, who lived near the shoe house, that caused the Teenie Weenies a great deal of uneasiness. He was a dangerous old fellow by the name of Nick and the little people were just a tiny bit afraid of him.

He was blind in one eye, but he could see out of the other mighty well and the Teenie Weenies always made it a point to keep out of sight of that one good eye. Once old Nick tried to rob them of a piece of cheese and a number of times he was suspected of stealing various things from the Teenie Weenies.

Old Nick never actually harmed any of the Teenie Weenies, but he really did something one night which scared the little folks half out of their wits, and this is how it happened:

One warm, pleasant evening, after the dinner dishes had been washed and put away, the Lady of Fashion suggested that they all go for a walk.

"It's such a beautiful moonlight evening and I think it would be nice to go over and call on Nipper the squirrel," she said.

"That's a good idea," cried the Old Soldier. "The walk will do us good."

And in a short time the little folks were on their way towards the big tree in which the squirrel lived.

A big field of tall grass lay between the shoe house and the squirrel's home, so they usually walked along the bank of a creek. The bank of the creek had been used as a dump by the big people, but the little folks had made a path, which wound among the bottles, boards, stones, and tin cans that lay scattered about.

"O, dear!" exclaimed the Lady of Fashion as the little folks drew near the dump. "Can't we reach Nipper's home without crossing that dismal dump?"

"Not unless we go a long distance out of our way," answered the General.

"I-I-It frightens me to think of going over it," said the little lady. It's such a lonesome place."

"I'll take care of you," said the Policeman, offering his arm to the Lady of Fashion. The little lady slipped her tiny hand through the Policeman's arm and clung very close to him as they set off along the path.

For some time a dark figure had been sneaking along after the Teenie Weenies and as the little folks entered the path over the dump the figure left the trail and ran quietly ahead along the edge of the creek. Sneaking behind some tin cans it hid under a board near the path and presently the Teenie Weenies came pattering by.

Most of the little folks had passed the board when the figure suddenly jumped out and caught the poor Cook before he had a chance to escape.

Holding the Cook on the ground with his great foot, the rat, for it was old Nick, glared at the frightened Teenie Weenies.

"I'm goin' to take this fellow to my hole," said the rat. "And I'll not harm him if you bring me a piece of cheese as big as a soda cracker and deliver it at my hole not later than 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Remember, if you're not there by 8 o'clock with the cheese the ants will have a chance to pick this fellow's bones," and picking the Cook up in his mouth the rat disappeared into the night.

To make a doll of the Old Soldier, first cut the figure out around the outline and then paste on to a piece of cardboard. When it is thoroughly dry, cut the cardboard away around the edge of the picture. The doll can be made to stand up by pasting a cardboard flap to the back of the figure.

TEENIE WEENIE DOLL.

THE OLD SOLDIER.

in volume and that he stood in danger of it which might prove mortal."

"All the more reason for your being ashamed of yourself," I observed.

Nancy admitted this, but with no very great conviction. Although intensely feminine, she was one of these robust, athletic girls who are not afraid of anything and as amphibious as a Kanaka. In fact, she looked a little Polynesian with the red blood going through her tan, her dark hair and strong round arms and legs.

"Neil is really in a very bad way," I said. "It is a terrible thing for a person otherwise physically perfect to be stricken in the one faculty on which hangs individual preëminence. At this moment he finds himself in his Gethsemane. I saw Dr. Kendall in New York when he told me he doubted that Neil would ever be able to use the microscope again. So much for laws which drive one to the Pullman porter for a pharmacist. But whether the boy gets back his color sense or not, if he can weather the next few weeks he'll be over the shoals. I'm going up to the Chain Lakes to stand by him with a life line," and when I said this I had no idea of the literal prophecy contained in my words.

"I wish I could go with you," said Nancy. "I love Neil nearly to death and I'm actually sick at having been such a beast."

"You might toddle along a little later," I said, "but just at this moment he's got to fight it out on his own."

Neil did not show himself particularly glad to see me, but I think that it helped him to know that I was not far away. Although a member of the club, he had not gone to our colony, but had taken rooms in the big hotel down on the "Beaver Tail," the last link of the chain and one of which we had been unable to get control.

The "Beaver Tail" was actually no more than the expansion of a swift river which narrowed just below it to flow over falls about 100 yards wide with a drop of forty feet into rapids torn by jagged rocks where no swimmer could possibly have lived. A quarter of a mile above the falls where the speed of the current did not exceed a mile an hour there was a bridge on which a large sign announced the danger below and forbade the passage of boats. At the bridge itself, and in fact for some distance down stream, a canoe or rowboat could easily have stemmed the current, but as an added precaution the hotel had stationed an old watchman there, his duty being to see that no foolhardy persons drew near the bridge. As a matter of fact none ever did, and there being scarcely a perceptible current in the lake itself, the danger sounds greater than it really was. A similar condition exists on Lake Lucerne, yet it is doubtful if many people who have gone boating on this beautiful sheet of water actually know about it.

I ran down to see Neil shortly after my arrival and was rather disturbed at his peculiar state of mind. He seemed apathetic rather than depressed, avoided any social advances in a house full of vacationists, though the hotel was richly upholstered in pretty matrons and befringed with girls. These summer folk, in ignorance of his affliction, had naturally resented this and dubbed him "the Grouch"—barring only the children, who seemed attracted to him.

For a man who is young, good looking, and so far as might be indicated by dress and bearing and the most expensive suite of rooms and a man servant and a high powered car, to hold himself entirely aloof under such conditions is rather more than a social offense. It is almost a moral one because it engenders the blackest of the seven cardinal sins, which is malice or spite. I knew a number of the guests of this hostelry and immediately detected an undercurrent of rancor toward Neil, who was regarded as a sort of anti-ferment for gayety, an asym, to use a chemical term. The mere sight of him stalking gloomily about alone got on their nerves.

"What's the matter with him, anyhow?" I was asked by one pretty woman, very much unmarried for the moment. "Is it shell shock or unrequited love or just plain grouch?"

"Overwork," I answered.

"In the war?"

"Partly. He served his country in the laboratory isolating microbes and preparing serums and things."

She tossed her flaming head. "Well, he must have found the anti-joy serum and experimented on himself. He gets on our nerves. We expect to hear any day that he's gone over the falls. He's always mooning about there. Please take him away."

tried to do this, but Neil refused to leave. "Nancy will be coming up to the club," said he, "and I might weaken."

"Are you sore at her for what she said?" I asked.

"Of course not. Everybody knows that I'm a coward about the water. But I don't want to marry her. I'm a scientific cripple. If I'm not a bacteriologist I am nothing. Do you think I'd go through life hung around the neck of a high powered girl like that? I'd be 'Nancy Kerry's husband.' As a bug highbrow I'd have something to warrant it—to command her respect. She'd soon get fed up on a useless piece of dunnage like me."

We went for a stroll and I noticed that he led me down the road along the edge of the river to the falls. Neil sat on a stump and stared at them in an owlish way.

"I often wonder what a chap would feel like if he started to row across just above here and lost his oars," said he.

"Pretty sick, I imagine. He'd have about as much chance as——"

"As I have of seeing a stained bacillus."

"That's not hopeless by a long shot," I answered.

"I think he'd have a better if he used his beam. Do you notice how thin the band of water is where it goes over the brim out there in the middle?"

I nodded. "Between two or three feet, I should say."

"Well, it struck me that if this chap were to lower himself over the end of the boat he might be able to stand there until they got a rope down to him. It would depend, of course, on the sort of foothold he struck. But I found a postcard taken at low river, with a patch of rock out there in the middle exposed. It looks ragged and eroded as if the soft strata had been washed out in spots. The idea sort of fascinates me. Sometimes I have half a mind to try." He gave a little shudder.

"That," I said, "is a perfectly invalid excuse for gratifying a morbid suicidal impulse. I'm perfectly willing to allow your constitutional fear of water, but not your pusillanimous fear of life. Be a man, Neil!"

"What's the use of living when you've no longer any excuse for it?" he retorted. "I might much better endow a foundation for bacteriological research and get out of the way."

We walked back to the hotel, passing several people who exchanged bows with me, with never a look at my companion. Some children sighted us and came flocking across the lawn.

"Is my boat nearly finished, Mr. Kerry?" asked a little girl.

"Got to sandpaper it, Dorothy."

"This is rather better," I thought to myself. Neil looked embarrassed.

"I whittled a toy boat and let it drift over the falls," said he. "This kiddie was so upset that I promised to make her one like it. You can see what that lets me in for."

I was a bit relieved, reflecting that if he was under contract to make boats for the lot it would be some days before he was free to try going over the falls himself. We passed a patch of zinnias.

"Can't you see any color there at all?" I asked.

"Not to identify it. The light tones are a sort of creamy blur, yellow just off white, like the palest shade of primrose. The lower tones are black."

"That's something," I said.

"It's been like that right along. There's no change. I say, doctor, if Nancy comes up don't let her stray down here. It might precipitate things."

Nancy and her mother arrived at the club the following day. Learning from our steward McCann that Neil was not there, Nancy came to my lodge in considerable distress. I was able to relieve this to some extent, though not trying to conceal the serious aspects of the case.

"Why should he go to that boisterous big shack of all places?" Nancy asked. "Day and night they do nothing down there but dance and yell."

"That may distract him from himself," I said, "while no doubt he gets a certain amount of vicarious diversion from his proscenium box. There are two kinds of solitude: that of the silent places and the lonelier sort of the noisy ones. Neil is better down there than he would be deep in the forest. There he might go off his chump. A woodsman needs his color sense almost as much as a microscopist. The closer we get to nature the more we miss a lacking faculty."

"I want to see him," said Nancy.

"You might manage that without his seeing you," I observed; "but what's the good of that?"

Of course I did not tell her about Neil's sinister speculation and the morbid fascination exercised upon him by the river and the falls. It could have done no good, and, as Neil had said, it might have precipitated—a tragedy. He was quite capable of leaving his considerable fortune to the advancement of his branch of scientific research and answering to the call of the river if he felt the cogs of his resolution slipping in regard to Nancy. So I advised her to leave him alone and promised to run down from time to time to see how he was getting on.

During the next fortnight I went down there twice, only to find Neil's condition unchanged. He had made no friends or acquaintances, while the guests of the place appeared to have got used to him and become oblivious to his presence.

Then, on my third visit, I ran into a very emotional sensation. Paul Revanche, one of our wardens, had spun me down quite early in a launch, and on going up to Neil's room I turned a corner of the corridor and collided with a buxom chambermaid who appeared to be in a considerable state of agitation.

"What's the matter?" I asked sharply.

"O, doctor!" she gasped. "He's gone mad—Mr. Kerry. He's walking round his room laughing, all by himself."

I hurried down the hall and went in without knocking.

Neil, in a dressing gown, was standing at the window looking out across the lake, singing a blithe little song with a joyous lilt. He turned sharply as I entered, and his face was radiant. Seeing who it was, he sprang at me with a sort of ferocious eagerness and gave me a hug. I saw that his eyes were filled with tears.

"O! my God, old friend!" he cried. "It's come back! It's come back"

"Colors?" I asked.

"Yes. A few minutes ago when I got out of bed and went to the window I couldn't make out what had happened. It was like looking through the gates of Paradise, not as the Peri, but like somebody going in. Everything was the same, and yet so wonderfully different. The whole face of nature had suddenly changed. The lake, and the woods, and the cottages on the other shore seemed glorified." His eyes brimmed over. "Then suddenly I realized that I was seeing colors again, not very strong, but lovely, delicate shades of color. The reds were pink and the deep blue of the lake a pale azure and the nasturtiums had marked differential tones. The yellows are the most distinct."

I slapped him on the back. "You see, I was right, my boy. Yellow is the strongest visual color in reflected or refracted or transmitted light. It's just as I said. Now that you're getting back your strength the retinal cones are overcoming the congestion. I think I'd better go out and tell the hotel people that they needn't bother about the straitjacket just yet," and I told him about the chambermaid.

"Don't blame the poor girl," said Neil; "it's the first time I've laughed since I've been here. Must have sounded like mirth from the tomb. Now I'm going to spend this day in pure, unadulterated reveling, and tomorrow I will clear out of this caravansary and go up to the club and be the sunbeam of the place. Doctor, were you ever so glad to be alive that it actually hurt?"

"Once or twice," I answered with a sigh.

"Well, that's the way I feel. I'm so happy that I'm scared—almost afraid to walk downstairs for fear I might stumble and break my neck. It makes a coward of me. I think I'll walk the thirty miles to the club for fear of getting drowned or ditched or something. Is Nancy there?"

"She's been there for a fortnight and her forehead is in the dust. All right, my boy. I'll go straight back and tell her to stand by for the collision—or perhaps you'd rather give her a surprise."

"No; I don't believe in surprises. They're like a hard shower at the end of a drought. Don't have time to soak in. Tell her that 'Man-Afraid-of-the-Wet' is coming to her as fast as his moccasins can carry him."

"Pleasant is the journey homeward," said I, and went out. But I did not go straight back because the proprietor of the hotel got hold of me to ask in an embarrassed way if I would step into his private office. He was a Canadian and a nice fellow, and I did not blame him when he said:

"Doctor, don't you think that Mr. Kerry ought to be placed in some sort of an institution?"

"Don't worry, Frank," I answered. "He is shortly to enter the finest institution which civilization affords—that of holy matrimony."

"But, my word, doctor, he's quite mad! The chambermaid just heard him chuckling and singing to himself in his room. It was bad enough to have him giving us all the hump, and I've had a lot of complaints from nervous people who've been afraid that he might go over the falls. He sits and watches them by the hour."

So I proceeded to explain the situation to the good chap's infinite relief. He detained me then to explain some plans for the elaboration of his establishment and ask my advice about them, also my kindly offices in helping to get the requisite labor for the job, I, for some reason, being regarded somewhat in the light of the patron of the region, especially by the French inhabitants, to whom at times I had rendered gratuitous professional services, usually a bad plan. We were discussing the business when he glanced through the window.

"There goes Mr. Kerry now," said he, "and as usual heading out for the falls."

"Don't worry," said I. "He's probably going down to spit in them."

"Well! I rather feel that way myself. Sometimes I've a notion to blast them away."

"And empty your lake?"

"I could throw a dam across at the bridge. It may be foolish, but I've always had an uncomfortable feeling that some silly boat load might get doing dares and row down under the bridge. You've no idea what summer tourists are until you come to ride herd on them."

We discussed this question of the dam for several minutes. "It seems an unnecessary outlay of hard cash," said the proprietor, "but it would be worth it to my peace of mind and would keep the lake at the same level. So far we've never had an accident." He leaned forward to rap his knuckles on the oak desk, and as he did so there came from without a sudden and most terrifying uproar.

"Good God!" cried Frank, and sprang to his feet. There were screams and shouts and the sound of rushing feet. Doors slammed and people came clattering down the stairs. Women were shrieking and the wails of the children rose piercingly, while at no great distance a man was swearing or praying, one could scarcely tell which.

Out we rushed. A swarm of guests was pouring across the lawn toward the bridge, and as we came on the veranda which commanded a view of the bridge and the river below we saw what it was all about. Frank gave a sort of smothered bleat while I stood for a moment trying to crowd my diaphragm back down into the epigastric region.

On my last visit, while strolling down the road with Neil, I had noticed an old flatboat tied to the bank in the shallow water on the other side, and wondered idly what anybody should want of a boat there in the danger zone, even though it was possible to row against the current. We now saw this battered punt with four children in it drifting rapidly out into the river. Apparently they had been playing in and out of it, and some busy pair of little fingers had loosed the painter while a small boy was thrusting at the bank with the pole. At this point the current struck the bank to be deflected outward, and before the children had realized it the craft had drifted away from the shoal water into the deep.

No doubt the children were screaming, as they were waving frantically, one little girl wringing her hands in a way which was terrible to see, while the small boy with the pole was making futile efforts to paddle back. But their cries were drowned in the uproar from both banks and from the bridge.

Knowing something about rivers, it seemed to me that the children were doomed. We ran to the bridge, and as we got there saw a young man and a girl outstrip the others on the bank from which the boat had drifted. They dashed into the shallow water, when, as it grew waist deep, the young fellow stopped. The girl flung herself forward and began to swim for the boat.

I had already recognized her as Nancy, and here it seemed to me was another frightful tragedy, and a useless one, cumulating on top of the first. She reached the punt in a dozen strong strokes, and, gripping its low square end managed to swarm into it, when, grabbing the pole from the little boy's hand, she began to paddle desperately to turn the craft and get back to the bank.

I gave a groan. An experienced river man, seeing the trend of the current setting toward midstream, would have followed it and might have reached the opposite side above the falls, but Nancy was doing the worst thing possible, with a result that the craft was being carried slowly outward and more rapidly downward to the middle of the falls about 300 yards away.

My own mind is rather stimulated than confused in crises, but in the present terrible situation I could see no ray of hope, hit on not the slightest plan of rendering aid. There was no rope long enough to reach them, nor if there had been was there any way of get-

KENNETH and his father often rode home on the same car, but on such occasions they rarely sat together. Being treated as a boy irritated Kenneth. The youth resented his father's inquiries as to the disposition he made of his weekly pay checks. Between them there was love and respect, but also there was a certain shyness. But the 2:15 was always crowded on Saturday afternoon and the two found themselves sitting together, both unaware of the fact until the father happened to shift the newspaper he was reading.

There were then no words of greeting. Strong family affection expressed itself in outward coldness, after the American fashion. But finally the father, as if his question were incidental to his turning of a page in the following of a political story, asked:

"You and that Marden girl are absolutely decided on getting married this spring, are you?"

"Yep." The answer was flippant enough, but a blush went with it.

The father cleared his throat.

"Know where you're going to live yet?"

"No, but we'll find a place."

A smile that had sarcasm in it came to the father's face and he gave a sophisticated grunt.

Indeed, it might be said that Old Economic Fact came, at this juncture, to sit between Kenneth and his dad.

"You're more optimistic about it than most of the folks I meet nowadays," wet-blanketed the parent, making a pretense at still being absorbed in his newspaper. "Flats have all gone up. There hasn't been any building to speak of. Looked around any?"

"We're going to look around this afternoon," brightened the youth. And as he spoke Cupid shoved Old Economic Fact out of the seat for an instant—just for an instant.

"Better put this thing off for a year or two," counseled the father. "You'll find furniture about double, to say nothing of what you'll be up against when you get started housekeeping."

"Kitty's economical."

"That fur coat she wore this last winter didn't look much like it—a coat like that on stenographer's pay."

The lad said nothing for a time. He was thinking about Kitty in that fur coat—not his father's sort of thoughts. He was thinking how classy Kitty had looked in that coat.

"When your mother and I got married——" the father began.

"O, but, dad, everything's changed since then."

"H-mmmm, guess things have."

The parent's cynical mirth grated on Kenneth. "Suppose," he pleaded, "you and ma had kept puttin' off getting married because of a war or bolsheviki or strikes or high rents or profiteers—just kept puttin' off; where'd I be?"

The father scanned the printed page before him, his eyes opening wide behind his glasses, his lips half parted. He had nothing more to say. He actually began to follow an article in the newspaper now—an article, by the way, that happened to bear out his contention that the world was in a bad mess.

Kitty was waiting on the corner for Kenneth when he got off the car, and the boy left his father to go his sedate way home by himself. Kitty smiled a greeting that set his heart pounding. Kitty was a little thing, particularly pretty in her impatience, so Kenneth thought.

"We've got most of the afternoon left," he enthused. "What have you decided on—house or flat?"

"Well, it's got to have a sun parlor," insisted Miss Kitty with a pout. "There's a lot of things it's got to have—things I've always said I'd have in a house of my own."

Kitty was "some queen," all right. Kenneth took her by the arm and they started gayly forth, Cupid trailing along, supreme.

They found an agent, too, who promised to help them out. Kenneth didn't confide to the agent the amount of salary he was getting, but he and Kitty were dressed about as nifty as any pair that had ever entered the agent's office. Kitty explained about what she demanded in the way of conveniences, and the agent nodded his head in the most gallant sort of fashion. The three glided away to an apartment and Kitty liked everything about it but the decorations. When the agent smiled wanly and said that nothing could be done about the decorations "this spring" Kitty was inclined to give in. Perhaps it was true, after all, that nowadays one could not expect everything absolutely just so.

She was pattering excitedly off to the various rooms when Kenneth, in a manner smacking of his two years in a business office, asked as to the price of the shelter. And the agent told him—told him without even clearing his throat or batting an eyelash.

It must be said for Kenneth that he remained on his feet. But he took a nervous puff from a cigaret that he had hitherto been fingering nonchalantly—the price asked was considerably more than he made in an entire month. If there had been the slightest margin of difference the other way Kenneth might have considered possible economies as solving the arithmetic problem, but as it was he waited until the petite Kitty had returned. Then he remarked:

"If you don't like the decorations there's no use in our taking it, dear." There was a queer little catch in his voice. "I want you to be absolutely satisfied."

Kitty smiled sweetly at the agent, thinking Kenneth was merely seeking to change the agent's mind about the "horrid decorations." But the agent, thoroughly seasoned, had detected the wince from Kenneth when he had mentioned the flat's price. Practically the entire population was looking for a place in which to live and the agent did not intend to waste any more of the afternoon than was necessary. He took another look at the pair and in an altered tone began:

"I might as well tell you that you're up against it if you expect to get a place for a song. There hasn't been any new building; janitors are getting more pay; taxes have gone up. You'll find conditions the same wherever you go. My firm hasn't any cheap places."

Kitty acted as though she were about to stamp her tiny foot. Kenneth, not wishing to appear before her in any other light but as a man with the world by the tail, was relieved when they had been honked back to the real estate office, Old Economic Fact riding along.

"You don't want to pay any attention to that bird's line of talk," assured Kenneth when they were alone again. "These profiteers don't need to think they can take me for an easy mark. I've been out in the world too long."

Flat dwellers about to be ejected met them at the doors of places where there were "for rent" signs in the windows and listlessly showed them through the rooms to which they were soon to say farewell. And all of them pulled hard luck stories: "You can't get anything. We were out in the suburbs last Sunday and it's just as bad out there. Got any children? Yes, this kitchenette may be cute, all right; but you've got to go in the front room to dry the dishes. We can't pay the $30 raise, but I don't know where we're going to go. Got your own furniture? I pity you, then. Do you know what a table like that would cost now? Of course I don't know how you're fixed, but you've got to figure on light and gas. Anything cheaper? Not around this neighborhood."

Dusk was entering the spring day and the youthful pair were crossing through a park. There was a droop to Kenneth's shoulders and a tear against Kitty's powder. Cupid had vanished many flats back, and Old Economic Fact seemed to be entirely master of the situation.

A robin hopped across the pathway. The redbreast had a twig in its mouth and it left the grass and flew to a tree branch.

The robins were having no trouble in finding a home.

There were plenty of trees and plenty of twigs.

It was only the human species that was obliged to wander, nestless.

As they started for their homes Kenneth almost forgot how prettily Kitty tripped at his side. His brain whirled with a conglomeration of terms, such as janitors and heating plants, sleeping porches and lake views, leases and moving vans, clothes closets and hardwood floors. The faces of the worn featured, hollow eyed folks they had talked to passed before him in kaleidoscope—folks who hated to move, wanted to move, had to move.

And he could, if called upon, repeat the chorus by now: "Of course you know the carpenters have asked for a raise and lath and plaster and nails and bricks and stucco and flooring and fixtures and taxes and janitors have all gone up."

He was late getting home after saying good night to Kitty. He came into the living room, where his father was reading a magazine.

"Find a place?" gruffly asked the father, looking up over his specs.

"We didn't exactly come across what we wanted this afternoon," Kenneth answered wearily.

"Guess you found prices pretty steep."

"Say, what's the matter with things, anyhow, dad?" blazed Kenneth. "Why don't they get busy and ship in lumber and stuff and get busy? Why don't they do something to these darned landlords? Why don't they——"

"Perhaps if they knew you and Kitty intended to get married they would," tantalizingly sniffed the father. "This is one spring when I should say a young man should be very careful about letting his thoughts turn to thoughts of love. But I'm glad you were out looking around a bit. You've got an idea now of conditions. What does Kitty say?"

"Well, we had quite a talk together when I left her," answered the young man after a pause. "She admitted it was harder getting a flat that we could afford than she thought it was."

"Wise girl," remarked the father, straightening out his newspaper with a swish.

"You bet she is."

"She saw how prices had gone up, what it would mean to start housekeeping now. You decided——"

"Yeah," finished Kenneth. "We decided. We decided to just go ahead and get married anyhow."

At which remark father seemed flabbergasted, although not greatly surprised. And Cupid—he reached over and gave Old Economic Fact a knockout punch on the jaw.

THE BURGLARY

The sergeant was sympathetic and encouraging.

"You may make your mind easy about them spoons, Mr. Kavanagh," he said, "and you may tell the lady not to be fretting."

"Do you think they've been sold or pawned?" asked Mr. Kavanagh.

"Neither the one nor the other," said the sergeant decisively. "On account of the monogram that was on them they couldn't be without me knowing it. Whatever way that fellow has them disposed of it's not selling nor it's not pawning. It's my belief he has them yet, hid somewhere. But you may make your mind easy about them."

The sergeant continued to be optimistic about the recovery of the spoons and repeatedly urged Mr. Kavanagh to make his mind quite easy on the subject. Mr. Kavanagh did in fact cease to worry about his loss, not because he hoped to see his spoons again, but because he became accustomed to the feeling that they were gone.

January passed and February. In March every one began talking about planting potatoes, a fashionable hobby in the early part of 1917. The Dickeys, who lived next door, were very much in earnest about the nation's food supply and determined to sacrifice the three rhododendron bushes at the end of their garden in order to make room for potatoes. One fine evening near the end of the month, Mr. Dickey, armed with a meat chopper, went out to fell the bushes. Mr. Kavanagh watched him over the wall. In a little more than an hour the whole three bushes, desperately mangled, had fallen. Mr. Dickey, very hot, but triumphant, began to drag away the debris. He paused suddenly, stooped and picked up something from the ground.

"Kavanagh," he said, "I believe this is one of your spoons."

Mr. Kavanagh climbed the wall at once. The spoon which Mr. Dickey handled him was clay stained and discolored, but it bore the monogram "A. K." An excited search began. Mrs. Dickey came out and joined it. Mrs. Kavanagh was summoned with loud shouts and climbed the wall. Bridget followed her. The Dickeys' back garden was searched with minute care, inch by inch. Every single spoon was recovered. The cup, which was only silver plated, was dug out of a heap of decayed leaves. Even the metal rim and hasp of the purse were found. The leather seemed to have rotted away. The one and threepence was not there.

"I expect," said Mrs. Kavanagh, "that the thief just threw them away when he found the monogram and saw that he couldn't pawn them."

"I'll go and tell the police at once," said Mr. Kavanagh.

He may have thought that he would surprise the sergeant. He may perhaps have expected some sort of apology or confession of failure. If so he was disappointed.

"What did I tell you all along?" said the sergeant. "Didn't I say you might make your mind easy about them spoons? Wasn't those the words I used, Constable Moriarty? Them or words to that effect."

"They was," said Constable Moriarty.

Mr. Kavanagh was not prepared to deny it.

"When the police," said the sergeant, "has their eye on a matter the rest of you may make your minds easy. The police has their own ways of working."

stared down into the swirling water it looked black as ink.

"Just sixty seconds more, Neil," a voice whispered in his ear. "What you've done is more than heroic. It's sublime generosity—divine." The voice broke, then steadied itself again. "They'll raise a monument to you, here at the brink of the falls, Neil Kerry."

"To my memory, I guess. Don't fear. We'll save the kids—and then you scramble—into the boat, and then—and—then."

"And then—and then——" it seemed to Kerry that the falls were thundering back his words. His head was whirling now and the light of the sun was going out.

Something brushed against his hip, and he was conscious of a dark shape and a groping figure which appeared to be pawing at the skiff.

"O, daddy! I knew you'd come," cried a shrill, rapturous voice. Neil felt the strain upon his waist suddenly relax. It seemed to him that scores of children were being lifted from the skiff or scrambling out of it into a big punt alongside. This he recognized vaguely as the watchman's boat tied up at the end of the bridge. He felt himself going over backward, the burden on his shoulders was released, and it seemed to him that he was bobbing up into the air like an escaped balloon. Then his upper arm fell within the jaws of a vice which crushed it with agonizing pain, while the tug at his waist was entirely released. His body, suddenly gone limp, was trailing in the water.

"Here I go over the falls!" thought Kerry with sleepy indifference. "Well, never mind—they got the kiddies."

And then his spirit was wafted to some place peaceful and remote.

Neil's next consciousness was of voices a long way off talking monotonously to disturb his peace. Followed, random little spasms of pain, dull at first, but rapidly increasing in force and frequency.

"You must let go his hand and get some rest," said a familiar voice. "He may not come around for hours."

"I've been resting," answered a weary voice. "I feel as if I never wanted to let go his hand again."

"Well, we can't blame you much for that. But at least get up and move around a little. Go to the window and look at that mob waiting for the latest bulletin. There are three young mothers we shall have to fight off to keep him from being eaten."

"They shan't. They all thought him first a grouch and then a lunatic. They don't deserve to see him. We'll smuggle him away at night in a closed car. Please tell me, doctor, how such a desperate attempt ever entered his mind—a divine message?"

Neil stirred, then groaned. "Nothing of the sort," he muttered. "I had it all doped out."

I crossed the room and stepped out on the balcony.

"He's conscious," I called.

There came from beneath a sort of roar, voices both deep and shrill. I stepped back inside the room. Nancy was leaning over the bed, and Neil was staring up at her fixedly.

"I can see the blue in your eyes, sweetheart," said he. "And your lips are red."

ting it to them in time. Many of the people streaming along the banks had stopped. Women were dropping down on the turf, fainting or covering their eyes. A hush had fallen, the stark silence of horror. Even the children in the boat were still, and the little 4 year old, whom I recognized as Neil's friend Dorothy, sat cross legged on the amidship's thwart, her thumb in her mouth and her eyes fixed on Nancy.

The boat, drawn on slowly but inexorably by the current, was within a hundred yards of the falls when Nancy, appearing to realize the futility of her efforts, laid down the pole in a quiet way and seemed to be talking to the children, as though to preoccupy their minds at the moment of dissolution. Never, in a lifetime which has witnessed many moments of supreme agony, have I seen anything so sublime, and I thought that my heart would burst. Right at the edge of the falls a tall man, a clergyman no doubt, stood stiff and erect and raising his hands began to pray. The crowd was on its knees, and at this moment there came, as it must have seemed to most, a cumulative horror.

A man in white suddenly detached himself from the others and running down to the water's edge slipped off his coat and shoes and plunging into the deep water began to swim out at an angle to intercept the boat. Even at that considerable distance I saw that it was Neil and instantly remembered what he had told me about the water being shoal in midstream where it went over the falls. Knowing this, his high endeavor was, to me alone of all that crowd, apparent and purposeful, and gave to the approaching tragedy a grandeur which through some curious psychology abstracted much of its ghastliness. But to the others it added to this, if such a thing were possible. Devitalizing as it was to see this boat load of innocents with the heroic girl drawn down to death, there was now the augmented grewsome note of what seemed to them the suicide of a madman.

As they saw it, Neil's unsound mind had been unable to support the spectacle of this sacrifice and had so impelled him to become a part of it. It may have struck them as a profanation—a pollution of the flood about to still forever these pure, helpless little ones.

For my part I cannot say that I felt the slightest hope. Even if the water were waist deep and the current not very swift, the old punt was heavy, waterlogged, and well freighted and the bottom must be slippery. Neil had claimed that a man might be able only to stand there, not to hold his boat against the stream, and I was convinced that failing to accomplish this he would go with it rather than loose his hold. My mind seemed unable to grasp the full measure of his heroism. The day before I could have understood it, but now I seemed to see the radiant face turned toward me less than an hour before and to hear the thrilling exultation of his voice as he asked, "Doctor, were you ever so glad to be alive that it positively hurt?" The constitutional dread of water scarcely entered into the thing; such violent reactions to dread are not uncommon.

Neil reached the boat and Frank's quivering voice said in an awestruck tone: "Look! He's making fast the painter round his waist. I thought you said that he was sane."

I wet my lips before I could speak. "He is," I answered. "He means to try and hold the boat in the shallow water at the brim of the falls."

"God Almighty! I hadn't thought of that! But there's not one chance in a thousand."

I did not argue it, but gripped him by the arm. It had struck me if by some divine assistance Neil should be able to hold the boat even for a few moments and then be dragged over, we others watching it would never be able to hold up our heads again.

"Quick!" I said. "A rope—a quarter of a mile of rope. Have you got it?" and without waiting for him to answer I started for the hotel, Frank after me, for he had caught the idea. He was a quick witted man.

"Take the flag halyards," he panted. "Make an end fast to the watchman's boat and start it down. I'll get the fire ropes from the top rooms."

I ran to the flagpole, which was a high one with cross trees. People turning stupid faces to watch me must have thought I had gone crazy myself and was half masting the flag in anticipation. I cut the snap hook and let the free end run over the sheave in the truck, then back to the bridge. As I reached it an extraordinary clamor rose, a many voiced outcry which it was impossible to measure or assay, for its note was not of distress nor yet could it be called one of exultation.

Under the abutment of the bridge making the end of the flag halyards fast to the painter of the watchman's boat, I could not see what was taking place, but a stab of hope went through me when a moment later the outrageous uproar, which was not unlike that one hears during the critical moment of a football game, told me that all was not yet lost, that Neil must have made a stand.

There immediately followed a most demoralizing din; men crying out as they ran and the frenzied grunting of automobile horns. A voice hailed me from the bridge, and I looked up to see an agonized face and a pair of big beflanneled shoulders.

"For the love of God, hurry!" croaked a husky voice. There was a slithering sound and a big bulk crashed down beside me. "My little girl's in that boat. I say, you haven't quarter rope enough."

"There's more coming," I answered. "Get in the boat and pass it under the bridge and fling me up the end."

"All right!" he answered, and I ran up on the bridge and caught the coil he threw me.

To give a fuller comprehension of the crucial situation now developed I must reconstruct it from the viewpoint of its principal actors.

Neil had heard the children's screams as they drifted away from the bank, and the sudden realization of the duty thrust upon him by the high gods had dimmed his vision. In that brief instant it seemed to Neil that the dossier, the divine ledger of his destiny, had been opened and thrust before his eyes, many hitherto puzzling problems solved for him. He understood his dread of water, his sinister horoscope regarding it, his color blindness, and the moment's rapturous promise of recovery.

"I shouldn't have taunted him. It was really blowing pretty hard."

The crisis seemed so obviously a test, a challenge to his manhood, that Neil was shot with a sudden flame of white rage. They need not have dragged the children into it—these merciless high gods. They had cursed him with the dread of water and deprived him of his most cherished faculty only to restore it, that this thing might be even more cruelly hard. Nancy, too, had been restored.

An infinite gloom invested Neil as he strode down to the river's edge. He had not the faintest hope of being able to hold that heavy craft against the current, still less with the added weight of the woman, who appeared foolishly to have misconstrued the trial as one demanded of herself. Instead of admiring, Neil felt a stab of cold anger at her silly interference. No, for some inscrutable reason this thing had been required of him alone, and he must accept the issue even while knowing that there could be no question of this. He told himself that to stand there supinely and watch those children swept to their destruction would be to see swept with them his honor, his manhood, his love of life.

There was no thrill of exaltation as he waded out and began to swim, coldly calculating just where he might reach the boat. Nancy had desisted from her vain efforts, and as Kerry seized the square prow her blue eyes glowed down on him like sapphires. He looked up and recognized her with no particular emotion. It seemed rather fitting that she should be there. Well, so be it, since apparently they were not destined for each other in this world, they could at least leave it together with high scorn retorting its mockery.

Holding to the boat with one hand, Neil reached for the painter with the other, caught a turn about his waist, and secured it with two half hitches.

"Why have you done this, Neil?" Nancy asked.

"The water is shallow at the top of the falls," he answered; "maybe I can hold the boat."

An instant later his foot touched, and, looking down through the clear water, he could see the rock rising as it slipped beneath. Both feet struck, and for about ten yards he scuffled along, checking their speed but unable to keep his footing. It grew shoaler still, and for a moment he held the craft against the weight of the current about fifty feet from the drop. His chest was pressed against the stem of the boat, his hands gripping the gunwale of either bow, the water not quite waist deep. Then he felt himself lurching unsteadily as the boat swung.

"Get on my shoulders, quick," he panted.

"What?"

"Get on my shoulders! Your weight will hold me down," and as he spoke he felt his feet beginning to slide along.

But the girl had understood. With Neil slipping and stumbling, and the boat working toward the rim foot by foot, she scrambled up while he braced himself as best he could to take her weight without falling. It was less difficult for her than for him; but, once securely poised, Neil found himself firmly and securely planted, one foot jammed in a crevice from which the soft stratum had been washed and the other against a jagged knob.

"You're all right now, kiddies," said he to the children, who were huddled in the bottom. "Hand me the pole."

A little boy of 6 scrambled up and thrust it at him eagerly. Neil planted it at an extreme angle, letting part of his weight come against the butt. And at sight of this partly human triangle there buttressed against the force of the current and standing fast a great shout went up from both shores. There was a rush of men for the nearest motor cars, and Neil knew that it was now but a question of endurance on his part until a rope could be carried across the stream and down to where he stood.

Then came an agony of suspense in which the minutes dragged past like hours. With one arm across the girl's knees and the other over the pole which was braced against his chest, he waited, every muscle fiber tense. Was there no rope to be had in the place? Must they go to the nearest rope walk and wait for them to make one?

The current as it slipped past began to play weird tricks with his vision. Not only had the colors faded utterly but outlines were growing indistinct, and the swirling eddies around his waist unsteadied him. At moments it seemed as if he were forging upstream, a sort of human tug, and that not only the river but the banks were whizzing past. And minute by minute the weight of the girl on his shoulders seemed gaining inexorably, pound by pound, an incubus presently to crumble and crush him.

The stern of the boat seemed hanging over the falls, and he was filled with a frightful dread lest the children lose their heads and fling themselves over. Up in the bow two little boys were lying down, their unwavering eyes fastened on his face with a sort of fascinated terror. On the amidships thwart sat a chubby girl of 4 sucking her thumb and looking about with the serenity of perfect confidence, while, huddled against her knees, her little sister was saying over and over, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

From both banks people were crying out frenzied encouragements, or those meant to be cheery, but it is doubtful if Kerry would have heard them even without the roar of the falls. The tense waiting and unvarying character of the terrific muscular strain were beginning to confuse his mind. But this was utterly numb to all sense of dread, just as it was to all exaltation of heroism. Actually he did not believe that he was destined to win out in this endurance test. Almost indifferently he expected any moment a vertigo which might destroy his balance. Cramped as he had become from the rigid tension of the same position, he knew that the least slip of either foot or the pole against which he was braced would prove instantly fatal. There was no faltering, no dread of the crisis which might come at any moment, but a sort of melancholy determination to hold on as long as he could and to meet his doom, when it came, as befitted a man.

Presently he began to wonder curiously why they were so slow about getting that rope. The river was not so very wide, 200 yards perhaps; nor did the rope need to be a ship's cable. Ten thread manila, the size of the boat's painter, would be plenty strong enough if new, and surely this was to be had in the general store. All needed was to carry one end across the bridge, when a couple of men on either bank might draft it down to him, when he could catch a couple of round turns with the painter and let them walk it upstream, he holding on until it took the strain.

Thinking of this, it flashed suddenly across his mind that, after all, he might yet save the children while yet being himself swept to destruction. He thought of Nancy as part of himself. Numbed and strained and stiffened as he was, he decided that it would be better for him not to try to get into the rescuing boat. He might fall across the gunwale and capsize it, or his added weight might break the painter. Yes, that was it! The veiled prediction of his horoscope was destined to work it out in some such way. So be it! There were far worse deaths, and his memory would be a fragrant one to all who knew of it.

Suddenly the pole grated, slipped, and he lunged forward a little. The girl on his shoulders swayed, caught him under the chin, and as he settled himself with a crushing pain in chest and shoulders she spoke:

"Steady, Neil! Only a few minutes now. Do you hear that motor horning? They're coming with the rope."

"They'd better be quick," he panted. "I can't seem to feel my feet and my head's swimming."

"Think of the children, Neil. They're trusting in you as if you were God."

The even voice went on, began to pour out a steady flow of words which rippled down upon him with a soothing murmur. He listened almost drowsily and as it seemed to him in rhythmic beats of consciousness. "Look at little Dorothy waving to the crowd on the bank as though she were playing a game. She's got no fear of your losing your grip. She feels as safe as if she were in the arms of that big father of hers. Think what he must be passing through, Neil. And the boys. If there was ever worship in a human face it's on Jack's. Did you hear what he just said to Gilbert? 'I should worry. Why it's just like being hitched to a dock.'"

"What are they doing up there?" Kerry groaned.

"I can't quite make out. There are some men on the bridge and they seem to be lowering a rope. Here comes a boat under the span and a man in it.

"I see," said Kerry faintly. "They're afraid I can't hang on while I make fast the painter—and I guess they're right." He swayed a little. Nancy slapped his cheek, not gently, but so that it stung.

"Stand fast, Neil! Here comes the boat. Dorothy's father's in it," and she slapped him again.

"Stop that!" growled Kerry. "Do you think you're a jockey whipping at the finish?"

"O, Neil—half the people on the banks are on their knees. Can't you feel their prayers?"

"I can't feel anything," he answered, "except the pole grinding into the cobbles. Sit tight while I try to get a better grip. My chest is caving in."

"Don't budge, Neil. Let it cave. What do you care if you save the children."

"I don't," he muttered, "but I—can't—get my breath."

A hoarse vibrant voice rang out behind him. "Hang on, old chap—almost there. O, why can't those fools pay out a little faster?"

Over on the bank a man abreast the boat was conning it down as a freight conductor might coach the engineer. Kerry did not see him. His head was drooping and as he

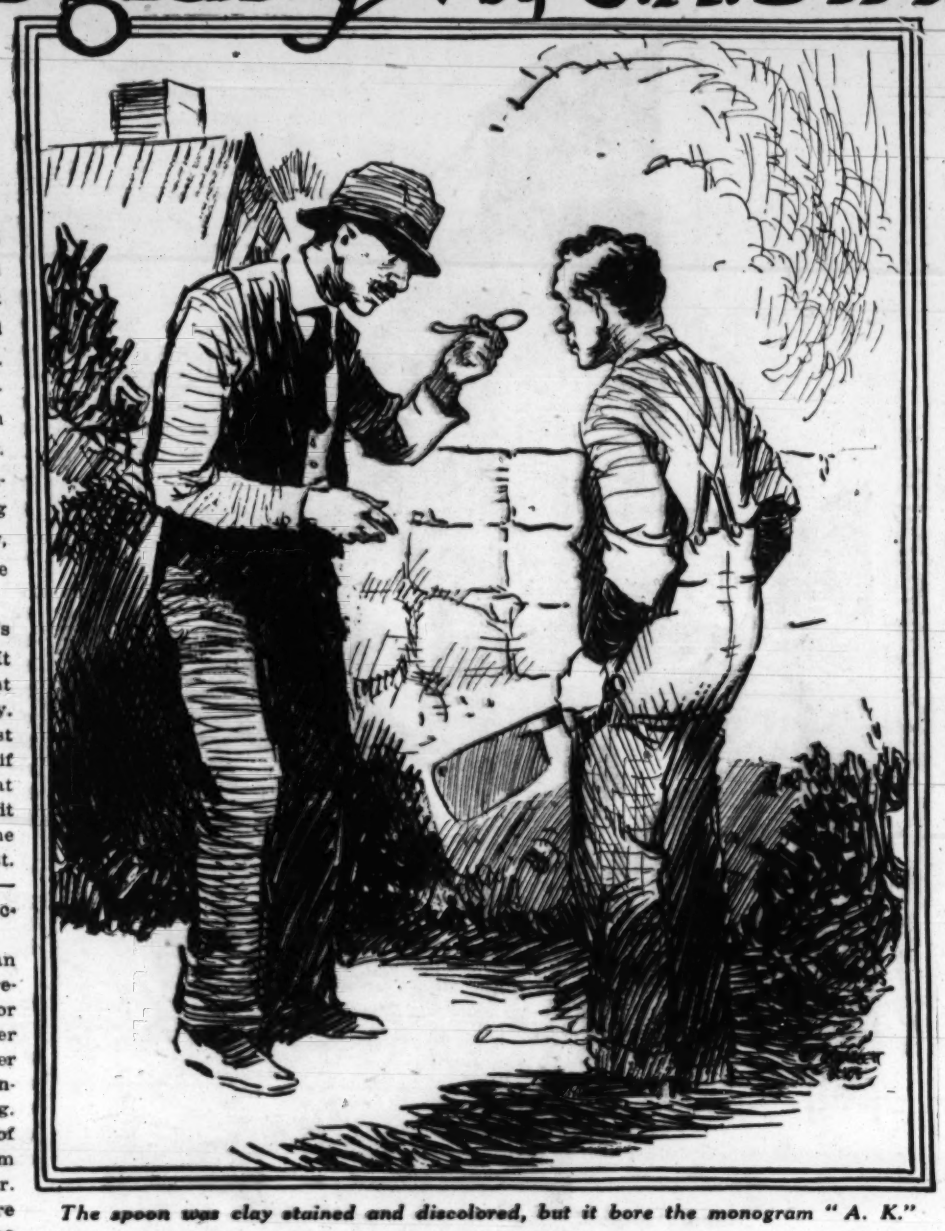
The Burglary — by G.A. Birmingham

Mr. Kavanagh Learns a Thing or Two About Leaving the Police to Their Ways of Working



The spoon was clay stained and discolored, but it bore the monogram "A. K."

NO one was ever more surprised than Mr. Kavanagh when he came down one morning in December to find that his house had been entered by burglars and his silver spoons—eleven of them—stolen. In England, so we gather from the newspapers, burglary is a common crime. An English householder, finding himself in Mr. Kavanagh's position, would have been angry, not astonished. Mr. Kavanagh, being an Irishman resident in his native country, began by being amazed and only became moderately angry rather late in the day.

Various reasons are given for Ireland's happy freedom from regular burglars. It is said that the Irish police are so efficient that the criminal classes shun the country. It is said that the Irish people are so honest by nature that they would not steal even if there were no police. It is also said that there is so little to steal in Ireland that it is not worth any one's while to take up the profession of burglary in serious earnest. You make your choice of the explanations—guided by your political convictions—and accept the fact.

Mr. Kavanagh, who lived in a suburban villa, shut his windows at night if he remembered to do so. He never bolted a door or closed a shutter. Burglars were a danger as remote as air raids. It is small wonder that he was astonished when he saw the condition of his dining room in the morning. The drawers of a sideboard and those of a bureau which stood in a corner of the room were pulled out and thrown on the floor. Papers were scattered about. Chairs were overturned. The carpet, the table cloth, the sideboard, and the bureau were covered with spots of candle grease. The window was wide open and one pane of glass was broken.

Mr. Kavanagh's first idea was that his parlor maid had gone suddenly mad and run amuck. He rang the bell. A girl in a neat cotton frock and a white cap answered the summons immediately. She was rosy cheeked and smiling, evidently perfectly sane. The thought of an untimely spring cleaning was the next which occurred to Mr. Kavanagh.

"Bridget," he said, "what have you done to the room?"

"Is it me, sir?" said the girl, "I didn't do anything to it. It was that way I found it when I opened the door in the morning."

"If you didn't do it," said Mr. Kavanagh, "who did?"

"I don't know who it was, sir," said Bridget, "unless maybe it was yourself, and you looking for something you might be wanting before you went to bed. I didn't like to be tidying up, for didn't you always bid me not to be touching papers no matter where you might leave them?"

It was then that the idea of a robbery first entered Mr. Kavanagh's mind.

"Bridget," he said, "it's burglars."

"The lord save us," said Bridget, "it's a mercy there's one of us left alive."

Then Mrs. Kavanagh, who was always a few minutes late for breakfast, came in.

"Mary," said Mr. Kavanagh, "there's been a burglary during the night."

Mrs. Kavanagh was a lady of rapid thought and prompt action. She went straight to the chimney piece.

"My purse has been taken," she said. "I left it beside the clock last night. "It's gone."

"Well, now," said Bridget, "to think of that! Aren't them fellows the devil?"

"Much in it?" said Mr. Kavanagh.

Mrs. Kavanagh was on her knees on the floor, tossing the papers aside turning over the empty drawers.

"One and threepence," she said, "and a return half ticket. Bridget, where are the silver spoons?"

"There's one of them in the pantry sink this minute," said Bridget, "for I seen it this morning. It could be that I forgot it when I was washing up last night. Anyway it's there now."

"The other eleven are gone," said Mrs. Kavanagh tragically.

"And my cup," said Mr. Kavanagh, "the cup I won at the golf handicap. But it wasn't silver any way, only plated."

"Send for the police at once," said Mrs. Kavanagh.

The thought of the police awakened in Mr. Kavanagh's mind vague recollections of all the stories he'd ever read about criminals and detectives. He became vigorous and alert. He spoke in commanding tones.

"Mary," he said, "stand up at once and don't touch anything. Bridget, leave the room. Nothing must be moved or disturbed until the police have visited the scene of the crime. In these cases the great thing is to give the detectives a fair chance. If we go touching things and making finger prints all over the place detection will be impossible."

He took Mrs. Kavanagh by the arm and raised her to her feet. He led her from the room, driving Bridget before him. He shut and locked the door. Then he telephoned to the police barrack, giving a short but perfectly clear account of what had happened.

Two hours later a police sergeant with an attendant constable knocked at the door. Mr. Kavanagh, who thought they might have arrived a little sooner, admitted them himself.

"The house," he said, "has been burgled."

"I was thinking it might," said the sergeant. "It's what I was saying to Constable Moriarty here this morning when you telephoned to the office. 'From what the gentleman's after telling us,' I said, 'it wouldn't surprise me but something, be the same more or less, has been taken from the house.' That's what I said to Constable Moriarty."

"It is," said the constable. "The very words."

Mr. Kavanagh felt a little comforted. The police sergeant was calm and looked strong. Constable Moriarty was a powerful man. If they did lay hands on the burglar they could certainly hold him fast; and the sergeant at least, perhaps also Moriarty, could draw deduction from facts laid before him. He had already arrived at the conclusion that a burglary had taken place, though he had nothing to go on but Mr. Kavanagh's report.

"Would you like to see the room?" said Mr. Kavanagh.

"I'd like," said the sergeant, "to have a complete description of the missing property."

"A purse with one and threepence in it," said Mrs. Kavanagh rapidly, "and eleven silver spoons, and——"

"Constable Moriarty," said the sergeant, "will you take a note of what the lady's saying."

Constable Moriarty drew a notebook and a stump of pencil from his pocket.

"One purse," he wrote.

"Can you describe the purse?" asked the sergeant.

"Green Russia leather," said Mrs. Kavanagh.

"Have you got that down, Moriarty?" said the sergeant.

"And eleven silver spoons," said Mr. Kavanagh, "with a monogram on them, letters A. K."

Constable Moriarty paused, his pencil stump pressed to his lips.

"Take down what the gentleman says," said the sergeant. "If so be you can't spell monogram—and it would surprise me if you can—for it's not a word a man would often have to write—do the best you're able with it."

"M-o-n-o——" said Mr. Kavanagh.

"Excuse me," said the sergeant, "but if you'll leave the discharge of his duty to the constable without interfering with him it might be better."

Mr. Kavanagh felt the justice of the rebuke. All he had ever read about the detection of crime emphasized the fact that detectives must be left to work in their own way.

"And a silver cup," said Mrs. Kavanagh. "But it wasn't real silver, only plated."

"Was it eleven spoons, you said?" said Constable Moriarty.

Bridget, the parlor maid, came suddenly from the pantry door.

"It was. It was," she said. "The twelfth one is in the sink this minute, and if you don't believe me let you come and look at it."

The sergeant glared sternly at Bridget.

"Is there any one," he said, "off the premises or on, that you've any reason to suspect?"

"No," said Mr. Kavanagh. "No one."

"Is it me you're out after?" said Bridget. "For if it is you'll not get me. I'm a decent girl and always was, and my mother before me, and I was in my bed the whole of the night, where I ought to be, and not stravaguing through the house. The Lord knows it's enough I get of that same house in the day without walking the floors of it at night. And what's more, if I wanted to steal them spoons wouldn't I have took the one that's in the sink this minute? And over and above that, if I was out to steal I'd——"

"Be quiet now," said the sergeant. "It's not you I'm thinking of at all. Sure anybody'd know that a girl with a tongue like yours wouldn't have the sense to steal. The party I had in my mind isn't in the least like you. So there, now."

"Do you know who did it?" said Mrs. Kavanagh eagerly. "Have you got a clue?"

The sergeant ignored this.

"It might be as well," he said, "if me and the constable here was to take a look at the scene of the crime."

Mr. Kavanagh led the way to the dining room and opened the door.

"Everything," he said, "is as nearly as possible just as it was when I entered the room this morning. Nothing has been taken away or put back in its proper place."

The sergeant stood in the doorway and looked round the room. Constable Moriarty peered over his shoulder.

"Have you any notion," said the sergeant, "of how the man entered the room?"

Mr. Kavanagh pointed to the open window with the broken pane of glass.

"It was like that," he said, "wide open, when I first saw it this morning."

"It might have been through it he came," said the sergeant.

Constable Moriarty wrote rapidly in his note book. The sergeant waited until he had finished. Then he asked another question.

"Have you any notion of the way he got out again?"

"I thought," said Mr. Kavanagh, "that he probably went out the way he came in, through the window."

The sergeant thought this over carefully before giving his opinion.

"He might," he said at last.

Constable Moriarty made another note. The sergeant entered the room, walking cautiously. He looked at the carpet and the tablecloth. He scraped one of the spots of candle grease with his thumb nail. He thought deeply for a while. He turned to Constable Moriarty and spoke in a confidential tone.

"It was a candle the fellow had with him, whoever he was."

Constable Moriarty wrote down the word candle in his notebook.

"And now," said the sergeant, "I'll not be troubling you any more. But you may make your mind easy, ma'am." He turned to Mrs. Kavanagh genially. "And don't be fretting. I have my eye on some of the boys about the neighborhood."

"Do you know who did it?" said Mrs. Kavanagh.

"There's them," said the sergeant solemnly, "that I have my eye on."

"And do you think you'll get the things back for us?" said Mrs. Kavanagh.

"As to the one and threepence that was in the purse," said the sergeant, "I wouldn't like to promise. But in the matter of them silver spoons and the cup—I'll not say too much, but the police has their own ways of working, and you may make your mind easy. Constable Moriarty, it's time we were getting back to the barracks if you're to be out on patrol at all this morning."

Mr. Kavanagh felt that it was fully time for him to go to his office. He caught the 11:15 train and went cheerfully to work. The sergeant's confidence gave him great hope. At luncheon time he made inquiries about the rates of insurance against burglaries.

Mrs. Kavanagh spent a busy morning. She comforted Bridget and the cook, who expected every minute to be handcuffed and taken to prison. With hot irons and blotting paper she removed much of the candle grease from her dining room carpet. She sent for a glazier to mend the broken pane of glass. In the afternoon she gave a full account of the burglary to her neighbors, who came to sympathize. Mrs. Dickey was particularly interested. She lived next door, and confessed that in her house the windows which opened on the back garden had no shutters. Mrs. Kavanagh reassured her.

"The police sergeant," she said, "is splendid. He has his eye on the man who did it and he says he'll have our spoons back for us quite soon."

The sergeant had not actually said "quite soon," nor apparently had he meant it. Mr. Kavanagh called at the barracks every day, then, as time went on, three times a week; at last, only on Saturday mornings. The sergeant always appeared quite satisfied with the progress of his investigations.

"There's fellows," he said, "that I have my eye on, fellows that's up to no good."

Mr. Kavanagh was aware that detectives, like clerks in government offices, must not be hurried. He showed no signs of impatience, but he asked occasionally whether there was any trace of his silver spoons.

Blue Ribbon Fiction

MICE AND MEN

THE STORY THUS FAR—Merrial Houlton is deeply concerned over the unrelenting attitude of her dead mother's family, in England, toward her father, with whom Merrial's relatives have had nothing to do since her mother was married and went to live on a western ranch. Poring over a pile of old letters which reveal this estrangement, the girl is interrupted by a call from Tripp Hart, an old time playmate from the west, who comes to urge his claim as a prospective husband and is regretfully rejected. The same evening Merrial asks her father about the relatives in England and about her brother, Dick, who is there at school. Her father suspects a purpose beneath her questioning, but Merrial will not reveal it. Nor will she confide in Gertrude Hart, Tripp's sister, whom she meets by chance at the theater and who revives Merrial's memories of her childhood on the ranch by her insistent talk of Tripp and his apparently hopeless love affair.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

The English Beauforts.

MR. HOULTON, returning at an unusually early hour from his office, moved absently into the drawing room and discovered too late that it was already occupied. The last thing in the world his mood of intense preoccupation desired that afternoon was an interview with Merrial's most correct and conservative young Boston suitor, a certain Mr. Bagot, tall, fair, irreproachable. However, Mr. Bagot had advanced and was greeting him in his choky murmur with its "er-er" that always disturbed Mr. Houlton's nerves unpleasantly.

"Merrial had a date with me for this afternoon," he explained, but his high laugh hardly disguised annoyance, "but she seems—er—she really seems to have forgotten me rather." His lifted eyebrows suggested that this explanation could hardly be the correct one. A Mr. Bagot was not used to being forgotten.

Houlton strolled to a window and back. "O, well," he soothed absently, "she's a very preoccupied creature—she'll probably be in with some sort of absurd explanation or other. You know what Merrial is—always on the track of something."

Mr. Bagot thrust out a bony white wrist and eyed a watch. "Er—4 o'clock and after. Couldn't have forgotten me to that extent I should hardly think, eh?"

"O, yes, that's quite possible. I've been forgotten myself to an even more alarming extent. But—here she is!" Houlton's relief was as obvious as the younger's man's pique. Merrial's father was edging towards the door for an escape. But her entrance with another young man in tow, a far from correct young man this, a shabby, clumsy young man with tousled hair and spectacles, gave him pause.

"Dr. Scranton, father—and, Mr. Bagot, Dr. Scranton. O, father, do wait and have tea with us."

"What's the matter with you, Merrial?" asked Mr. Houlton narrowing his eyes at her. "What have you been doing? You look as white as a sheet."

The young doctor, plunging across the room, pulling off his shabby gloves, rumpling up his dusty hair, burst into a sort of shout.

"She's great, Mr. Houlton. She's all wool and a yard wide. She's the keenest thing I've met for years. She understood that operation of Dr. Reval's better than any of the students. He had the boy on the table for four hours—you bet she missed her lunch—cutting and manipulating and straightening out the bones, and it's not an easy operation, you know—but perhaps you don't know——" He indulged in a string of Latin polysyllables under the impression that he was diffusing light. "It's about the hardest case for a layman to get onto and, you see, Miss Merrial here, she had the terms at her finger ends and she followed it like a hound. Didn't keel over, either, though she turned a bit green. One of the students standing near us dropped——" he gave a loud ha-ha.

"You see, sir, it's a very pretty operation in one sense, and not at all pretty in another—it's the outside and inside point of view according as to whether you're one of the profession or not. It's Reval's specialty. I'll show you. It might prove interesting to you and Mr. What's His Name here."

In spite of everybody's best efforts at prevention, Scranton forthwith described the operation in words that made the lay flesh creep. He went on shouting and plunging and gesticulating and during the recital Mr. Bagot's face stiffened and stiffened into bony horror. It must be confessed that Mr. Houlton's face showed some faint lines of dismay and distaste. Merrial nervously arranged her tea things. Her eyes betrayed panic and amusement in about equal proportions.

Mr. Bagot did not wait for tea. He interrupted Dr. Scranton very positively and took his leave. His bow to Merrial was rather in the nature of a surgical operation itself. But Dr. Scranton did not leave. He stayed and drank many cups of tea and ate mountains of toast and cake and jumbles. With his mouth full he still talked of operations and of Merrial, of her grit, her sharpness, her medical and surgical insight; Reval's admiration of her. Mr. Houlton stood before the fireplace and quietly listened. There began to be little puckers about his eyes and mouth corners. He looked at Merrial. It was only a few minutes before the announcement of dinner when Dr. Scranton left and then Merrial turned and lifted up her hands.

"O, dad, forgive me!"

"What does it mean? Why this sudden interest in Reval's surgery?"

"I can't tell you."

"More secrets, Merrial! I'm afraid, my dear, that you've lost a very creditable parti by this curious intrusion into the medical world."

"I know I have." Merrial gave way to mirth. "Did you watch Mr. Bagot's face, dad? O! O! O!"

"But did you watch mine, Merrial?"

Merrial looked rather downcast. "Yes. I suppose you think I'm horrid." She was, suddenly, very white and weary, and her lips were not quite steady. She gathered up her muff and gloves and scarf and little purse and moved away from him towards the door. "I wish I could tell you, father—you know I hate keeping things secret from you. Don't you trust me, dad dear—even if I do seem rather horrid?"

He followed her quickly and took her by the arm. "Merrial, my dear, I'd trust you to the ends of the earth. But don't serve my friend Reval as you've served Tripp. Whatever this terrifying new departure may mean—and I admit that it terrifies me and I don't like it—I know that you are doing it for some mad, kind, curiously wise purpose of your own."

Merrial dropped her furs and put her arms around him. "You darling, but"—with a sudden change of tone—"but, what have you been doing? I don't like the look of you one bit."

He changed his expression. "How was I looking?"

Her long lashed eyes searched him. "Father, when you look very tired and very much amused I know that something has gone wrong."

"Come up and have dinner," he said, "no time to dress." And he added as he climbed up the stairs behind her lagging ascent, "I hope your precious new scheme doesn't mean any desire to spend vast sums of money, Merrial."

She stopped with her hand on the railing. But she didn't turn.

"Why, father?"

He gave a dry little laugh. "Because, like one of those toy monkeys that runs up a stick and then drops down, I've dropped. Straight to the foot of the pole, Merry. I'll have to begin again."

In her own sitting room upstairs, Merrial listened that evening to her father's terse, half humorous account of what he had described as his slip to the bottom of the pole. To many young girls the story would have been incomprehensible, but Merrial had followed her father's career very closely and every step had been discussed with and explained to her. She understood the world of business ventures in which Mr. Houlton had played an extraordinary rôle rather better than the average young man. There was very little emotion either in his recital or in her reception of it. James Houlton had slipped down and climbed up again several times in his adventurous, enterprising, singularly successful life. Merrial's face was certainly a trifle pale and her pupils were large, and Houlton's gestures showed a certain tension, but there was no air of defeat or alarm or hopelessness about either of them. He was ready for a fresh start and she saw him at once as a climber rather than as a fallen man.

"I made my mistake in trusting that Perriker outfit," Mr. Houlton mused. "They're as slippery as the oil we were all after. However, I see a chink in their armor," he stopped and sat still, peering keenly at his mental picture of the knotty problem ahead. Merrial watched him with parted lips. When he relaxed she sighed and settled back into the cushions of the window seat. He turned his kind, magnetic look towards her.

"But now, old girl, it means I shall have to cut down to the quick here and betake myself to Texas as soon as may be. And that's where you come in. Of course, you understand that none of this touches you and Dick. I put your money out of my own reach after that last tumble of mine and, though I have to begin again——"

"Father, of course you'll use my money to make your start with!"

"No, ma'am." He snapped his jaws tight and showed her glinting eyes of steel. She fluttered her eyelashes at him imploringly, then gave it up. Once in a while Mr. Houlton had his own way.

"Dick," he went on, "is safe at Oxford and as contented a Rhodes scholar, I gather from the brief reports he favors me with, as England ever entertained. He can go on. Nothing to hinder him. But, you, 'Ma Houlton,' I don't like carting you off to the Texas oil fields. You've roughed it enough with your monkey-on-a-pole dad."

Merrial's face had begun to gleam with eager satisfaction.

"I certainly have luck!" she exclaimed. "If you had to lose your fortune you couldn't have done it at a better time for me. I am going to sail for England and I am going to stay there until you are at the top."

Houlton straightened sharply. "For England, Merrial? To be near Dick?"

"No, I am going to visit my English relatives."

Mr. Houlton jumped up and brought his fist down in his other palm.

"No, Merrial, you're not."

He was deeply flushed. "I won't let you suffer from their insolence. You don't know what you'd meet with, dear."

"Yes, father." She was very quiet and cool. "I do know. I've read those letters you gave me and they have told me more than you could possibly imagine. I know a great deal—a very great deal—about mother's relatives. I'm going over to visit them."

"Not with my consent."

She smiled. "Very well then, dad—without it."

"Merrial," he came and sat down beside her as Tripp had sat, "you will have to take my word for this. The—the Cokes——" his quiet voice was harsh in its use of his wife's name.

Merrial was suddenly very animated. She sparkled, words tripped from her. "There's Aunt Jane Coke and there's Aunt Margaret Beaufort, father. And Aunt Jane hates you worse than any of them and she has a beastly temper and a tongue like a saw. She never married and she lives by herself and cares for nobody—except perhaps one sick boy—I'm not sure. She's not at all well off and she's as proud as Lucifer. She's tall and dark and handsome and has a sort of grim sense of humor."

Her father was staring at her as though she were the delicate, smiling witch she looked.

"And there's Aunt Margaret, who married a country gentleman named Beaufort. He died of pneumonia. Aunt Margaret has two daughters and a son. The oldest girl, Alice, is willful and has blue eyes. She's two or three years younger than I. The second, was a 'round, cozy, brown baby.' And Aunt Margaret herself—well, dad, I should think she must be very much like mother. She is rather a dear, I'm sure."

"She may be a dear for all I know," said James Houlton bitterly. "But I have never tested her dearness. She was much younger than Miss Jane Coke, and spared me any expression of her opinion. Doubtless, she considered it her duty to hate me, whether or no."

"Did she hate you, dad?" It was a sweet incredulous murmur, lightly brushing across the pain which had possessed his face.

"Probably. They all did."

"But why?"

He lit a cigaret, stood up and began to walk to and fro. "I am not going to tell you, Merrial. It won't bear talking of. Perhaps, if you go over, you will find out for yourself." He looked rather white.

"Then it's not just because you are an American."

"O, that was quite enough, I should think."

"How queer! It's all so very queer, so very, very queer. I can't help feeling that there's a tangle of misunderstanding somewhere."

"Nothing of the sort. You'll find no tangle nor confusion in the Coke mentality, my dear. It's good, solid clear cut prejudice. It's the ugliest thing you ever met with. And the stupidest. And I don't mean to let you come up against it—savvy?"

"But, father," said Merrial half plaintively, "I've made up my mind." They were silent for a moment and in the silence their faces settled into an extraordinary resemblance of sweet, sharp determination.

"You're not going to do anything, dear, against my wishes, Merry?"

"O dad, I'm afraid I am."

He smiled a quick, edged smile. "What for—in the name of red revolution? What object have you in going over to stay with them?"

She stood up and came to him, putting a hand on each of his shoulders.

"Can't you trust me?"

"Not to the tender mercies of the Cokes, my dear."

"Then, if you must know——" She broke off with a sigh and pleading look. "Father, I'd rather not tell you, please."

He felt, looking down at her lovely, wistful, loving face that his whole method of education was being put to the test. He had never interfered by a direct unreasoning command, he had never insisted upon explanations. He always had reasoned and trusted and allowed her to learn by her own mistakes. To do her cleverness justice these had been remarkably few.

"Sit down a minute," he said, "and let me tell you some of the things that were said to me by your English relatives. I have a pretty good memory. Most of them stuck."

She sat down, locked her hands together, and listened with a shocked face and blinking eyes.

"Father! You! They said those things to you?"

"Yes—and worse. Now, do you want to visit them?"

She spoke very low and very slowly.

"Yes. More than I did before."

"I shall be wretched about you. If they used you like that——" He set his teeth.

"Ah, but they won't. And, after all, if it's too awful, dear, I have Dick to fly to, and what's to keep me from boarding the first steamer home?"

"I don't want any favors from them to you, Merrial."

"Favors! That's the last thing I expect from them. I am not going over for my own sake, nor for Dick's, nor for yours, father."

"Then—for whose?"

She was still a moment then whispered tremulously, "For mother's."

Merrial had her way.

. . . . . .

The salt wind freshened up the harbor as the big steamer turned its prow from the nearby skyscrapers of the new world towards the distant towers of the old. It blew a nodding rose against Merrial's cheek and fluttered a yellow telegram that she was clutching in her hand. The decks were beginning to clear, but the young girl still stood by the rail holding with fixed eyes that waving dot on the wharf that a few minutes ago had been the strong dear presence of her father. They had been through several weeks of demolishing of old plans and making of new ones and it seemed to have knit them even closer toegther if such a thing were possible. Now she had wrenched herself away from him against his own wish. That hurt Merrial. She brushed her eyelashes, relentlessly snapped off the rose that struck her cheek, and went down to her stateroom.

It was full of flowers and boxes of fruit and candy. A pile of steamer letters lay on the couch. Merrial found a place to sit down and then she smoothed out the telegram that had been all this while clutched in her gloved fingers.

"Good luck to your schemes. If you need help for any big or little bother cable to me. Can be with you in a few days if wanted. Please want me. TRIPP."

She laid aside the telegram and chose a letter from the pile.

"Dear Merrial: Sorry you couldn't see your way to coming out here and stopping with my partner and his wife until the dust settles down and your father gets on top again. He's an awfully nice sort, my partner, and so is she, and you'd have been most extravagantly welcome. I could have kept out of the way if it would have bothered you to have me round. I am out of the way most of the time, anyhow, riding all over the sage brush seeing that the boys don't lie down on their jobs. But, since you couldn't or wouldn't, God bless you and give you just what you want in England or any other place. I only wish you could learn to want something I can give you in very large quantities. Remember your promise to begin thinking of me in the new way. Here are three other things I want you to make a note of:

"1. That I am in the saddle again and am riding for another fall.

"2. That I have never stopped being your friend, and never will. It's no drawback to a marriage.

"3. That England is not such a very far away little island and that if you need me I'll come to you. Your plans may not go quite as smoothly as an old rope. Besides, it's easier to throw a diamond when there's a fellow on the other side of the pack.

"Can you keep those in your saddle pocket and take 'em out now and then?

"I am thinking of you a great deal more than I want to or intend to. Nothing seems to stop it. I'm afraid you've put your punch into me for keeps. Here I am,

"Yours,

"TRIPP."

. . . . . .

Alice Beaufort was the type of girl—a peculiarly English type—known as "downright." She was averse to compromise. Black was black, and white was white; why argue the matter? Loyal to her own people, to a fault, it was not easy for her to see a point of view differing from that to which she was accustomed. As eldest of the family, and conscious of the dignity of having recently celebrated her twenty-first birthday, she felt it incumbent upon her to maintain a properly condemnatory attitude toward the sudden descent into their midst of this interloping American cousin of theirs, Merrial Houlton.

Alice and her sister, Winifred, two years her junior, were discussing the subject on the tennis court between sets.

"You're all too nice about it," protested Alice. "As for Madre, of course she'd let the whole world ride roughshod over her, if she thought it would make the world any happier. But I think it's simply outrageous."

Winifred swung her racquet slowly to and fro, pendulum-wise, contemplating its oscillations judicially.

"No, Alice, I don't think that's fair to Merrial. She's certainly had nothing to do with all the bother in the past, and for all we know she may have wanted to make it up and be nice and cousinly. Of course, it's not exactly convenient to have a strange girl kindly but firmly dropped into our family circle for the summer, but still . . . Anyhow, it'll be rather jolly to see what an American cousin's like."

"Then," retorted Alice, "she might at least be a rich American cousin. An American cousin has no business to be poor. Besides"—the tall, fresh colored girl straightened her boyish shoulders—"besides, this precious uncle-in-law of ours, Mr. James Houlton, never looked us up at all till he lost his money. I call it rather shabby to ignore one's relations when one's rich, and then saddle them with one's daughter as soon as she's hard up for a home."

Winifred let her racquet rock to a pause, and lifted her earnest gaze from the ground.

"Uncle James Houlton may not have behaved very well," she said quietly; "indeed, I do think he has been a bit shabby, but that's not Merrial's fault, is it, Alice? We must try to be fair to Merrial."

Alice groaned.

"'Merrial!' I'm sick of the very name. We've had 'Merrial' for breakfast, luncheon, tea, and dinner ever since her letter came. I'll be glad when she arrives and we know the worst."

"Well begun is half done, you know, Ally," her sister laughed mischievously. "She'll be here this evening, and, as for me, I think it'll be rather a lark. At any rate, do let's try to be decent to her."

Alice gave a little half-consenting growl.

The two girls were very different, in spite of the strong family likeness. Alice, tall and wiry, looked energetic and competent enough to command an army. She talked crisply, and looked out upon the world through a pair of blue eyes as uncompromising as the muzzle of a gun. As is generally the case, she was older in character development though younger in the ways of the world than an American girl of 21. Winifred, a sweet soul, and gravely earnest, seemed a good deal more than two years Alice's junior. She was a Du Maurier type, straight, short nose, wavy dark hair, and big eyes—undoubtedly the beauty of the family, and magnificently unconscious of the fact. Her vanity was her athletic prowess, and her sorrow was her sex. She was almost amazingly simple and happy hearted.

The two girls, having reached a kind of truce on the burning question of Merrial and her visit, sat down upon the grass with sighs of relief from the stress of their altercation.

"I wonder what she'll be like, Ally," Winifred questioned.

Alice replied at once, sitting erect on the lawn to do so. Their opinions elbowed each other something in this fashion:

"Big and handsome and loud," said Alice.

"Pretty and petite and French," corrected Winifred.

"Awkwardly naïve and uncultured, and wears too many clothes."

"Awfully clever and chic and self-possessed."

Here Alice glared wrathfully at Winifred, who put both her hands to her ears and burst out laughing.

"The fact is," said Winifred, "we've never either of us known an American girl, Alice, and stories are so contradictory."

"I'm sure I'm right about her," persisted Alice, doggedly. "I've seen them poking about in London, doing picture galleries, with guide books under their arms and cameras slung over their shoulders. Eugh!"

"Now, Alice," earnestly admonished her sister, "how would you like us to be judged by all sorts of English people who travel abroad? Americans can't be all exactly alike."

"Yes, they are; that nice Mr. Houlton from Oxford, who stays with the Rivingtons, says they are. When I first met him at Rivington House, thinking he might possibly be some connection of that uncle-in-law of ours, as his name's the same, I asked him if he had any American relations. Of course he hasn't. He loathes them. He says they're all alike—half baked and vulgar and—oh, dreadful!"

"What has that to do with it? Mr. Houlton has probably seen just the same kind that you've seen in London; it doesn't prove anything."

"But Mr. Houlton meets all kinds of Americans, at Oxford, you know—the Rhodes scholars. He knows them intimately. Of course, he is tremendously English, and frankly dislikes 'the Yanks,' as he calls them. Don't you remember the stories he told us about those American girls at Rome who persisted in humming 'Under the Bamboo Tree' in St. Peter's?"

"Yes, I remember—but, Ally, I didn't quite like Mr. Houlton; he seemed so full of swank, and was so bitter about everything un-English. The American were simply splendid in the war, when they came in; and, after all, they really are sort of national cousins of ours, you know—not so very different from the Canadians and Australians in that way, except that they aren't part of the British empire. No—I didn't like Mr. Houlton, I must say."

"Well, I did."

This statement from Alice was final, and the mildly discordant duet was interrupted by the appearance of a sweet, pink cheeked, elderly woman, who came wandering down from the house, across the lawn, and seated herself in a rustic chair beside her daughters. Their faces softened prettily to greet her. "Madre" was very much beloved.

"Don't you trust me, dad dear—even if I do seem rather horrid?"

"I'm a bit bothered," she said, stroking Winifred's wavy hair, and looking from her to Alice. "When Merrial comes——"

Alice frowned.

"Merrial again! Can't we let her rest a bit, Madre mia?" she pleaded.

"Let Madre finish," corrected Winifred.

"Merrial will have to be taken to see Aunt Jane, and yet I'm very much afraid she'll make Merrial very uncomfortable. She's still so very bitter about it all, poor dear. It seems impossible for her to forget, though I'm sure she's tried to forgive Mr. Houlton."

"They'll probably both be uncomfortable," Alice stated in matter of fact fashion, "and that seems to me perfectly fair. Aunt Jane's been making us uncomfortable for years, and we haven't even deserved it. Merrial—or at least Merrial's father—has."

"I see it now!" suddenly cried Winifred. "I see it! Alice reminds me of Aunt Jane!"

This totally unexpected comment was so unfavorably received by Alice, and with such mild astonishment by her mother, that Winifred tactfully decided to leave the family group and run over to "Edith's."

"Why need you worry about Merrial's feelings, Madre?" Alice began when the interruption was over. "She can't be so awfully sensitive with such a father, and, at any rate, I'd like her to get just a glimmer of what this means to us. We're all too milk-and-watery."

She passed, and then added:

"After we've scrimped all the winter to be able to let Hubert take the treatment at those baths that Dr. Unwin has recommended and which might at least relieve him. It's a shame!"

Her direct eyes filled. Mrs. Beaufort silently laid a sympathetic hand on Alice's shoulder.

"Can't you take him anyhow, Madre; surely we can make two ends meet, and I can look after things here?" begged the girl.

"I can't, dearest. We don't know what Merrial will be like—how much of a responsibility, I mean—and, of course, her being here will make a considerable difference to our expenses. We can't economize with her as our guest, as we can when we're alone together. Everything counts, and besides——"

"You don't think I could manage the house if you're away with Hubert," Alice filled in, with warm reproach, her cheeks flushing with vexation.

"You'd be a perfect housekeeper," her mother replied soothingly, "though I'm just a bit afraid you might not make Merrial feel quite at home. But we must give it up, this year, dear, in any case."

Alice held a stricken silence.

"It's too bad," she said presently. "But, Madre, why do you think Aunt Jane will be nasty to Merrial? Her visit to us won't be any inconvenience to her."

"Well, you see, Jane never liked James Houlton, and she was very much against Theodora's American marriage. And, besides—though it seems rather inconsistent—she's very bitter over Mr. Houlton's quiet ignoring of us all."

"She probably wanted an opportunity to snub him," guessed Alice shrewdly.

"James Houlton was never at all sensitive," went on Mrs. Beaufort. "He went straight for whatever he wanted, took it before all comers, and let the rest take care of itself. He was—and I imagine from all accounts he still is—rather an amazingly masterful person. I quite agree that it does seem rather characteristic of him to launch Merrial upon us in this way, considering all things. It's certainly rather cool."

"To put it mildly," agreed Alice dryly. "Though he didn't even trouble to write to you himself, of course it's all his doing. But I must say I think if I'd been Merrial I'd have had something to say about it."

Mrs. Beaufort promptly took up the defense for her niece, Thedora's daughter.

"The poor child probably had little voice in the matter. James is a man to obey. And then, she must have been quite bewildered at the change in everything. Think of it, dear! Two months ago James Houlton was an enormously wealthy man, and now——"

"But how can he afford to send her over here, then? We couldn't afford to go over there! But I suppose they haven't any home, and it will save expense in the end, or something."

"Yes, and Merrial's brother, Dick, is over in England, I understand. So I suppose they'll see something of each other in that way. I think he won a Rhodes scholarship and is at Oxford."

"Is he? How funny! Don't you remember we told you about that Mr. Houlton who was staying at Aunt Ellen Rivington's and Win and I were just talking about him? I asked him if he had any American relations, as I thought he might be connected with Merrial's family, and he said he couldn't bear 'the Yanks' at Oxford. Hard luck that there should be an American of the name of Houlton there! I suppose Merrial's brother is one of the same kind. But you'd have thought he might at least have let us know that he was there, and asked to come and see us!"

Mrs. Beaufort flushed a little and smiled rather bitterly. "I shouldn't be surprised if Dick Houlton scarcely knows of our existence, his father has so entirely failed to keep up the connection. Theodora died when Merrial was a mere child, and since his letter to tell us of her death"—Mrs. Beaufort's voice steadied itself with an effort—"I have not had a line from him—all these years—from Theodora's husband!"

The tears fell, and Alice rose and kissed her mother passionately.

"He must be a brute," she said. "I do hope Merrial won't be, too—like him."

Mrs. Beaufort recovered herself.

"I must say, in justice to James Houlton, that he had something on his side. Your grandfather was violently against the marriage, and Jane even more so. My mother had died a few years before, and Jane sacrificed herself utterly to fill her place for father and us two girls. She and your grandfather did treat James—well, very cavalierly. I was considered too young to be told much about it—but it seemed to me there was something in their bitter opposition which I didn't quite understand. Aunt Jane was really rabid about it!"

"Well," said Alice cheerfully, "perhaps Merrial will act as a kind of buffer between us, madre. Aunt Jane may forget all about our iniquities, and how you spoil us, and how 'advanced' I am, and how 'slangy' Win is, and all the rest. We may even get a rest from—— O, dear! There's Hubert calling. Sit still, madre. I'll go," and Alice flew to see what she could do for the invalid brother.

Aladdin Homes Offer

Quick Relief from Housing Shortage

Complete Delivery of Materials Guaranteed

It is a well known fact that present stocks of building material are the lowest in history. No relief of the shortage in the open timber market is in sight. There are four buyers to every single stick of lumber available. If lumber operations in the forests were increased three times greater than the present production it would hardly supply the market this year; but we anticipated this situation long ago, so that the Aladdin yards today are bulging with stocks.

Aladdin capacity for turning out ready-cut houses was thus prepared to meet the extraordinary demand of home builders this year. Every day train loads of material are received in the Aladdin warehouses—proving the Aladdin foresight and organized preparedness. Every Aladdin house in 1920 will be shipped complete as to all material. This is positively guaranteed to every purchaser, and there will be no costly delays if you build by the Aladdin method.

Over 100 Beautiful Designs

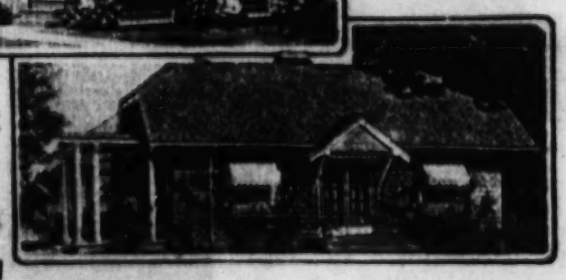
Where else can you get this assurance? Where else can you get such service? Where else, indeed, can you procure a complete assemblage of all the necessary materials for your building? The country-wide building program, launched to overcome the national scarcity of homes, is crowding the market to a standstill. The demand for material has taxed the available supply to the utmost.

Ten million people are to be housed before October, if possible. The available built houses are practically sold out. Rents have doubled and trebled, and the rush to build grows daily. Quick action is imperative. District after district has met with a shortage of one material or another and forced builders to impassable stoppage of progress.

Save $300 to $1,000

Aladdin methods make your cost 18% less for lumber alone, 30% less for labor, and cuts down the time for erection one-third, besides getting material on the site with the least possible delay. These are facts! Proof is readily accessible, for there is an Aladdin Home near you wherever you live. Certified records of thousands of Aladdin homebuilders in every state prove these statements. Send today for Aladdin Book.

THE ALADDIN SYSTEM WILL SAVE THREE WEEKS TIME BUILDING THIS HOUSE



15 DAYS TO THREE WEEKS TIME SAVED BUILDING THIS ALADDIN

For those who would build this year, quick action is necessary. The Aladdin Homes solve all difficulties. They offer quick relief and delivery, with guaranteed, complete shipment. The Aladdin method leaves nothing necessary but the actual erection of the building. Fourteen years of success has proven it to be the one sure, economical and satisfactory way to have a home this year. JOHNSON'S CARBON REMOVER

In

You can keep your motor snappy and full of "pep" by preventing the accumulation of carbon. Don't wait until your engine is choked and caked with it. Use Johnson's Carbon Remover every 500 miles, then the carbon is removed while it is soft and powdery, eliminating the frequent grinding of valves and keeping the motor always clean. No experience or labor required—you can easily do it yourself in ten minutes—without even soiling your hands—and the cost is trifling.

EASY—CLEAN—SAFE—QUICK

Johnson's Carbon Remover is the easiest, cleanest, safest and most satisfactory remedy for carbon. It will save you from $3 to $5 over any other method without laying up the car. A dose of Johnson's Carbon Remover, the engine laxative, will stop that knock—quiet your motor—save your batteries and reduce your gasoline consumption 12% to 25%.

Johnson's Car Savers Keep Your Car Young

Start today to reduce the depreciation of your automobile. An hour or two every month and JOHNSON'S CAR SAVERS will prove their value in dollars and cents when you come to sell or turn in your car.

There is a JOHNSON CAR SAVER for every purpose—no experience is necessary for their use—they can all be applied by the amateur with perfect satisfaction.

Johnson's Radiator Cement—in liquid form and easy to use. Will ordinarily seal leaks in from two to ten minutes. All you have to do is remove the radiator cap and pour it in.

Half-pints—75c.

Johnson's Stop-Squeak Oil—penetrates between the spring leaves, thoroughly lubricating them. Simply paint it on with a brush or squirt it on with an oil can—you don't even need to jack up the car.

Half-pints—35c.

Johnson's Auto-Lak—an automobile body varnish that amateurs can use successfully. Goes on easily and quickly—you can finish your car one day and drive it the next. A pint is sufficient for a roadster.

Pints—$1.50.

Johnson's Black-Lac—a perfect top dressing. One coat imparts a rich, black finish just like new. Easy to apply—is permanent, waterproof and inexpensive.

Half-pints—75c.

Johnson's Cleaner—for body, hood and fenders. It removes spots, stains, tar, alkali—preparing surfaces for a polish. Contains no grit or acid.

Half-pound cans—45c.

Johnson's Prepared Wax Liquid—for polishing body, hood and fenders. Imparts a hard, dry, glasslike polish which does not collect or hold the dust. Preserves the varnish and protects it from the weather.

Half-pints—50c.

Johnson's Hastee Patch—a quick, permanent repair for tubes, casings and all rubber goods. A box in your car answers the same purpose as two or three extra tubes and casings.

Small Size (enough for 25 average patches)—50c.

Johnson's Valve Grinding Compound—will remove pits and foreign substance from valves, giving a velvet seat.

4 oz. boxes—50c.

Johnson's Carbon Remover—cures 80% of engine trouble.

Half-pints—75c.

what is dandruff?

DANDRUFF is an unnecessary nuisance, first of all. Actually, in substance, it is dead skin. If Nature falls short in supplying the oil-food so essential to the delicate hair-roots, the scalp becomes dry and scaly. Tiny particles flake off and are called "dandruff."

Dandruff is easily eliminated or prevented by the daily use of Petrole Hahn. It contains a scientific proportion of necessary oil-food (refined petroleum) —merely enough to keep the scalp soft and fertile, and to nourish the delicate hair-roots.

As an invigorating hair dressing for daily use Petrole Hahn is delightfully refreshing. Men and women alike favor its dainty perfume. Buy a bottle today and be safe from dandruff and under-fed hair-roots.

Light Brunettes!

Awake in your coloring your greatest charm

"LET its tender color of the rose" seemingly melt into the very coloring of the complexion itself. Soften with a dainty touch of face powder.

For this unconscious beauty, the light Brunette type, here so beautifully delineated by Pressler, our artists have prescribed—when emphasis is needed—Djer-Kiss Charlotte Corday Rouge with Djer-Kiss Chair Face Powder.

Always they insist that the natural charm is the supreme charm. That it is in the natural application of the right shades of Rouge and Face Powder that the "unconscious beauty" awakes in her coloring, her greatest charm.

If you are not of this "unconscious beauty type," you will rejoice to find your own type in the Djer-Kiss Chart, with its helpful advice—its guidance for your use of Djer-Kiss Rouge and Djer-Kiss Face Powder.

And always, always—rightly applied—you will find how beautifully Djer-Kiss Rouge and Face Powder blend. How soft and pure and beautifying they are to the smooth satin texture of the skin.

In their pure naturalness is your safeguard. Their natural, wise use will not only show you how beautifying they are—but, too, how protecting and benefiting to the tender complexion, preserving for you your natural charm which is your greatest charm.

La Creole Hair Requisites

Bring the Charm France Gave the Creoles

Creole charm and Creole "modes de toilette" both came to old New Orleans with the French and Spanish forefathers of the aristocratic Creoles of today. The wonderful Creole Hair is a mark of their pure French-Spanish blood and an evidence of the care they give it. La Creole Hair Preparations are favorite among them.

No Gray Hair

"La Creole" Hair Dressing will restore hair that has grown gray, gray streaked, or faded, to its original color and beauty. La Creole works no sudden noticeable change. Two to five weeks' treatment is required to restore the natural color—lightest brown to deepest black—whatever the natural shade was. Thereafter an occasional application preserves it permanently.

"La Creole" must not be confused with dyes. It cannot give the hair a dyed look, nor stain the scalp, and there is nothing to wash or rub off. Refinement approves its use.

Absolutely guaranteed to bring back the hair's color—or money refunded. Price per bottle, $1.00.

Moth Balls are only "Scarecrows"

They don't kill moths

DEPARTMENT STORES, TAILORS, FURRIERS USE IT BECAUSE—

ENOZ KILLS MOTHS

Scientists know that moth balls are only repellants—nothing more. Once moth eggs are deposited, moth balls are worthless. Why bother with their smelly use when positively ends moth ravages the instant applied? Kills moths and larvae, destroys eggs. Stainless and harmless. Slight, pleasant, antiseptic odor quickly disappears. An ounce of ENOZ will go farther than pounds of moth balls. It is cheapest in the end.

ENOZ

SUMMER MODES ARE DRAWING NEAR

By Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.] — April always makes one think of the ready courtier who cries: "The king is dead; long live the king." It is still wearing some of the modes of winter, but you see it smiling on the brand new monarch of summer. Nothing points to this observation more than New York in general and Fifth avenue in particular.

Thus, at the last nights of the opera this month one found much the same kind of evening clothes that have been draping the boxes all winter long. Same gigantic, barbarous looking ostrich fans, same head dresses, and, above all, the same preponderance of green. Indeed, speaking of green, here is a tint which bids fair to be as popular all through the spring and summer as it has been during the winter. Truly, jade never becomes jaded.

Then, too, the ghost of winter rises on the street occasionally in the form of some costly fur coat or neckpiece. Street wear, however, is thinking more about the new monarch than the old, and the spring wrap pre-eminent seems to be once again the cape. Some of these wraps look exactly like those which ravaged the New York landscape last April. Others, however, show some brand new touches. Among these is the introduction of plaiting. Another is the fact that some of the newest models are skimpy—mere timid little things that reach only to the waist line.

As a matter of fact, the cape is again jutting out on the waters of fashion in its old expert way. Often, in fact, this garment is an integral part of the frock. Thus Callot sends us a navy serge frock with elongated waist, cire embroidery, and bands on the elbow sleeves, which dress is accompanied by a long cape of the same embroidery and trimmed in the same way. Similarly, there comes from Lanvin a black crepe meteor frock, the skirt of which is blocked in white outlined with scarlet and silver thread. Here, too, old duenna cape comes along. This particular one is a long model of black serge lined with the same block pattern that appears on skirt and sleeves.

It will be seen from these examples that the cape of such costumes is either of self-material or else bears some touch of trimming relating it to the dress. Serge capes are particularly good with foulard frocks and, in this instance, they are generally lined with the foulard of the frock.

And, by the way, in spite of the fact that taffeta has taken up so much of the foreground of the dress stage, it is perfectly safe to indulge your temperament for foulard. Some of the smartest women in New York are picking out the lovely new foulards, many of which, by the bye, are in black and white. Two other materials bound to be taken up by the fashionable are crepe meteor and crepe de chine. These latter are frequently embroidered in bears or wool.

A mode in which fickle April is making her obeisance to summer is found in the new waist line. Many of the bodices are long and some of them are quite bloused. Certainly the same cannot be said for the skirts. In spite of an earlier tendency to more covering, many of the present models may be said to suffer from undernourishment.

Thus the other day I met a friend of mine just off the boat. She was wearing a blue serge frock bought at a famous Parisian atelier. It started off finely, but there was simply no third act.

At the upper left a frock of gray taffeta embroidered in black and Veronese green is accompanied by a hat of gray horsehair, the front brim of which is faced with black satin appliqued with bright colored flowers. Next, a hat of emerald patent leather embroidered in colors chimes in wonderfully with a frock of two tones of green duvetyn. The popular Shantung suit is represented next in an original model lined with pale gray satin and accompanied by a hat of toast colored grosgrain ribbon faced with suede. Next, a frock of bisque taffeta glace renders the apron effect in its two original side flounces. The hat is carried out in tones of apricot taffeta and bisque tulle.

At the lower left a hat of black patent leather stitched with gold is mated to a one piece frock of steel blue taffea glace with coatee basque of black velvet to which is appliqued blue ribbon edged with steel thread. Last, a costume of black and white taffeta is accompanied by a hat of triple ply white tulle, to which are applied motifs of black patent leather stitched with silver thread and tufted with aigrettes.

"Well," I remarked, cuttingly, looking at that experimental skirt, "why don't you get your mamma to let down your skirt?"

And, really and truly, it was not quite the length with which I used to be afflicted when I was 12 years old and dying to look 30.

With this limited skirt acreage has come a tremendous fancy for the most elaborate stockings and footwear. The short French vamp is much to the fore now for street and day wear. It comes in either pump or Oxford and in suede, patent leather, or kid. Suede is particularly smart just now and is found chiefly in gray, black, or Havana brown.

A friend of mine was exploiting a pair of kid shoes the other day which had one strap about the ankle and several over the instep. "Forty dollars," she remarked, and then with a sigh she added: "Oh, well, I was tired of my car, anyway."

That it is a question of some such alternative is found in the prices affixed to all these shoes and stockings. For even more elaborate are the evening shoes. These, by the way, generally have a longer vamp than daytime models and often are attached with jeweled clasps. Gold and silver slippers, for example, frequently exploit jeweled buckles. Black satin pumps may be strapped down with pearls or otherwise jeweled clasps. You may even trim your evening slippers with lace.

Equally sumptuous are the stockings on which the skirt curtain raises. For wear with black kid or patent leather pumps we have exquisite stockings of black silk which are either embroidered or inset with weblike lace. As to the short vamp shoe, it has almost necessitated a new kind of stocking. At all events, you find the hose designed for these often embroidered low down on the instep. And then, too, we have some fevered models, among which, of course, one locates the Egyptian type. One of these occurs in white with scarabs and mummies done in green and red silk.

Altogether, there are shoe and stocking reasons for the short skirt!

POLO COATS

Our Specialized Sports Department Presents Their Possibilities

FOR every wear, every time and for everybody the Sports Department presents an unlimited selection of styles in Polo Coats—the coat that is sponsored by fashion as the swagger style of the year.

Sports Department, Fifth Floor

The Universal Popularity of Polo Coats

FOR some time our Sports representatives abroad have been watching the development of Polo cloth for coats. The smart coats were first successfully introduced in Paris, then the women of England responded, and now they have invaded America. Their popularity at Atlantic City in the Easter parade was so noticeable that it was virtually a "Polo Day."

They come in sizes 36 to 44 for women; for misses, 14 to 18; and for girls, sizes 6 to 16. $45 to $135.

Genuine Worumbo Camel's Hair Chukka Cloth

THE Sports Department—first to introduce the new "chau" (pronounced "chow") color in this soft woolen genuine worumbo camel's hair chukka cloth—will show models in the natural color of the camel, tan, also agate, topaz, and chau—as well as three different grades of cloth in tan from England. There are smart, short, to the hip, or long, to the hem of the skirt, models—belted or beltless—with raglan shoulders or mannish sleeves—and all with unusual pockets.

PERSONAL CLEANLINESS

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

ONE somehow feels the need of apology when introducing a subject relative to the uncleanliness of folk. My apology is the near riot that the remarks of a prominent physician brought forth before a woman's organization at which he was invited to speak.

His topic was personal hygiene, and he unafraidly told the sex he was addressing that as a sex they had many virtues, but included among them was not the cleanliness of body that man is noted for.

The "delicate" implication that woman was a less clean person than the male of the house brought forth recitals of little Johnny's unwashed ears, little Johnny's dirty hands, and big Johnny's overgrown beard and his attachment for a soiled shirt or collar.

Business Women an Exception.

"Almost any physician will tell you, if he has the courage to face a woman's wrath, that men are cleaner about the body and the underwear than are women," this physician said.

"I will eliminate the smart young business woman from the charge. But there are a lot of so-called business women who aren't smart enough to know the value of the daily bath.

"The worst offender—because she has not lack of time as her excuse and because she has obligations of cleanliness to husband and family—is the home woman, the woman getting on, when cleanliness is the one virtue she needs more than any other to help her become again the sweet young girl she used to be."

Woman's Moral Responsibility.

Now, I will say neither aye nor nay to his resolution about my sex—rather let you fight it out in your own household with concrete evidence in each particular case as to which sex the bathtub is more popular with. Because I think there are an equal number of offenders against personal hygiene in each sex, but by the very reason of her being woman she is expected to maintain the principles of both godliness and cleanliness in equal proportion.

We will let it go at that, with just a word of advice if by any chance you are a bit neglectful of the daily tubbing or bodily scrubbing of some kind that a moral responsibility toward the fair sex rests with each member thereof. In other words, to remove the doubt from the mind of the doubting Thomas let us resolve to never go to bed a single day without a bath of some kind.

Daily Tub Prolongs Youth.

There's something better than just defense of the good clean name of the sex back of the habit. It is the greater health and the prolongation of youth. Nothing keeps the skin in better condition than the daily all-over cleaning. An old family physician used to say: "Let water internally, externally, and eternally be your motto and you will have little use for our profession."

The best plan is to take a warm bath at night to remove the old skin and impurities and the dirt of the day. Soap and water and a camel's hair brush are not too hard for any skin, no matter how delicate. Then in the morning take a plunge in water as cold as you can stand it. And then rub. The effect of the morning bath is psychological. It is an almost impossible feat to put soiled underwear on after a bath. A greater care of the hair, of the nails, and of the general person is noted in the daily bather.

And very important: You do not find the woman at home addicted to the morning tubbing tumbling back lazily into a kimono and boudoir cap and seating herself opposite Mr. Business Man Husband, shaved and groomed from head to foot. You don't find her lazing around the house all day and dressing for dinner over an unbathed body.

Particular in Other Ways.

You don't find the frequent and daily bather giving forth unpleasant bodily odors. She is, by the very nature of her bathing habit, more particular about her underwear, about her dress shields, if she must wear them; more particular about airing her clothes after she has removed them.

In other words, she is the young, attractive woman of no matter how many birthdays, whereas the "unwashed" are the ugly and unattractive of every age.

ADA: HAVE YOU HAD THE "flu"? In almost every case a marked shedding of hair has followed. Your case is peculiar and I wouldn't be surprised but special treatment is what you need. It needs massage, and if you cannot give it yourself why don't you have a course of hot oil treatments or electric massage of the scalp? It is so important to hang on to the hair you have it is folly to ecopomize on this feature when other things like new clothes may be sacrificed to better advantage. In the meantime suppose you rub this hair tonic into your scalp every night and morning and see if it won't improve you: Resorcin, forty-five grains; glycerin, one ounce, and equal parts of water and alcohol to fill a six ounce bottle.

UNCLE JIM'S STORY

KIMBO HAS A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

KIMBO was very lonesome at first in Reddy's house.

"Oh how I wish I could see Bimbo and Limbo," he would squeak to himself in a funny little sigh and with his head on one side of his shoulder.

But after Reddy brought home the mandolin for Kimbo to play on he was one happy monkey. He forgot all about his brothers and sisters and even his own monkey mother.

"Twang, bang, twing, bing.

Watch this monkey play and sing," Kimbo would tweak away on the strings, and every one in the family would roar with laughter.

"I certainly know how to make people laugh," Kimbo would say to himself, and his head would swell with pride. For, as I have said, Kimbo was a very vain little monkey and had always been used to lots of attention.

"You make me sick," growled Wolf, the yellow dog. "Woof—woof—I don't like you at all. Before you came everybody made a fuss over me, and now all they do is grin at your crazy tricks."

"G-r-r-r" went the mandolin strings, and Kimbo would shriek back:

"You're nothing but a jealous old dog that can't do anything but sit on his hind legs and bark for meat."

And Wolf would growl off in a corner and sulk for an hour and Kimbo would wish he dared scramble up on his back and tweak his nose and pull his tail.

So spring came and summer and each day Kimbo grew just a little bit bigger and a little bit more important.

"I hope I can stay here always," he said to himself one morning as he hopped out on the porch, his mandolin under one paw.

And this was the morning when the terrible thing happened to him. He was kidnaped!

You see it was this way: A street fair came to town. Ever see a street fair? Well, they have just about everything—dancing bears, snake charmers, fat men and thin men and tall men and midgets. And there are dogs that do tricks, kittens that dance, and fleas that are so tiny you have to look at them through a magnifying glass.

This was a wonderful street fair, too, and they had about everything but a monkey. The monkey who had been with them had died the week before and all the street fair men and women and boys and girls were waiting until they could get another monkey.

"What's that?" thought Kimbo to himself as he heard the music from the parade.

So he ran out to the fence and scrambled under a hole in the fence.

O, how that band played! Kimbo could not keep his little feet still, it sounded so much like the circus.

So away he went down the street, skipping and scampering and hopping along till he came to the long row of tents and benches and the grand stand with the music and the big pavilion where the main show was held. It looked just like his own circus except that it was much smaller.

"Wonder if Bimbo and Limbo are anywhere around?" he thought.

"O, look at the monkey!" cried out a little girl, and she came rushing up to where he stood. She was all dressed in tinsel and gold and she had a wreath of flowers on her head.

"O, you darling little monkey," she cried, snatching him up in her arms and hugging him.

Just then her brother came up.

"We'll keep him," said her brother, who was older than she and who had a very bossy air.

"G-r-r-r," cried Kimbo. "Let me go."

But it was no use squealing. Kimbo was caught, and with the big tears rolling down his face and with his legs kicking as hard and fast as he could kick, Kimbo was carried away to the tent of the brother and sister.

Come, stamp collectors, look through your books of "traders," and see if you have not some to spare for this boy.

Layette Is Needed.

"I have been economizing and making all sorts of sacrifices in order to get a few baby clothes, and now that the time is growing nearer I still have scarcely anything. Could some one give me a layette that is not being used? M. B."

Surely some mother will be only too happy to respond to this appeal for assistance and to provide the needed articles for the little newcomer.

On a Day's Walk

by Doris Blake

ARE you one of the persons who discovers after leaving the front door something was forgotten, but you refuse to go back on account of the jinx that is supposed to hang around on occasions like that? If so, you may appreciate some of these omens which are supposed to attend the day's travel.

If dust blows in your eyes when starting out, you're going to have a disappointment.

If a housewife sets out before the table is cleared, she will have a toilsome journey.

If going out on a particularly important trip and you want good luck to come out of it, have some one throw a slipper at you.

If you meet three people wearing spectacles on your walk, make a wish and it will come true.

If on starting out on any kind of a trip, you see a fight, whether it be with animals or with young boys or older ones, that indicates a prosperous errand.

Don't cut your nails just before going on a journey, or you will get into some kind of mischief.

If you drop your purse and trip over it when starting out, you will have good luck.

To see the full moon immediately on leaving your house at night is a forerunner of quarrels, unless you say: "Full moon turn away, give me luck another day."

It is supposed to be particularly bad luck if one returns to a place to say good-by to a member of the household whom she forgot to say good-by to before.

A Negro superstition is on starting on a journey to run around three chairs three times to insure good luck.

There is an old saying which runs like this:

"Part with handshakes,
Meet with laughter;
Part with kisses,
Meet with tears."

A crow superstition in connection with a journey is:

"Two crows I see,
Good luck to me;
One crow I see,
Bad luck to me."

If you dash your foot against anything on leaving your house, you'd better put your journey off for a few minutes to avoid being disappointed.

Then there is the popular crossing under a ladder superstition, which is supposed to bring ill luck.

If you have a fence to climb on the walk, this explains:

"Get over, meet with a clover;
Get through, meet with a shoe;
Get under, meet with a blunder."

In crossing a bridge, if you meet a woman first, that means a pleasant surprise. If you meet a man, your wants will be refused.

Meet a snake on the walk and you will meet an enemy soon.

It's a good omen to meet the same person twice on a walk.

It's bad luck to have a drunken man speak to you.

To meet an empty hearse is a sure sign of disappointment.

It is lucky to meet a person with a bundle. It is also lucky to meet a crippled person on your walk.

A man walking along the street and hailed by a stranger who thinks he knows him will be fortunate the rest of the day.

To meet a person who looks much like you is a bad omen.

If, on leaving the house in the morning, you see a black cat crossing the road, you will have some misfortune that day.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake care the Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Losing Her Favorite.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16. I have quite a few boy friends, but there is one whom I like better than the others. He has taken me out quite often, but lately he hasn't been as attentive as usual. I think he is losing interest in me. Can you suggest anything to make him like me again? D. K."

You wouldn't want a young man to pay you undivided attention, would you, at 16? The first thing you know he'd be wanting to marry you, and then you'd be an old married lady with all the responsibilities of a household, which would be quite a job for one as young as you.

Sister Bars Beau.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it is right for a sister to keep you away from your beau because she doesn't like him? Suppose I should keep her from her beau, too, would that be right or wrong? E. M."

If you tried the same thing on your sister, she'd tell you mighty quickly that it wasn't right. She's unfair, isn't she?

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

By Loretta King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

LOYALTY TO EMPLOYER.

THE business girl who really has the interests of her firm at heart is more surely working toward success than the girl who finds her chief form of amusement in abusing the man or company for whom she works to any one who will listen to her complaints, and in disregarding office rules and regulations whenever the chance presents itself. Even girls who admit to themselves that their greatest benefits have come to them through their employers seemingly cannot resist the temptation to take advantage of them whenever possible.

One hears so many complaints from girls about their jobs that it is a relief to find one business girl who considers loyalty to her employer as of prime importance. The girl whose loyalty I have in mind is known to me through correspondence. Some time ago I had a letter from Miss B., written from a small city in the middle west.

Miss B. had an unhappy experience with the girls who worked in the same office.

According to Miss B., the girls in this office were considered unusually lucky by all the other business girls in town. Their firm paid a higher rate of salary than any other in the vicinity. The head of the concern was a benevolent and public spirited man, and was personally interested in the affairs of each employé. The employés were given every consideration and many exceptional privileges.

Mr. H., the boss, went to Europe, and his assistant, who was not a strong executive, took his place.

As soon as the boss was out of town discipline in the office relaxed. When the girls learned that Mr. H. had sailed they began to run the office to suit themselves.

Miss B. had been employed there longer than any of the others and she naturally resented the fact that every one took advantage of Mr. H. the moment he was out of reach. However she continued to do her work as usual, keeping to the office hour schedule just as though Mr. H. was there, and taking no more privileges than she was entitled to.

At first the other girls in the office paid no attention to Miss B., but after a time they began a series of sarcastic bantering aimed at her. Then one by one they stopped speaking to her. She was unhappy at the attitude of the girls and was on the point of giving up her job when she wrote to me.

The other day I had another letter from Miss B. She didn't give up her job. On Mr. H.'s return to the office the girls fell back into their old routine. Although nothing was said to the girls, Miss B. believes that he was informed of the situation in the office during his absence, and he has recently appointed her head of the office with complete charge of the girls and has given her a substantial increase in salary. The girls, Miss B. relates, instead of showing ill feeling at her advancement, all sincerely congratulate her, and a few of them even had the grace to apologize for their recent unkindness to her.

Save Your Food and Ice With This Perfected Scientific Refrigerator

Use all the food you buy. Prevent all food spoilage this summer. Have an Alaska Refrigerator to keep hot, food-destroying air from your food.

The Alaska Refrigerator gives perfect, scientific refrigeration. It is the most perfect development of home preservation of food. It keeps food correctly cold. Chill, dry air circulates about the food. The low temperature is exactly right to keep food and liquids best. Yet so skillfully is this provided that ice actually lasts longer!

No heat can penetrate the Alaska walls of "cubed" cork and "confined" air—the two best insulators known to science. Cork insulation is a distinct Alaska superiority. It makes a compact, cold-storage plant of an attractive cabinet.

Linings are of genuine seamless porcelain, with rounded corners; or durable, immaculate white enamel. Always clean—easily washed. Strongly made, long of life. Attractive cabinets, beautifully finished.

Many convenient sizes. There is an Alaska to fit your kitchen. All give perfect, scientific refrigeration. Yet prices are no higher.

Go to one of the Alaska Dealers listed here—see the many Alaska superiorities demonstrated. Save food and ice this summer with your Alaska Cork Insulated Refrigerator.

Women's Tricotine Suits With Charm Incomparable

Second Floor.

If you're wondering why Dame Fashion is showing such partiality for tricotine suits, you'll find a ready answer in this wonderful group—remarkably smart garments that measure up to the season's finest standards of style and service at so moderate a price.

They're nattily tailored of fine quality tricotine, peau de cygne lined; the coats, as Fashion has decreed, are in hip or longer lengths, with slashed panels, and fashionable hand embroidered motifs that distinguish much higher priced garments.

Many of the suits have long shawl collar revers; narrow belts add to their smartness; clusters of pin tucks, some bound with narrow braid; the unusually fine workmanship is shown in almost every stitch; two models as illustrated; the majority are in navy blue; extraordinary values indeed for Monday's selling at..... $59

Women's full length and sports coats—quite an out-of-the-ordinary group when you consider their smartness and the excellence of the fabrics; fashioned of fine gabardines and polo cloths; full lined with plain or fancy silks; belted model, smart pockets, button trimmed; with shawl and mannish collars and revers; two of many natty models as illustrated; savings of the unusual sort Monday at..... 33.75

Women's attractive coats at a genuine bargain price; made of gray and tan mixtures; full length; half lined; semi-belted, flare back, with box pleat down the center; smart pockets, trimmed with rows of stitching and buttons. Special..... $22

WAYS OF USING THE CHILE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is something chromoesque about the chile pepper. The following description of it in "New Mexico Cookery" bears out this idea of mine, it seems to me: "There are no more picturesque scenes in the entire state of New Mexico than the gray adobe houses, adorned with long strings of red chiles suspended from the roof to dry in the warm sunshine, late in the fall. It is a picture familiar to every resident of this state, and one that many celebrated artists have painted." Yes, and some not so famous, whence the chromo.

"But no artist," writes this enthusiastic promoter, "can picture the savory taste of the succulent chile, which grows to such rare perfection in the fertile soil of this productive state." Probably many of the chiles which we get in the fall, for drying and pickling, come from New Mexico, for the chile is accounted one of the principal products of the state.

The chile has not yet been fully accepted in my food philosophy, but I do know that it is annually becoming more common in our markets, and not for pickle making alone.

Try Old Methods First.

In order to arrive at our own method of using the chile, in some of the universal ways, I should say that we must first try out the method of those who have used it for so long; after that it is probably possible to use it in more wholesome ways. There are a great number of details in the cookery of the peoples who are addicted to chile which we would never accept, and we can surely find more modern ways of using the chile than those they use.

But to do them justice we must say that they use the green chile in salads, one of its best uses, and as a highly legitimate seasoning. It is simply poor cookery to have it overtop or drown all other flavors.

Perhaps, as the exploiter quoted, when we become accustomed to the use of the chile in cooking, nothing can take its place, but some people have to learn just what a small part its place is. There are good dietetic reasons why a little of fresh chile is a much better seasoning than dried and ground pepper. It may be grown in almost any home garden. One bush is about enough for a family.

All in the Preparation.

To quote further from "New Mexican Cookery":

"With chile as with everything else that is cooked before it is eaten, it is all in the preparation of the article whether it is wholesome and palatable or indigestible and unsavory. In preparing dishes made with chile, two prominent don'ts are important factors. Don't use ground chile, and don't use either seeds or skins of the pod under any circumstances whatever, if you want satisfactory results in every respect. The skins are as tough as leather, and the seeds hot enough to burn a hole in the human stomach.

"If the green chiles are to be used they should be blistered over a blaze, or in the oven, and the skin removed. This is done by holding them over a blaze with a fork, or putting them either on top of the stove or in the oven, and turning them as they begin to blister, so that they will be uniform, and as soon as each one is properly blistered, so that the skin is puffed up from the meat of the chile, it should be laid on a cloth and covered with a towel to steam; this facilitates the removal of the skins, which may be pulled off gently without tearing the meat of the pod. A small incision near the stem end will allow the removal of seed and veins from the chile.

"If fresh red chiles are to be used whole, they should first be treated in the same manner as the green ones; but where the pulp is to be employed in making some particular dish which calls for a liberal quantity of red chile, then, whether fresh or dried, they should be prepared as follows."

Pulp Wholesome and Good.

The description of the method of preparing which follows this paragraph is too long to quote. The chiles are cooked an hour, gently, or until the meat slips easily from the skin. This cooking is described as a soaking, and must not be continued until the skins break, when the meat is scraped off. They are drained from the boiling water, some of which is saved to thin the pulp which, after being scraped from the skins, is put through a puree sieve, leaving behind the skins, the thick veins, and the seeds.

It is claimed that this chile pulp is not only palatable, but wholesome, and people hereabouts lay great stress on the removing of the veins always from chile peppers. It is estimated that sixty dried chiles will make a quart of pulp, which will keep a week or so in a cool place, or may be canned. It is a component part of many dishes of Mexican cookery.

Glorified Scrambled Eggs.

Some of the chile pulp flavored dishes are excellent for chafing dish suppers, and for Sunday evening one piece meals. It is for such a meal that a man of merit, an hydraulic engineer, who has worked much in semi-Mexican regions, prepares chile with eggs and cheese or, in Spanish, "Chile Huevos con Queso," for his family, and has prepared it for them and me since I have been visiting in Los Angeles. The family name for the dish is glorified scrambled eggs (Huevos). He works more or less independently as to proportions, amusingly so, and adds something different, I imagine, almost every time he makes a great platter of the red puffy stuff, with a plate of toast beside the platter on which to serve the preparation, but he reasoned out the following description for me:

Put through a meat chopper one-fourth pound of bacon and two large onions. Fry these together gently for about an hour or until a certain flavor recognized as the truly cooked flavor of the two is obtained. Add to this one cup of green chile chopped fine, all skins, veins, and seeds removed. Or a can of California chiles may be used. Keep this simmering, and add one can of tomato soup or a substitute, then about a fourth of a pound of cheese, which has been dissolved in a pint of milk in a double boiler, or better, half milk and half cream. Finally beat up five eggs and add them to the mixture stirring constantly, and cooking for fifteen minutes.

Recipe in Brief.

This is the recipe in brief, but one part has been omitted because most that is added to the mixture before the cheese, to flavor, can be left out without great loss. Salt and flavor to taste, or bits of various commercial sauces are added in, to taste, to the cooked bacon, onions, tomatoes, and chiles. The cooking engineer added some of his own "Bingo sauce," made by cooking together and reducing one bushel of tomatoes, forty-nine chiles, etc., the remants of his garden, with some sugar, vinegar, and the usual ingredients of a tomato catsup.

With the chile huevos con queso we had cold slaw and as a sort of dessert something resembling what the cook previously described to me as Spanish pastry—pumpkin turnovers. But daughter had made the regulation pie crust, using boiled down pumpkin, seasoned with cinnamon and cloves and fairly well seasoned for the filling. They were dainty and excellent. The poor Mexican makes his turnover crust with flour and water, with salt for shortening (joke).

By Elizabeth O. Hiller.

All measurements are made level in these recipes. A teaspoon of regulation size holds sixty drops. Three level teaspoons equal one level tablespoon. Sixteen level tablespoons equal one cup (one-half pint). The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measuring cup used in modern cookery.

Fish Salad with Cheese Sandwiches.

Make a mayonnaise dressing, using one raw egg yolk, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of paprika, a few grains of cayenne, two tablespoons of cidar vinegar (or one tablespoon each of vinegar and lemon juice), and three-fourths cup of olive oil. Mix in the usual way and when ready to add to the salad stir into the dressing the yolks of three hard cooked eggs pressed through a sieve and pounded to a paste with the flesh of three sardines (skinned and wiped free from oil). Separate the leaves of a head of big Boston head lettuce or romaine and arrange in a large nest in a shallow salad bowl; in this dispose two cups of cold cooked whitefish evenly flaked and mixed with some of the dressing. Pour remaining dressing over the fish and garnish with whole sardines, drained well from the oil and the skin carefully removed so as not to destroy the shape of these small fish. Serve at luncheon with hot cheese sandwiches.

Yellow Perch Sauted.

Scale, trim, and wipe six medium sized fresh yellow perch. Dip into skimmed milk, drain slightly, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and roll in flour until well coated. Heat in an iron skillet three tablespoons of tried out salt pork fat or equal parts of lard and butter. Arrange the perch side by side in the hot fat and cook six minutes on each side until a golden brown. Remove to hot serving platter, garnish with sprigs of parsley and lemons cut in quarters. Or serve sauce tartare in a small sauce boat on the side.

AN UNRAVELED TIDY.

I HAD been attending boarding school in Montreal, but when the summer vacation time came, I returned as usual to my home in Kingston, Canada. This was in 1867, and at that time no young woman was considered accomplished unless she was quite adept in fancywork. Accordingly, my fingers were never idle, especially because my old chums in town expected me to demonstrate the latest in the art from the great metropolis, Montreal. My pride was a crocheted tidy for the back of our best haircloth parlor chair, and it grew daily under my untiring efforts.

The woman who lived next door met with a serious accident, and it became necessary for the doctor to visit her daily. The doctor was young and single and considered quite a catch, but the girls told me that he never gave them a chance, for he was very professional and seemed oblivious to all those who did not come to him as patients. I saw him through the window when he made his first visit, but I hardly expected to meet him until it came about in this way:

One afternoon the woman suffered a relapse. I had been visiting her and of course I had my crocheting with me. In the emergency, I acted as nurse. The doctor was hastily sent for, and upon his arrival he administered some medicine, the effects of which he was obliged to remain to watch. While I stayed with the patient, he went into the living room, where he could be heard pacing up and down nervously. After some time the patient stirred, and I went into the living room to call the doctor.

There he stood, with a look of blank dismay upon his face, for in his hands were the tangled remains of what was once my tidy. In his nervous agitation he had absent-mindedly picked up my crocheting and unconsciously unraveled it. He stammered an apology and hastened into the sick-room. Other help had arrived by this time, so I left the house in high indignation and in tears.

The next day, having found out who I was, the doctor paid me a formal call to offer a better apology. I had begun a second tidy, and he professed to be greatly interested in my work. Frequently after that, when he visited his patient next door, he dropped in for a few minutes, to ask after the progress of the tidy. At one of those visits he must have determined to have that tidy for his own, because for the last fifty-three years he has had both the tidy and me.

Several delightful styles in sheer, novelty patterned and flowered cotton voiles, in the much desired dark ground; with collar, cuffs and vestee of crisp white organdie. One enchanting model is illustrated on the right. Others are equally "individual" and desirable. Fourth floor.

Imported printed cotton voiles 65c

Crisp new voiles, woven from fine yarns; also voiles of American manufacture; 40-inch.

40-in. imported white organdie 85c

—a sheer fabric especially favored for gowns, collars and cuffs.

Plain white voile at 68c

—in clear ivory tone and soft finish; closely resembling the finest imported cottons. 40-inch.

Second floor.

25,000 yards of silks at pre-war prices

In fact, this May sale of silks portends that production is overtaking consumption—that the market is becoming stabilized—that prices are ceasing to advance. The desirability of the silks further emphasizes the values.

500 yards of 36-inch navy taffeta, 2.85

All-silk taffeta in chiffon finish and with a bright, shimmering luster; a quality that readily commands a higher price.

36-inch all-silk wash satin, 2.95

Firm, lustrous satin in ivory and flesh; beautiful, reliable, and adapted for both under and outer garments.

40-inch all-silk crepe de chine, 2.95

An excellent quality for smart blouses, dresses and lingerie; white, black, flesh and wanted colors.

40-inch all-silk printed georgettes, special at 2.65

New French designs and colorings, controlled by Mandel Brothers in Chicago; two-tone and multi-colored effects; adapted for summer frocks, dresses and blouses. Regularly these georgettes would cost you one-half more. Second floor.

40-in. georgette crepe, all-silk, at 2.95

Fresh, clean, crisp georgette in white, black, flesh and wanted shades. Exceptional value.

Yard-wide satin, special at 2.85

—all-silk, and in a desirable quality for every dress purpose; navy and brown.

40-inch ivory canton crepe at 2.85

An imported, soft, crepey fabric for blouses, dresses and undergarments.

32-in. silk broadcloth featured at 2.85

—especially adapted for skirt dresses, blouses and men's shirts, and in ivory only.

36-inch knitted tricolette, May sale feature at 4.45

—popular, smart, graceful, fascinating; in firm, even weave, silky texture, and all new and staple street and evening shades, sport colors included, besides black and white. A decidedly worth while grade—not the ordinary fabrics usually offered at sale prices.

36-in. black chiffon taffeta silks, 3.55

Rich, lustrous, soft, all-silk dress taffeta; unusual value.

36-in. high grade black dress satin, 3.95

Exquisite, soft, drapy satin, considerably below regular.

40-inch imported grenadine charmeuse, in the new suede finish; May sale feature of rare attractiveness, at 4.95.

Washable summer skirts —advance exhibit and sale

Skirts smartly fashioned of pre-shrunk fabrics, including white cotton gabardine, linens, tinted voiles, plaid or striped eponges and cotton baronettes. Especially cotton baronette tub skirts at 7.50

Pearl button trimmed, and in the smart model pictured on the right, these skirts will prove highly practical additions to the summer wardrobe. Fourth floor.

Smart tub skirts at $10

Skirts of white, pre-shrunk cotton gabardine, elaborately embroidered and pearl button trimmed—as pictured on the left.

Distinctive furs for spring

Natural squirrel, natural mole and natural mink furs—decidedly vogue—here in scarfs, capes and coatees—designed by fur artists of world renown. Fifth floor.

in natural color—fur "aristocrats"—at $200 to $450.

Prize natural silver foxes—an unusual selection—at $300 to $1,350.

Fur storage

is a scientific specialty here, and the cost is moderate. Telephone Private Exchange 10, Local 69, for our motor to call for your furs.

Milanese silk gloves, 1.45 —guaranteed finger tips

Women's 2-clasp gloves in approved shades; plain or novelty contrasting embroidery.

Women's long silk gloves, 1.65

—in modish 16-button length, with double finger tips, and in the new and wanted shades.

Women's strap-wrist washable chamois gloves, 4.75. First floor.

Hand-made, emb'd lingerie—May sale of importations from France, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

This widely noted annual selling, for years an important economic factor in the buying plans of a numerous clientele, now affords an unexampled opportunity to select imported undermuslins to advantage.

Philippine hand-made night dresses, 3.95

Gowns fashioned of the very finest grade, sheer, snowy white nainsook, that will retain its luster after many washings; gowns manufactured under our own supervision, and correct as to style and cut. The floral patterns are elaborately embroidered by hand. Wide choice of styles—two as illustrated.

Hand-made envelope chemise at 3.95

—made in Porto Rico or the Philippines, of the same materials as in the night dresses; with shoulder straps or regulation armholes; elaborate designs. One style sketched.

French drawers, 2.95

—of nainsook, in straight, plain model, and adorned with artistic hand embroidery.

May sale of French petticoats at 3.95

Petticoats of heavy cambric in straight line model, hand scalloped and hand embroidered in spray design. Desirable for wear with sports skirts or sheer frocks. Third floor.

May sale of new blouses

from France, Porto Rico, the Philippines and America

Georgette, satin, tricolette, chiffon voile, sheer batiste, dotted swiss, imported organdy and rag-wear cloth blouses, at 2.25 to $35. Third floor.

Hand made blouses, 12 styles, at 5.75

Porto Rican and the Philippine blouses of sheer batiste; some exquisitely hand embroidered, others hand drawn or real filet lace trimmed; May specials.

Smart blouses, 8.75

—of imported organdy or chiffon voile, with emb. organdy or Irish crochet lace.

Organdy blouses, 3.95

—new, semi-tailored, the vestee with long shawl collar; white or new tints.

Tub dresses of gingham or voile, 6.75

—bought months ago for much less than they would cost today. Many of the dresses have been held in reserve for weeks, with the May sale in view; others newly arrived. Two illustrated. Third floor.

54-inch French serges, 4.95 —all-wool—extra quality

Closely woven, nicely finished fabrics, just heavy enough for stylish spring suits and dresses; in a full range of wanted colors with plenty of navys and black.

54-inch poiret twills and tricotines, special, 7.45

Unusual reductions on two of the season's preferred materials from our regular stock; in demand for capes, coats, suits and dresses, and here in all the wanted colors, and black. Second floor.

54-inch cashmere velours and silvertones at 6.50

—woven from the finest grade cashmere yarns, and in a choice collection of late colors, with an abundance of tans, beaver, browns, etc.; chosen for capes, dolmans and suits, and rare value.

Summer hats—late styles

Stunning new leghorns; beautiful conceits for bride's maids; light colored batavia hats with fluffy ostrich wide brimmed garden hats, with flowers, fruits and grasses; tricolette hats to match the sweaters;

at $15

Charming new taffeta pokes and large hats in the much wanted navy blue and white combinations; and georgette hats, eminently summery; in this group at $15. Fifth floor.

Kiddies' attire—May sale of white and colored dresses, trouser suits, crepe rompers and undermuslins; values of questionless merit.

Oriental rugs---the great semi-annual sale meets distinguished success

The broad extent of the oriental rug collections, notwithstanding the present scarcity; and the moderation of the prices, notwithstanding present high costs; both factor importantly in rapid selling. Featured for Monday are the following distinctively desirable values:

Heavy rugs from Central Persia, about 3x6 ft., at $75.

Rugs from Southern Afghanistan, rare; about 2.9x4.11; at $65.

Extra fine rugs from Central Persia, about 3.6x5.6, at $115.

Very rare and beautiful Persian rugs, about 3.6x5.6, $125.

Antique Chinese and Persian Saruk doorway mats, at $65.

Turkish Anatolian doorway mats featured at 37.50.

Oriental rugs in room size and extra large size, and in the more desired weaves and colors, are values of decided significance in the semi-annual sale. Eighth floor.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

AMERICAN LINE APPROVED.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—"That is very ugly," said Mrs. Perry Belmont, with the emphasis on the "that." "This model here does not please me at all."

She was speaking to one of the Messrs. Worth, who insists that he doesn't like any feminine clothes, however beautiful, and was looking out straight over her head. It was during one of the regular afternoon showings of the house.

"Where were you wounded?" Mrs. Belmont changed her tactics.

"In the arm." Mr. Worth brightened.

"That wasn't bad."

Mr. Worth looked as if it were a real diversion. "O, no, that wasn't bad at all." He was positively animated over it.

People were pouring into the salons—a woman with a whiskered dog tugging at the end of a long chain, a woman in bronze sandals with heels and toes and soles but no sides; women dressed within an inch of their lives, and long skirted Americans who looked as if they had just got off the boat and beat it for the first dressmaking establishment.

"That's the third time I've seen that fur coat come in," observed a flippant young American as he described a period with his stick on the fourth toe of his brown boot. All of the visitors, of course, were sitting plastered around the walls while the manikins gave their showings in the middle of the room.

"They rent it at the door," replied the American girl with the young man. This is but another way of saying that you are scarcely adequately costumed on a warm day in Paris unless you are all bundled up in a fur coat, and all fur coats look exactly alike.

"Here, some one, try on this old silk cape of my daughter's." A middle aged woman issued the command. "I don't remember how it looks." It was brought back for rejuvenating.

"It will look better on almost anybody than on me," said the daughter. Evidently the production had not been one of the great successes.

"That," said Mrs. Belmont, who had never once smiled nor taken her attention off the serious business of looking at the dresses, "is very pretty. They cost us things last winter that we could not think of wearing." She mentioned the smartest houses in Paris. "But now they seem to be more or less making things one can put on."

Mrs. Belmont in this sentence pronounced the text of my present remarks. She has led me through a lot of desultory chaff to an important thesis, which is that America has had an enormous influence on French styles. They are actually making things that we Americans can put on our American figures and wear.

The long string of a line with a low wide girdle which they used to think so "jay" they have gone us one better on and adopted, making it longer and stringier than we ever dared to do.

The illustrations tell their own story. You will recognize the line we made famous. If the Parisians are not accepting it for themselves they at least are making it for us, and doing a good job. I had two friends here last week, mother and daughter, who costumed themselves entirely from models such as shown herewith.

The first three models are by Molyneux. He is an Englishman, formerly with Lucile, who has had a lot of success in making for Englishwomen, and Americans, too.

The first model is of blue serge trimmed with a wide band of black soutache braid round the bottom. The skirt comes to a point in front, where it is much longer than the back. The back and the sleeves are of satin—likewise the bow on Nellie's hat, and her handbag. The rim—or what stands for it—of this hat is made of sipper straw, which is exactly like the straw you take your soft drinks through.

The second model is of gray cloth, finished with a ruff of gray tulle. The long waist line is emphasized with a belt of tête de nègre satin drawn through slashings of the material. The sleeves are short and edged with the same bands of tête de nègre. The hat of this sketch is made by Lewis.

The third dress is conspicuous for the fact that it comes well nigh being ankle length on one side and well nigh knee length on the other. You just ought to behold when the girl who wears it walks! This gives opportunity for the display of a more or less new kind of jewelry, which is a diamond anklet, worn, of course, on the ankle, which beyond the shadow of a doubt is going to show. The dress is of heavy, wedding gown satin in jade green.

The fourth gown is being worn round town by a South American heiress. I suspect Callot of being its creator. It is of heavy black crêpe de chine with a sash of orange, yellow, and pink tulle, which flows into a train. Her ornament is a pearl necklace. She carries a black fan of vast area.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each child-saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Betty was looking rather poorly after several weeks' illness. Aunt Edith, who had not seen her since she was a tiny baby, after kissing her, turned to mother and said, rather thoughtlessly: "My, how thin she is! She looks as if a whiff of wind would blow her away." This must have worried Betty all day, for that night when she had finished all the customary "God blesses in her prayer she added this earnest postscript: "And, please God, make me thicker, for I don't want to be blowed away." H. W.

I was having the children help me in straightening up the living room. I had said I would do certain parts of the tidying up and that Edwin could do certain things and then Baby Betty could do some of the little work. However, I heard Betty fussing with Edwin to let her do something I had assigned to him and he said: "Why, of course, you can't. That is a middle sized work and I'm the only middle sized person here to do it." M. C. R.

Billy had been given a piece to speak from the Sunday school teacher. While his mother was coaching him on it she cautioned him to be sure to speak real loud when it was time for him to recite it in the Sunday school, so that any persons sitting in the back seats who were hard of hearing could understand every word he spoke. To which he replied: "Well, people who can't hear good ought to come early and get a front seat." E. C.

Barbara was 6 years old and adored curly hair. Her own was straight and she had often wished for curly hair. One day when her mother took her to the barber shop to have her hair cut she said, "Say, will you please cut my hair curly?" G. C.

Webster had received a complete train and track outfit for a present and was careful and proud of it. His small cousin, Johnny, came to visit him one day, and he didn't like Johnny's management of the train at all, so he took up the track and put it and the train away. When his mother remonstrated with him for being selfish he said: "Well, you see, it is this way: it isn't that I don't want John to play with the train; I just want to give him more room to play in." C. I. N.

Nellie, who is the child of a second marriage, said one day to her big brother Dick: "Dick, what relation would your daddy be to me if he didn't die?" M. D.

Betty's mother was having a party, and she was sending her off to a neighbor's for the day. As she was leaving her mother pressed a dime in her chubby hand with the admonition to be good. Just as the guests were beginning to arrive and when the kitchen was in busiest preparation Betty walked in, hot, dirty, torn but beaming. She walked over to the kitchen table and plunked down 5 cents. "There," she said, "I stayed half a day." Mrs. W. V.

Charles was watching his grandmother fry doughnuts, and she, fearing he would get burned, warned him several times to keep away. Finally: "Charles, what will I do if you don't mind me?"

Charles heaved a sigh, doughnuts smell so good! "Grandmother," he said, "big folks have to mind, don't they?"

"Certainly, Charles."

"Well, big folks have to mind just God. I think it's pretty hard on us little ones; we have to mind big folks and God, too." H. L. D.

Nancy, my little niece's old doll, was looking much the worse for year, so I sent a daintily dressed dolly to take her place. A week after the presentation of the new doll I called at my sister's and found Betty playing with Nancy, her old love. On asking her what had become of the new one, she replied: "O, she's nice for company days, but I like Nancy best for plain days." M. O.

* *

Almon had never taken a liking to Junior and rarely played with him. Several days ago I noticed that he must have overcome his dislike for the elder boy, and upon questioning my small friend, he modestly explained, "Junior's daddy bought a grocery store that keeps my favorite candy." V. M. B.

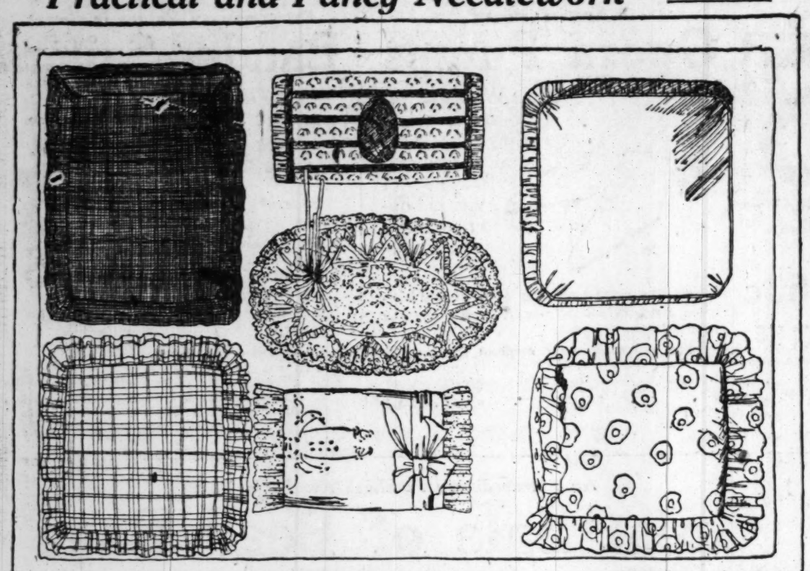
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By Clotilde



VARIETY IN SOFA PILLOWS.

SOFA pillows or cushions never were seen in greater variety than now. They are made all sizes and shapes and of almost any kind of material. Some of the pillows are small and some are large. There is nothing so perfect for filling pillows as good quality feathers or elder down, although many are filled with cotton. These last are good for a time, but after much use grow hard.

If one is getting ready for a summer home, simple covers of gayly colored cretonnes are charming and launder easily. Another good covering is gingham. A brilliant plaid or pretty check makes an ideal cover. These should be made with ruffles around the edges and should be buttoned under the ruffle on one side. Much of the beauty of these coverings consists in their being fresh and clean, and taking off and on is a simple matter if they are buttoned.

Beautiful taffeta, satin, brocade, lace and satin, or ribbon, indeed every conceivable material is called into play for cushion covers. Many are decorated with a full puffing set in around the edge, others with ruffles finished with a pinked edge or hemmed, others with fancy braids.

Embroidery is conspicuous on some of the most beautful cushions and one may use any stitch desired.

All over lace or lace insertion alternated with embroidered silk strips makes elaborate and beautiful cushions, and so on, one can continue almost endlessly, so great is the variety.

Probably there are none more lovely than those made of the sheer handkerchief linens, exquisitely embroidered. These of course are generally for the new baby in the family or for the lounge in a bedroom.

Hem stitched ruffles or a small single feather stitching at the head of the ruffle hem makes a lovely finish, and, of course, many of these lingerie pillows are finished without a ruffle. The beauty of the materials an workmanship goes a long way in making them lovely.

Where pillows of the heavier materials are finished about the edge with a set in puffing, pains must be taken to do the work well. The puff is cut from the straight of the cloth, and each edge should be gathered separately, and in arranging it around the pillow, see that it doesn't "hoop" anywhere. The same thing applies to a gathered ruffle. If the pillow has corners, the ruffle should be full enough at those places to have its outer edge lie flat, but on the other hand, if it is too full at the corners it looks badly. Pin the ruffle at the corners to the piece to which it is to be sewed, and take time to adjust the fullness well.

A good quality of ticking is the best foundation for feather filled pillows. Anything lighter will allow the feathers to come through.

Cream After That.

Everybody in the boarding house was dissatisfied with the "cream" which was served with the coffee. One young man, who seemed more dissatisfied than the rest of us, delighted in calling it "H2O plus." One morning we were horrified to hear him call for it under this name and the landlady standing just back of him. She watched to see what was passed to him and quickly left the dining room. Needless to say we had good cream after that. M. G. S.

No Chance for Souvenirs.

At a boarding house where I once stayed, each piece of silver had a hole through the handle. From the hole a chain was attached to the table. It was long enough so that the silver could be used with ease. This method was used to prevent the dropping or carrying away of the silver. H. I. H.

It Came and Went.

My sister and I rented a nicely furnished front parlor in a rooming house, moving in on Saturday evening. Sunday, on returning from church, we found our room outfitted in cheap, much the worse for wear furniture. When we remonstrated, our landlady tearfully explained that she could never rent the back parlor unless she had the good furniture in it, and all our arguments were of no avail. The back parlor was readily rented, and as our furniture was not returned, we moved at the end of the week.

Being curious to know if the back parlor would be called upon to return its borrowed finery, we had a friend call to look at the vacant room. Sure enough, it was proudly arrayed in its own!

We never knew whether the people in the back parlor saw the matter in the "right light," or if the visiting furniture was again called to the rescue of a vacant room. M. C. M.

Only One There.

A few years ago I happened to make a small lumber town while on the road in Washington, and stopped at a boarding house for my meals. During the meal I said to a lumberjack at my side, "Please pass me the cream," whereupon he replied in loud tones, "Look, everybody, we have an optimist among us." J. M.

Shoes Are Either a Help or a Hindrance

A woman cannot work efficiently, or walk gracefully, or enjoy shopping, or be amused at the theatre, if her feet hurt.

They will not hurt if she wears the right type of shoe.

The Cantilever Shoe is comfortable because it is correctly shaped to the lines of the natural foot. The arch, being flexible, conforms to the curves of the underfoot, while walking. The foot muscles exercise. The blood circulates freely. This shoe makes a healthy foot, free from any pain, ever ready for walking or standing.

We have Cantilevers in dark brown kidskin, in solid black kidskin, in dark tan calfskin and in white Egyptian canvas. Widths AAAAA to EE.

A good looking shoe that gives pleasant comfort and priceless health. We cordially invite you to come in and try on a pair of Cantilever Shoes, and let us explain fully its pleasing features. Write for booklet.

CLOSING OUT HIGHER COST DRESSES—AN EXTRAORDINARY SALE

A sale of Dresses somewhat different from any we ever held, inasmuch as only highest grade Dresses are offered.

Most desirable street, afternoon, party and evening Dresses.

Tricotines, Georgettes, Satins, Tricolettes, Mignonettes, Jetdeau and better grade Taffetas.

Models exquisitely graceful and artfully designed and fashioned, in other words, the "cream of this season."

A wonderful opportunity to secure really distinctive and thoroughly high grade Dresses at a price no higher than you would pay ordinarily for common and plain tailored garments.

We advise every woman who ever bought here to be here again tomorrow to take home what we consider the biggest bargain in fine garments that we have ever offered.

The Dresses are all newly purchased and absolutely the best styles produced this season.

Prices heretofore, $49.95, $59.95, $69.95 and $75.00.

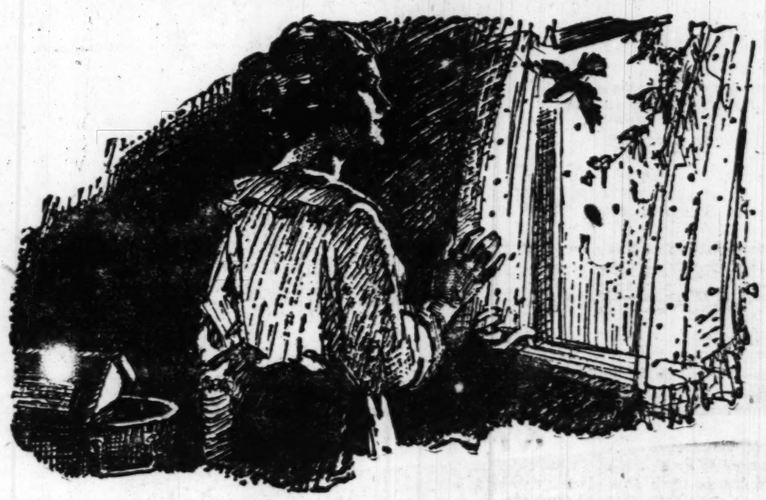
BlueBird Is Here!



Every Chicago housewife knows the convenience of a washing machine, if not from her own experience, from the stories told by her neighbor who owns one. All who have seen or used the BlueBird acknowledge its superiority over all others, that's why strongly recommend them to all.

The BlueBird washing machine is the wonderful electric clothes washer that you have heard so much about and that is now being handled by us. This is our initial advertisement; watch for others soon to follow.

What every woman has longed for.

Throughout the ages the clean-clothes problem has been the one big burden of home life. BlueBird has solved that problem so completely, so perfectly, so wonderfully, that already thousands of BlueBirds are going into American homes each month—bringing happiness and freedom from washdays.

Here is a clothes washer that will take the daintiest feminine things, as well as the heaviest blankets, and wash them spotlessly clean without the slightest wear or tear. The inside of its big oscillating copper tub is as smooth as a wash-boiler—nothing to catch or fray the clothes.

Here is a washer with a beautifully designed, white enameled cabinet that encloses all mechanism, so that even a baby can play around it while it is running.

Here is a washer that saves so much in laundry expense and clothes wear that it actually buys itself with the money it saves you.

By all means, see BlueBird.

Free Demonstration in Your Home of BlueBird

ELECTRIC CLOTHES WASHER

Phone or call and arrange for a free demonstration in your own home with your own washing. Nothing to sign, no obligation, no expense. Don't let another washday come without knowing what BlueBird will do. See BlueBird at this store. Watch its big copper tub, with its twin-six water action, whirling the clothes through cleansing suds seventy-two times a minute. See its tremendously strong frame and its big oversize power wringer that swings and operates in all positions.

Then you'll know why BlueBird is the most talked-of clothes washer in America—why American women are buying BlueBirds at the rate of over one million dollars a month.

$5 puts BlueBird in your home, the balance in convenient monthly sums.

How to Use the Patterns

THE slipon blouse, No. 8799, is so becoming and comfortable, probably most of us will want to make several. Georgette, voile, muslin, and, indeed, most any material will be appropriate. Instead of the small front opening which so many of these blouses show, this one opens on both shoulders.

The under arm seams are finished—usually French seams—and then the finishing lines on back and front of both shoulder seams had better be plainly marked with a small running stitch in basting cotton. The seams on the front of each shoulder are turned in on the finishing line; but before doing this baste a strip of the blouse material—the straight of the goods—and lay it on the wrong side so that one edge comes exactly to the finishing line. Then turn the shoulder edge over this and baste down and finish. This gives something to sew the snaps to, and helps to keep the seam from stretching. The back of the shoulder seam should have a straight facing seamed to the edge in a seam on the wrong side, then the opposite edge is turned in and stitched down exactly on the basting line that marks the closing.

Lap the front over the back at the armhole end, and baste together firmly. When the sleeves are ready to be set in, baste a bias piping around the armhole and set the sleeve in so that a narrow piping shows.

Then pin each shoulder seam together at the neck end, and mark the position for the snaps. They should be three-quarters inch apart, and if pins are stuck straight through both front and back of the seams at the same time, the marking will be accurately done. While the pins are in this position stick a pin at each marking, on the back of the shoulder, and at the same time loosen the back of the seam from the first pin, sticking it only through the front of the shoulder, then when the back and front are unpinned at the neck the pins will be accurately placed for the snaps.

No. 9615 is a good design for the small boy's shirt. In these days when prices of all kinds are soaring, it is necessary to find time to do as much of one's sewing as possible. Good materials can be bought for what an inferior qulaity would cost in a ready made garment.

Percale, gingham, or madras will make beautiful shirts, but they should not be cut into without first shrinking and setting the colors. The back yoke helps make the shirt strong and looks well besides. The pattern is clearly marked, showing the exact position of each section on the material. And it is always a safe plan to lay each piece on the cloth before cutting any one piece out, for it is often possible to shift the relative positions of the pieces so as to cut to better advantage.

After the shoulder seams have been finished, first putting the yoke on the back, the opening should be finished in both sleeves and the sleeves set into the armholes. Notch the armholes carefully all around and the sleeves around the under parts where the curves come. Then turn in the edge of the armholes towards the wrong side, covering the notchings and the upper sleeve edge, so that the turning comes to the right side. With a tracing wheel, mark a line three-eighths inch below the turned in edge of each sleeve and then, pinning the sleeve to the armhole at the middle and each end, baste in, so that the turned in edge of the shirt comes to the traced line on the sleeve. Turn to the wrong side and baste the turned in edge of the sleeve to the shirt. The sleeves are stitched to the armhole twice, on each turned in edge.

Then the under arm and sleeve seams are stitched together, being careful to see that the seam matches at the under arm. These seams are felled and stitched on the felled edge.

No. 9631 is one of those pretty designs that can be used for any material one desires. These one piece dresses are so well put together and easy to get into and out of they are a real comfort.

This design would make up well in a Japanese crepe for afternoon wear at home, and detachable organdie collar and cuffs in a contrasting color would be pretty. Brown, with tan or yellow collar and cuffs with some embroidery stitches in black would be pretty. Dark blue with the right shade of a light blue or green would be a becoming combination to many.

Be sure in putting the sleeve seam together that the outside fold doesn't twist even a little. If in matching the seam notches the fold is not smooth the entire length, shift the position enough so that the fold is smooth.

One test of a well fitting sleeve is to hang the arm straight down at the side. The seam then should lie straight, the seam coming over the middle of the thumb. Now, without raising the arm, turn the arm and hand so that the palm will be uppermost. If the sleeve has been quite perfectly put together, the seam will be stationary, and with the palm uppermost the seam will come to the middle of the palm.

"Time to Re-Tire"

Fisk tells motorists to replace their worn tires and insure safety and pleasure on the highway, to "re-tire" from care and worry.

And so does this timely warning appeal to the housewife who does not yet own an A-B-C Super Electric washer. Yes, it's "Time to Re-tire" from your old time drudgery and wash-day uncertainties.

The A-B-C will wash your clothes cleanest. It is safest. All parts are enclosed.

It can't get out of order—therefore most efficient.

Sixty reliable electrical appliance dealers in and around Chicago recommend and sell the A-B-C. That is proof enough of its absolute leadership. They will gladly demonstrate the A-B-C, or visit our convenient loop store—just off of State St.

Free Trial Demonstration in your own home without slightest obligation. Easy payments if desired.

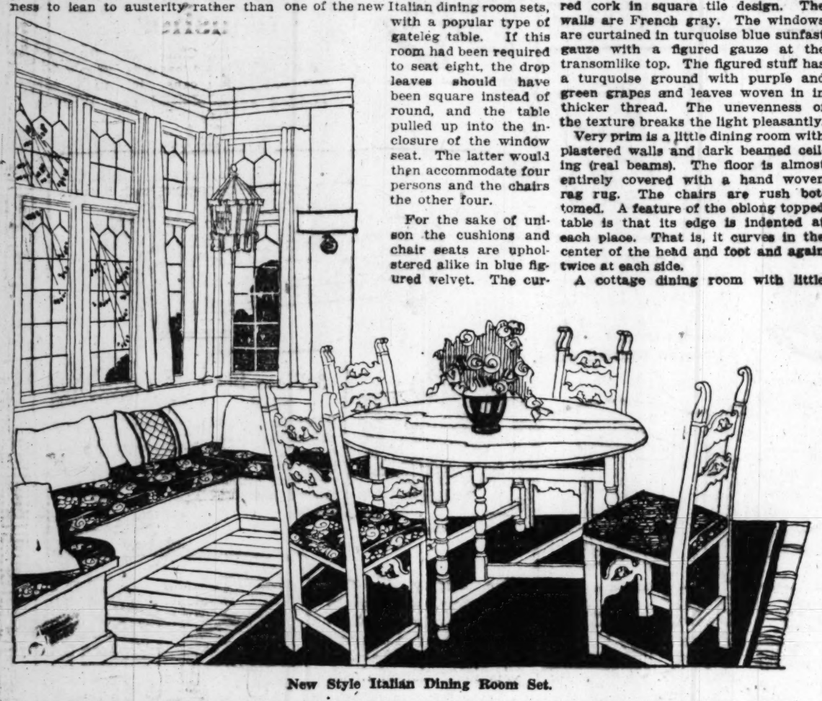
IN A SMALL DINING ROOM.

IN selecting furniture for a rather large family in a rather small dining room there is but one salvation and that is to keep to a formal arrangement, and for the sake of neatness to lean to austerity rather than to "coziness." Avoid unnecessary pieces. New dining room sets on the market are attractive enough to compensate for the absence of endless accessories.

Picture the room with the whole family in it, before making the mental inventory of necessary furniture. In this way you have an appreciable grasp of the fact that the room is crowded to begin with, and further crowding must be curtailed.

The accompanying illustration shows one of the new Italian dining room sets, with a popular type of gateleg table. If this room had been required to seat eight, the drop leaves should have been square instead of round, and the table pulled up into the inclosure of the window seat. The latter would then accommodate four persons and the chairs the other four.



New Style Italian Dining Room Set.

For the sake of unison the cushions and chair seats are upholstered alike in blue figured velvet. The curtains are of blue gauze. The floor is painted blue; the rug is blue-plum color; the extra cushions are in varying tints of apricot silk, and the china used is light violet lustreware mingled with vari-hued Venetian glass. The wall is light dull yellow.

An unpretentious practical dining room with a generous oval center table has a set of eight Windsor chairs with mustard velvet loose cushions stuffed with feathers. The chairs and table are black. The floor is covered with brick red cork in square tile design. The walls are French gray. The windows are curtained in turquoise blue sunfast gauze with a figured gauze at the transomlike top. The figured stuff has a turquoise ground with purple and green grapes and leaves woven in in thicker thread. The unevenness of the texture breaks the light pleasantly.

Very prim is a little dining room with plastered walls and dark beamed ceiling (real beams). The floor is almost entirely covered with a hand woven rag rug. The chairs are rush bottomed. A feature of the oblong topped table is that its edge is indented at each place. That is, it curves in the center of the head and foot and again twice at each side.

A cottage dining room with little casement windows curtained in Jacobean chintz has oak furniture—cottage chairs with shaped solid wood backs having finger holes, and a gateleg table. At one side wall an old English Dutch is surmounted by a deep toned family portrait laid flat against the wood paneled wall. On the other side of the room is an old oaken dresser with shallow open shelves displaying brilliantly colored china plates and pieces of quaint pewter. The locks, door hasps, lighting fixtures, and other hardware are of iron.

Making It Unanimous.

While we were nominating directors for our club, somebody moved that the nominations be closed, and somebody seconded it, and I said, "I third the motion," which is my most embarrassing moment. K. F. R.

There She Was.

As a teacher I began in a rural school. I was still young, and although in school hours I behaved with starched, artificial dignity, at recess I enjoyed having a good time with the pupils, some of whom were my own age. One day the superintendent made his official visit. It was recess and a knot of young folks was laughing and talking hilariously as he entered unobserved. "You are too noisy, children," he said. "If your teacher were here she would not permit it." The hilarious group, abashed, fell apart and disclosed me, the very center, more abashed. F. K.

Ready to Leave.

I had an engagement one evening with a young man, the time of which was set for 8 o'clock. At about 7:45, I received a telephone call from a friend who had just reached the city, asking me whether he could call. I answered that I had an engagement, was indeed dreadfully sorry, as I'd much rather be in his company, etc. I hung up the receiver after talking about five minutes, when my little sister came in and told me there was a young man in the front room. He was there all the while I was talking and had heard everything I said. I can assure you that was my most embarrassing moment, as he was ready to leave when I came in, F. A.

A Message to Babies Who Are Going to Be Born Next Week

Dear Baby: Immediately upon your arrival go straight to your mother and tell her about these wonderful Lloyd Baby Carriages that have become the talk of the whole Baby World.

You probably saw it announced in the Stork News that the great Inventor, Marshall B. Lloyd, has at last created a method of weaving baby carriages by machines, so that the Lloyd Loom now weaves in a matter of MINUTES a far better carriage than it used to take the fastest fingers many weary hours.

TELL her that this Lloyd Loom weaves Baby Carriages so fast and so fine that you can watch the loveliest carriages grow and take shape before your very eyes.

Explain to her that she can now get for you a carriage of the finest weave which she will be able to buy at the price of the coarsest reed.

Ask her to watch the announcements of the stores that have these wonderful Lloyd Carriages.

Or, better still, sit down and write us yourself, or send us this coupon and we'll send your mother our beautiful Baby Carriage Style Book together with the names of the stores in your city that have the Lloyd carriages for sale.

Do this right away and everybody on the street will turn around to admire you when you go out for a ride.

Yours for Health and Happiness,

Double Tub Electric Washers
Are the Best from Every Standpoint for You

Bigger Capacity

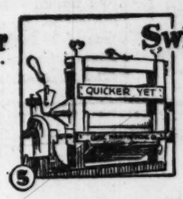
This Quicker-Yet Double Tub Washer is the most practical for all families, whether large or small. It gives you twice as much capacity and does the washing in half the time required by the ordinary washer. You can operate tubs in conjunction or separately.

Keeps Water Hotter

Hot water and good soap are two fundamentals of successful clothes washing. The Quicker-Yet tubs are built of cypress (the wood eternal). These tubs retain the heat of the water and keep it piping hot, resulting in cleaner clothes and a quicker job.

Washes Clothes Faster

The Quicker-Yet cross-arm dolly circulates the clothes through the hot soapy water at the rate of 42 turns a minute. This vigorous action plus the larger capacity brought about by two tubs cuts your wash day down to short wash hours.



Swinging Wringer

Quicker-Yet Double Tub Electric Washers are equipped with swinging power wringers. The wringer will swing in a complete circle and can be locked in any desired position. It is set plenty high enough to swing over all stationary laundry tubs.

Gets Clothes Cleaner

Quicker-Yet Washers work the clothes through the hot soapy water—not the water through the clothes. The hot water expands the textile of the fabric, and the hot soapy water washes away the dirt. This plus the action of the cross-arm dolly is th reason why it washes cleaner.

Biggest Value!

You will be surprised at the moderate price of the Quicker-Yet Double Tub Electric Washer. Even with all these valuable features it costs no more than others and less than some. Greater Washing Machine Value is not to be had at any price. Find out about the Quicker-Yet today.

Built for Long and Dependable Service

Quicker-Yet Double Tub Washers are built for dependable service—and give it. Back of this machine is one of the largest and most modern washing machine factories in the country with almost half a million satisfied customers to its credit. If you are looking for the best washing machine you can buy for your money—then ask the Quicker-Yet dealer in your locality to demonstrate this dependable washer to you.

To End Mistakes in Shaving

By V. K. Cassady, B. S., M. S., Chief Chemist

In the Palmolive Laboratories we studied years to overcome the faults in shaving. We tried 130 formulas before we mastered every problem.

Palmolive Shaving Cream is the final formula—the scientific solution. It does what every man attempts with hot towels, lotions and finger rubbing. Such things with Palmolive are not needed.

Both Lather and Lotion

Since earliest history Palm and Olive oils have been prized as toilet lotions. Blended in Palmolive Shaving Cream they form a soothing, cleansing lather. A lather that lubricates between the skin and blade, so a man can shave close without scraping.

This means a shave that lasts all day—that makes the face feel satin-smooth.

Stays Foamy 10 Minutes

Hot towels and rubbing in lather with the fingers mean delay. We felt there was a scientific way to make the beard cut easily without that; and we found it. Palmolive Cream removes the natural oil-coat from the hair, so the moisture penetrates and softens quickly.

Because it stays thick and creamy 10 minutes Palmolive makes relathering unnecessary. A cream so prolific that a mere bit on the brush lathers up 250-fold.

Four Shaves for 1c

In our 35c tube is enough Palmolive for about 152 shaves. That's more than 4 shaves for 1c. This would be tempting in any shaving lather. But coupled with these astonishing results it is changing the shaving habits of thousands.

These discoveries are hard to conceive but so easy to prove that we do not hesitate to make this free offer. Help yourself to the coupon printed below and get a Several-Shave Tube of Palmolive without cost, from any druggist named in the following list.

MAY 2, 1920.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

THE announcement by Mr. Dillingham and other managers that theater seats will cost more next season impels some of their fellow producers to predictions of disaster. W. A. Brady lifts his voice in a woeful owl-song in which he concludes that such rapacity will result in ruin. Marc Klaw deplores the avaricious folly of the price raisers, and says that their policy is unnecessary and absurd. A. H. Woods' opinion is that the charges for his wares will be no higher next year; while Lee Shubert asserts that, although tickets cost enough as it is, they will cost more in future, because of the impassioned voracities of the organized artists and artisans of the drama.

Among the Chicago showmen, Mr. Rosenthal of the Woods theater believes that prosperity may be portentous, and cometlike, threaten while it shines. He views with satisfaction the long and unprecedented queues of ticket buyers in front of his and other box offices; yet he suspects that lean days may come in case the people of the theater wax too gluttonous. The present scale of prices at the Woods, based on top figures of $3 for Saturday night, $2.50 for other nights, and $1.50 for the matinées, makes possible a weekly revenue of $20,296.75. "The manager who isn't satisfied with that," observes Mr. Rosenthal, "should be barred out of the game." Of course they don't all get that, even if it is there. "When you go above our prices your customers will call you names," Mr. Rosenthal continues, "and they find it hard to like the show, no matter how good it is. We shall stick to the scale for the same reason that THE TRIBUNE sticks to the 7 cent price on Sundays."

The Selwyns, who are to favor us next year with two new theaters in Dearborn street, the Selwyn and the Chicago, plan a moderate inflation of prevailing rates. Rennold Wolf in the Morning Telegraph airily quotes them as follows: "Of course," said Mr. Selwyn, lolling back in his Rolls-Royce car, "it is inevitable that the price should go up some. This is an absolute necessity if the manager is to stay in the game at all. The rental of theaters has so vastly increased and the cost of production gone up with leaps and bounds to an extent that the producer can make almost nothing at the present $2.50 scale.

"But this does not mean that the public is going to be gouged by us. We have figured the matter out with a great deal of care and consideration, taking under advisement the cost of Coronas and a season at Palm Beach, and have come to the conclusion that a fair advance in the price of theater tickets for the best orchestra seats for musical productions would be $4, and $3 as the top-notch scale for dramatic productions."

In the May number of "Eppes," the house magazine of the Woods theater, Mr. Rosenthal, its editor, prints a song entitled "I Am Chicago," by Will Reed Dunroy, the most celebrated of the local press agents. Our civic chairmasters are a boastful lot of ballyhooers. The Mayor's anthology of boosterisms, consecrated to admiration of our public works, teems with applause, tempered by no suspicion that we are not perfect. You may recall among its constants the seductive chant that—

> Atlantic City has only eight miles of water front.
> While we have thirty-four.

Well, Mr. Dunroy, though less addicted to unctuous detail, is even more complimentary, and his omission from the city hall's doxologer is explained only by the fact that he employs such words as "woof." He says:

> By the cool, gray prairies of the lake I stand,
> On the level reaches of fertile land,
> With the western sign of the lifted hand.
> I am born of the sinews of pioneers,
> Of fire and flood and of blood and tears
> And the warp and woof of a hundred years.
> From a lonely fort on the turbid tide
> I have grown till my borders stretch far and wide
> With opportunity on every side.
>
> By the brawn and the brain of men designed,
> Within this structure of mine you'll find
> All races and creeds and kindred and kind.
> I have sowed the marshes that stood and stank
> Along the flat sides of the river's bank,
> And your harvest of homes grows rank on rank.
> I have gathered the nations about my door
> And their children's children play on my floor,
> While my arms reach outward for more and more.
> I have heard the call of the wars, and leapt
> From the calm security wherein I slept
> And into the carnage I've proudly swept.
> I have builded schools, and the gilded spires
> Of my churches reach upward, like my desires
> In my growing manhood's unquenchable fires.
> My arm is strong and I've said, "I Will,"
> And nothing shall daunt me till I fulfill
> My destiny, making me greater still.
>
> I am born of the lake and of dreams and beef,
> Of tasseled corn and of shimmering sheaf,
> And of all this region I stand the chief.
> By the wide, gray prairies of the lake I stand,
> With limitless greatness at my command,
> By the western sign of the lifted hand.

My dear Mr. Hammond: Apropos of Mr. Parker's naïve accusation of plagiarism in the case of "Dregs," allow me:

Theater audiences are never more than nine years old mentally, Little Theater audiences, of course, excepted. Little theater audiences seldom average more than six years in mental age. In my few writings for the stage I have permitted this axiom to be my inspiration and my guide. It will be seen at once that plagiarism becomes the backbone of drama. For it is difficult, almost impossible, for an intelligent man to invent ideas sufficiently stupid, maudlin, or banal for the successful edification of theatergoers in either big or Little theaters.

In "Dregs" the dramatic idea was burrowed out of a poem by Jehan Rictus, a fact passionately set forth on the title page of the MS. My only excuse for the pilfering, I swear, is that I could never of my own effort have evolved so inanely drooling a fancy as did Mr. Rictus in his poem. On encountering the poem some seven years ago I perceived at once that it was an ideal banality for the Little theater stage. The language of the poem, however, was a bit too intelligent. I therefore discarded the language, substituted the necessary stupidities for the dialogue, kept intact the essential pokeallum of the Rictus idea, and achieved a successful Little theater drama.

Sincerely, BEN HECHT.

From the dramatic columns of this morning's New York Times the following summary of news is made: "Mamma's Affair," Rachel Barton Butler's Harvard prize comedy, will be in Chicago next week, with Miss Effie Shannon, Robert Edeson, and Miss Ida St. Leon, formerly a circus rider, in the principal rôles. . . . The Hattons are at hand with a new play, "The Checkerboard," to be backed financially by Messrs. Comstock and Gest. . . . Miss Ethel Barrymore is about to stop playing "Declasse," and she will seek recreation in Europe. Miss Barrymore will reach Chicago next September. . . . . Miss Nora Johnson Young's most recent product, "Little Old New York," the property of Sam H. Harris, tells about the New York of Washington Irving's time, with John Jacob Astor, Cornelius Vanderbilt, and other pioneers among the characters. In it Miss Genevieve Tobin plays an Irish girl pretending to be a boy. . . . . James Metcalfe's withdrawal from the portfolio of dramatic criticism in "Life" recalls that he had been excluded from the Klaw & Erlanger theaters for fifteen years—ever since he and his associates wrote bitterly of the fire in the Iroquois theater. . . . . Miss Emily Stevens will abandon "Sophie" and will take up "Foot-Loose," a version by Zoe Akin of "Forget-Me-Not," a favorite of forty years ago. Miss Stevens will play a brilliant woman of the world whose repute, if not ill, is at least ailing; and she will have Norman Trevor and O. P. Heggie in her company. . . . . "Tip-Top," symbolic, perhaps, of its $5 prices, is the name of Fred Stone's new harlequinade. . . . John Golden, who spoke not long ago of making Chicago a producing center, is producing "Romeo and Jane," by Edward Childs Carpenter, in New York. . . . . Rennold Wolf, who writes the best of the Follies, is too busy for that task this season, and James Montgomery is the 1920 librettist. . . . George Cohan has changed the name of Georges Renavent, his new star. It is now George Renavent.

Mr. Belasco, the cable says, knelt in the dressing room of the hysterical Miss Laurette Taylor in London the other night and implored her to regard with equanimity the thoughtless outbreak of her husband's impulsive countrymen. Though admitting the violence of the demonstration, Mr. Belasco pleaded that it was merely an innocent expression of the national volatility; and he counseled forgiveness as a more seemly attitude than wrath. So, it is said, Miss Taylor reconsiders her decision not to try "One Night in Rome" again, and will undertake another premiere this week.

Miss Grace George is not dismayed by the Taylor debacle, and, according to W. A. Brady, she will soon present "The Ruined Lady" at the Duke of York's in London. Miss George was popular at that theater ten or twelve years ago, when she appeared in "Divorçons" successfully, though she had the great assistance from her husband and impresario. I recall Mr. Brady in conversation with a group of London journalists one evening between the acts of "Divorçons." He was telling them of a previous visit to England when, with Mr. Corbett or some other gladiator, he had toured the island, meeting all comers. "Did Mr. Corbett do well?" inquired one of the pressmen. "He did," said Mr. Brady, tactfully. "He licked more Englishmen than have been licked since Bunker Hill."

MISS BETTY PIERCE in "JUNE" OLYMPIC PHOTO APEDA

Miss Pierce's career includes experiences in Gus Edwards' revue, where she made her humble beginning; in "Oh, Boy," and in "Good Morning, Judge." She sings in "June," which in New York was known as "Nothing But Love."

A dispatch from Washington says that Preston Gibson, the dramatist, is at work upon the first of a series of plays ordered from him by A. H. Woods. It is called "Moonshine," a promising title, and it is about a girl who grows to young womanhood surrounded by the bulbs, retorts, vapors, and mashes of an illicit distillery in the Colorado mountains. Mr. Woods will probably rename it "The Girl in the Siphon," for, as Mr. Phair suggests, if Mr. Woods were to produce "Othello" he would call it "Up in Desdemona's Room."

"THE RIVER'S END."

Produced by First National. Directed by Marshall Neilan. Presented at Barbee's Loop theater.

THE CAST.

John Keith, the outlaw.....Lewis Stone
Derwint Conniston, of the Royal Mounted.....Lewis Stone
Mary Josephine Conniston.....Marjorie Daw
Miriam Kirkstone.....Jane Novak
Chief McDowell of the Royal Mounted.....J. Barney Sherry
The murderer.....Charles West
Shan Tung.....Yama Mata

By Caroline Sanborn.

HERE is a tale of mistaken identity, of mystery and love, of oriental trickery and red blooded courage. The scenes are laid in Canada, in the great northern woods, where the frozen stretches and the low, cold skies teach men to live as men, and to leave behind all petty things.

"The River's End," by James Oliver Curwood, is a good story well told, and its film adaptation runs along with a surety and a smoothness that are admirable. John Keith, lawyer, thinking that he has killed a man, flees to the northlands. There for many weary months he is hunted by Conniston of the royal mounted police, who has vowed that the murderer shall hang for his crime.

The meeting of these two, the pursued and the pursuer, and its strange results form the nucleus of a strong and well planned plot. And interspersed throughout the play are delightful bits of comedy.

Lewis Stone plays his two parts with decided ability. Except for a certain feeling of artificiality at the outset, both in his acting and in the production itself, he is excellent.

In his choice of Marjorie Daw for the rôle of Mary Josephine, Marshall Neilan was particularly fortunate. She is a thoroughly lovable and wholesome little girl. Did you know that she is only 17, and that her biggest hope in life is to be able to send her younger brother to college?

In the near future Geraldine Farrar will appear in motion pictures produced for Associated Exhibitors, the recently formed coöperative combination of theater owners.

Eileen Percy, who left the screen just a short time ago, saying that she meant to retire, is back again and has a six months' contract to appear in support of Fox male stars. She will first support Tom Mix in "The Untamed."

MISS MARIE CHAMBERS in "NIGHTIE NIGHT" at LaSalle

Miss Chambers' quiet acting as a skeptical divorcée in "Nightie Night" is one of the several advantages of that sassy exhibition, which promises to remain at the La Salle until summer-show time.

Robertson Cole announces that the motion pictures made by Sir Ernest Shackleton on his last expedition to the south pole have been received and assembled. The film complete, it is promised, will make pictorial history, showing as it does a real drama staged by nature in her cruelest form.

Sessue Hayakawa, so they tell me, is working on his last Haworth picture, "The Spirit of Ra." When this is completed he will start production of "First Born" in his own studio.

Tickets Going Up and Movie's Moves Keep Rialto Upset

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—The dear old Rialto has been terribly upset this week—first by the report that the cinema capitalists are buying up all the theaters with the idea of using them as "feeders" for the once despised movie; and, second, that the price of orchestra seats next season will be $5 plus the war tax at the box office, and $5 plus the war tax and the speculator's bit at the libraries.

The activities of the movie men is not a new story. At least not to the readers of this column. But the fact that the Criterion theater was this week taken over by the Famous Players-Lasky company and converted into a "long run movie theater" has brought it freshly to the attention of the New York dailies and they have been having a most exciting time with it.

Whatever is the theatrical world coming to, they have demanded. Are the debasing standards of the nickelodeon to be applied to art? Are the hucksters of the movie trade to select and pass upon the drama of the people? Are all plays and all playwrights to be judged by the standards of the cinema? Will nothing be produced in the theater that will not bear the strain of translation to the screen?

Not the least amusing feature of the agitation is the attitude of the accepted "highbrows" of the drama. Having spent the better part of their writing lives attacking the quality of the current drama, and in lamenting the depths to which dramatic art has fallen, they now suddenly discover that, bad as it is, it is quite the best standard of drama the stage has known in many years, and that the future is bright with promise—if the terrible movie men can be forced to keep their hands off.

This would not be amusing if it were not for the fact that a majority of the present day producers of plays are interested, and have been interested for some time past, in one or the other of the big picture companies; that they have been buying plays for a year past with an eye to their commercial value as moving pictures; that they have insisted upon inserting in their contracts a clause giving them at least a 50 per cent interest in the "movie rights" to all thes cripts accepted, and, that they have exactly as much regard for the art of the drama and its future today as they ever have had, which,

MISS EFFIE BURTON

with the exception of a half dozen men among them, is none at all. And these half dozen whiter hopes of the drama, boasting and adhering to at least something resembling ideals, can no more be touched by the invading forces of the screen than they previously have been affected by the producing trusts of the theater.

I may in time rise to the threatened danger of the cinema invasion. Seeing that it can no more be stopped than could the invasion of those who have controlled the drama for the last 300 years, however, it strikes me as being particularly silly to become excited about it now. And if I do rise to it, it will be after some one has convinced me that the stage stands more in danger from the influences of the newcomers than it previously has stood from the influences of the gentlemen who have elected at different periods to flood the stage with red light dramas, white slave dramas, Palais Royal bits from Paris, and the modern bedroom farce, not to mention the sex drama and the cabaret revue.

And let any one who is seriously worried as to the future consider that in this particular season, which is the first that has really felt the influence of the movies, there have been more and better productions made by independent producers than ever before in the history of the New York theater, and that a majority of them were directly or indirectly financed by cinema capital. These movie producers are literally combing the world for new playwrights and new ideas, not because they believe in them or always recognize them when they find them but because they simply have to have them if they are to survive. And out of this search the chances are a 100 to 1 that more good than harm will come.

The $5 orchestra seat is another threat about which I refuse to become excited and advise you to remain cool. The agitation has been started by an announcement attributed to Charles B. Dillingham that when Fred Stone returns to the Globe theater for his biennial engagement on Broadway it will cost the dear people who wish to sit with the gentry downstairs $5 a head. Two years ago Mr. Dillingham boosted the seat prices in the same theater and for the same attraction from $2 to $3, and got it. Compared with the majority of $2 attractions on Broadway, a Dillingham-Stone production is usually worth $5.

Gradually other managers adopted the $3 rate when the popularity of their attractions made it possible, and it became the common first night and Saturday night price. Florenz Ziegfeld adopted it for the "Follies" and again had no trouble in collecting it, because the "Follies" represent an annual event in these parts, and there are half a million or so persons who just must see them, whatever the cost. On tour the "Follies" price went to $4, and finally to $5, for which advance there was again the excuse that the original cast and production were carried and that, like Christmas and the circus, they came but once a year. About the same time the cost of seeing the Winter Garden attractions was advanced successfully.

But do not get the impression that because these things have happened, and because it is easy for Broadway managers to raise the price to $5 now for Saturday night performances, that $5 will ever become the common price of theater tickets. Your theatrical producer is about as shrewd a business man as the country produces, and he knows that what he has to sell is listed with the luxuries. A month's boycott of the theaters, even half as serious as the overall club movement, would take all the joy out of life for him for a considerable period.

Music and the Musicians

Putting "Pep" Into the Daily Grind

By W. L. Hubbard.

VERILY, the world "do move!" What would the intelligent, progressive business man of twenty years ago have said and thought had it been suggested to him that music could be used to advantage as a factor in the running of his business, and the controlling of his employés? He would have scoffed at the suggestion and referred to it as highbrow "art" nonsense, devoid of all common sense, impractical, visionary, and ridiculous. And had any one urged the utilitarian value of musical recreation or instruction for his workers, and asked him to set aside a sum of money for the securing and supporting of such, he probably would not have stopped at mere scoffing and poohpoohing, but would have traveled speedily and hastily into the realm of the abusive.

Yet today countless large store and industrial plants of importance in the city have not only music as a permanent and prominent factor in their organization, but substantial sums of money are set aside to maintain this work and enlarge its scope. And such institutions as have not already introduced music are seeing the handwriting on the wall and are preparing for the innovation.

Gathered around a lunch table one day last week were several men prominent in the business world, men at the head of varied industrial and commercial interests. The subject of music for the employés was broached. Without exception, all agreed that the having of music was a move in the right direction and that it resulted in not only greater content among the workers, but in increased efficiency and enlarged the actual output of work.

Beneficial in the Army.

"I was skeptical about singing and playing when first they were brought to my attention," said one of the men, "and I held off for some time. Then came the war and one day I went on business to one of the army camps. It just chanced that I struck one of the mass sings the men were having, and I stopped to listen. The way those men sang and the pleasure they seemed to derive from it, set me to thinking. I talked later with the commanding officer and he told me that not only on the hike, but in the regular life and work of the camp itself he had found that the singing was of marked and appreciable value. The men marched better and farther and with less fatigue, they rested more quickly if they could sing when resting, and in the camp the whole spirit and morale of the men lifted if they were permitted to have their song. He had encouraged it, therefore, in every way, and had seen actual and practical beneficial results from it.

"I came back to my office, but the singing at the camp would not leave me alone. If it would help the men, why would it not help my workers? I knew some of the big stores and plants had introduced singing into their establishments and I decided to try it at mine. I tried at first having music brought in for them—arranging musical entertainments, band concerts, and similar musical amusements. But it did not work. Then I found the men and women themselves wanted to do the music making. Out of their own ranks a leader was found, a piano was supplied them, they began to have community sings, and the thing was done.

"Now, these sings are a regular part of our daily program, and I have seen the benefits. Not only do the men and women go back to their work after the noon sings refreshed and cheery, but they work more vigorously and energetically. Someway, they impress as happier, and the fellow who is happy I am convinced works better than does one with a grouch. It pays, and I feel the money we put into singing is money well invested."

At the Western Electric Plant.

As a concrete example of what is being done in the music line in industrial circles, a pleasant experience was a visit paid by the writer to the Western Electric company's vast plant last Wednesday.

Boys and girls, men and women, were sitting at work benches having their lunch. And about halfway down the long room among machines, boxes, small trucks, and benches, there was an upright piano, with a young woman playing popular songs and dance music.

About 12:30, J. E. Peterson, who is song director for the plant, mounted a bench behind the piano, and called the boys and girls to attention. He used that jolly, bantering, good natured spirit and method that obtained throughout war times in the camps, and which he in former work as "Y" man overseas had made essentially his own. The workers came with unmistakable willingness and eagerness, gathering in close circle about the piano and its player, and the leader.

"America" was the first number, and it was sung—two stanzas of it—with a solidity, a vigor, and a vim that made it inspiring. Then followed song after song, some eight or ten of them most of them the better class of popular songs of the day, and with "Swanee River" and one or two other folk songs included among them.

The good fellowship, the comradeship, the wholesome, healthy, happy enjoyment of it all, were contagious, and there seemed not a person there who did not go back to work smiling, good humored, and content. Talking later with one of the managers, he expressed his firm conviction that the having of the sings resulted in a distinct gain not only in the efficiency of the workers, but in the actual output from their benches. "They work with new zest and speed" was the way he put it.

Maintain Band and Orchestra.

Later, in the big cafeteria and lunchroom, which is the Hawthorne club headquarters, an orchestra was heard giving its weekly concert. Some sixteen men, under a leader drawn from the ranks of the workers, were playing, and playing exceptionally well, while crowds stood about listening, enjoying, and approving. A complete band also is maintained, and everything is done by the management to make music a constant and vital force in the lives of all the employés.

That the management is sincere, even to the point of spending money for music, is shown by the fact that, although the singing and playing is done by the employés themselves and has to come from within rather than from without in order to be successful, yet there are expenses connected with the maintaining of the band, engaging of song leaders, and with other details of the undertaking. It is estimated that of a certain liberal sum set aside by the management for the supporting of the amusement and betterment work among the employés, fully $10,000 is devoted to music alone.

Who would have thought twenty years ago of music as an essential in our industrial life? Who would have even dreamed of setting aside $10,000 for the supporting and supplying of it? Truly the world "do move"!

Concerts and Recitals

The New York Grand Opera company continues its offering of Italian grand opera at the Empire theater, Madison and Union streets, another week. The repertory announced is as follows: This afternoon, "Traviata"; this evening, "Trovatore"; Tuesday evening, "Rigoletto"; Wednesday, "Trovatore"; Friday, "Lucia"; Saturday afternoon, "Cavalleria" and "Rigoletto"; Saturday evening, "Trovatore"; Sunday afternoon, "Traviata"; Sunday evening, "Norma."

The United Swedish Singers of Chicago are to give their annual concert in Aryan Grotto temple this evening. The chorus numbers 150 men under the leadership of Gustaf A. Carlson and will be heard in three groups of songs, some of them given with orchestral accompaniment. The soloist will be Mme. Staberg-Hall, soprano of Minneapolis, and there will also be heard the Northern Ladies' Trio, composed of Mmes. Burgeson, Martenson, and Peterson, under the direction of Edgar Nelson.

The Paulist Choristers of Chicago, numbering 100 voices and under the leadership of Le Roy Wetzel, are to give a concert in Orchestra hall this afternoon. The program includes selections from the works of Hurley, Palestrina, Mendelssohn, Yon, Cowen, Tschaikowsky, Handel, Dickinson, and Buck, and will enlist the solo services of Charles Cooley, bass; W. W. Webber, tenor; Joseph Molengraft, baritone, and several boy choristers. Hugo Goodwin will be the organist.

Marie Hoover Ellis will be heard in piano recital in Kimball hall this afternoon. She has chosen for presentation the Schumann "Kreisleriana," three Chopin selections, Alkan's "The Wind," Machmaninoff's "Serenade," MacDowell's "Hungarian," Henselt's "Lullaby," Leschetizky's "Intermezzo Scherzando," and Liszt's tenth Hungarian rhapsody.

The Edison Symphony orchestra, which, under the leadership of Morgan L. Eastman, has given good account of itself and entertained filled houses at its monthly concerts in Orchestra hall, will continue its work another season the Edison company having authorized the giving of a similar series throughout 1920-'21. The last concert this season will take place next Thursday evening in Orchestra hall and the Peoples Gas club chorus will assist.

Arthur Ranous, baritone, is to give a recital in Kimball hall next Thursday evening. He has listed Lane Wilson's "No Sweeter Life" and "Shall I Wasting in Despair"; Purcell's "Passing By," Hatton's "To Anthea," Brahms' "My Heart Is in Bloom," "In

Ready-to-Wear Combination Last Oxford

Cannot slip at Heel

Never before has any one made an oxford or pump that positively would not slip at the heel or bulge at the side. Foot troubles too numerous to mention are caused by shoes being too large in the heel and instep.

Dr. Pinkston's combination last shoes are better than the standard shoes because they are TWO WIDTHS NARROWER IN THE HEEL, ONE WIDTH NARROWER IN THE ARCH, AND TWO WIDTHS WIDER THROUGH THE BALL OF THE FOOT than any shoe that has ever been made. The narrow heel PREVENTS THE SHOE FROM SLIPPING UP AND DOWN. The narrow instep KEEPS THE FOOT FROM SLIDING FORWARD. The broad ball gives PERFECT FREEDOM OF THE TOES. The entire comfort and grace of walking depend entirely upon the proper articulation of the ball of the foot.

Dr. Pinkston's Made-to-Measure Shoes

PREVENT, RELIEVE AND CURE FOOT TROUBLES. There are twenty-six bones in the human foot which must be properly supported. Dr. Pinkston examines the foot and knows just where to place the support just as the individual foot requires.

Dr. Pinkston makes a special last—a reproduction of your foot—and then builds the shoe over that last, thereby assuring perfect comfort and style. You can make your selections from the finest imported leathers in the world, of vegetable tannage, which prevents the burning sensation caused by acid tanned leather.

The fundamental principle of fitting and making shoes is to know the anatomy of the feet—to know just what bone is misplaced; what blood vessel is impeded and what nerve is impinged—then to know how to distribute the weight of the body equally from heel to ball and to support the weak places in a way to strengthen them. This is what Dr. Pinkston POSITIVELY DOES.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Skokie Valley Needed to Link Forest Preserve

By Mme. X.

COLD and churlish as is the spring, out there, beyond the city's asphalt pavements and thickly clustering brick and stone buildings, hepaticas and bloodroot are blooming in sheltered nooks. In damp, mold scented ravines lady slippers are pushing up through the carpet of last year's leaves, while squills and myrtensia—more sophisticated than other spring flowers, because they are not entirely indigenous—are setting a standard for a cerulean blue that summer's most ambitious larkspur will find it hard to reach.

Thrush, meadow larks, song sparrows, and robins make dawn and twilight a riot of melody. Unabashed by this delicious choir the Skokie frogs trill their syncopated songs with all the effrontery of a jazz band competing with the symphony orchestra.

All of which brings me to the chief thought of this column today, the acquisition of the Skokie valley by the Cook county forest preserve district, to be added to the system of encircling metropolitan parks or preserves.

As far back as 1908 the Chicago plan commission recommended that the Skokie valley be taken over for this purpose. It is necessary to complete the link of encircling pleasure grounds, and now is the time—the only time—to acquire it. If we wait even a year business will get a firm foothold there.

That lovely shallow basin will be drained by an unsightly ditch; it will be planted with small, closely congregated houses whose occupants will work in the factories which will certainly spring up along the western rim of the Skokie. Smoke from these factory chimneys, blown eastward by the prevailing winds, will destroy that charming district of homes and gardens lying along the lake and nearby bluffs from Evanston to Highland Park, and the people of Chicago will be deprived of a possession which, if rightly handled, would provide an easily accessible playground only matched in beauty by the sand dunes southeast of Chicago.

Home of Wild Fowl.

Edward Payson Wheeler, an old resident of Aurora, whose father was a missionary to the Indians, says the name Skokie comes from the Indian word "Mushkokie," meaning a reedy, swampy place. It is really the birthplace of that magnificent stream, the Chicago river.

From time immemorial it was the favorite haunt and breeding ground annually of thousands of waterfowl. Even today wild ducks nest and spend their summers there. With a little care and preserving it could again be made a happy hunting ground for ducks, snipe, quail, reed birds—that is, the birds would do the hunting, while human bipeds would carry no weapon more formidable than a camera.

Wild flowers and rare water plants and reeds flourish there. Fish multiply in the sluggish streams and still pools of the Skokie and it is a region quite distinct from the more solid earth on either side of it. On stifling summer nights, when heat seems to sizzle up from the land on the east and west, from the Skokie rises a penetrating moist, cool, fragrant breath, delicious to the motorist seeking respite from the day's fiery furnace. It is, furthermore, the most accessible pleasure ground to city folk anywhere to be found. Two lines of the Northwestern railway run near its borders, as does the north shore electric road, while excellent motor roads touch it and cross it.

Favorite Project of "WH." Hibbard.

The development of the Skokie into a forest preserve was the favorite project of the late William G. Hibbard. To further it he devoted years of his life. He engineered and directed in person the charming little draining scheme in West Willow street, Winnetka, which created a reed bordered, winding channel, a channel with islands and bayous in it, a bit of landscape gardening which might serve as a suggestion or guide to similar work elsewhere in that valley.

Mr. Hibbard put his mark on all that district about Winnetka, dredging, draining, leveling, making roads, planting trees and shrubbery along highways, and in every way developing the land's many possibilities for beauty and convenience. In memory of him his fellow townsfolk have named a road that runs through the Skokie he so loved, Hibbard road.

Death of Distinguished Pioneer.

His mother, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, one of our most distinguished pioneers, died last week, ten weeks after he did. Few people live such a complete life as hers or reach such a ripe age. The 85 years of her life were fuller of good deeds than most lives. Her last act was to send her daughter-in-law a good sized check to help pay for the elm trees the latter plans to plant along Hibbard road.

Those who plant trees and lay out gardens are among the real altruists of the world, for they know when they do this work they will in all probability never see the full fruition of their labors. They are planning and toiling for people not yet born, people not of their own kith or kin. A century hence fathers, mothers, and children probably will drive or walk on Hibbard road under the shade of wide spreading elms, unless by that time the city of Chicago shall have grown to meet the suburbs of Milwaukee, or the Mongols shall be the taskmasters of our pacifistic descendants.

Boston to Entertain Garden Clubs.

Speaking of gardens, the annual meeting of the National Garden Club Association of America, which is to take place on Boston's famous north shore June 21, is occupying much attention among the members of the Garden Club of Illinois. The Garden Club of Illinois, as you know, has its headquarters on Chicago's also famous north shore. I think its officers and membership come exclusively from that highly ornamental flowering strip of land that borders the lake between Evanston and Lake Bluff. I should not wonder if there were remote districts in Illinois that knew naught of the Garden Club of Illinois—but "What's in a name?" as Romeo said to Hamlet.

Last year this Illinois club entertained the National Garden Club association for four days with a lavish and perfect hospitality hitherto unknown at these annual gatherings. The visiting delegates and alternates, some forty or fifty in all, were met in Chicago and conveyed in automobiles to their various hostesses in Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, and Lake Forest. The last named community gave shelter to most of the visitors. Every possible courtesy and attention was shown them. They were daily entertained at dinners, luncheons, teas, and garden fêtes. Of course, every garden within twenty miles was furbished up for their inspection.

Mrs. Augustus Carpenter was at the head of the entertainment committee and did her part extraordinarily well, being zealously aided and abetted by her fellow members. It really was a prolonged, four day picnic, which went off without a hitch, except for that gay summer shower the evening of the dramatic entertainment in the Howard Shaws' charming open air theater—a patter that sent the company to the shelter of the nearby shrubbery. The next day's sun revealed, fluttering in the breeze, a crop of blond, brunette, and gray hair nets on these same bushes and low trees, such as no book on gardening has ever discussed. Also the vogue for "permanent waves" became more pronounced.

Chicagoans Among Hostesses.

Departing guests all said that it would be impossible in other and subsequent general garden club meetings to equal this Chicago affair. The Boston Garden club, this year's hostess club, is planning a different sort of meeting, one tinctured with real New England austere simplicity and restraint. Visiting members are notified to bring only dress suit cases, to omit evening frocks and the more elaborate afternoon toilettes which blossomed last June in Chicago's north shore gardens.

It is worthy of note by us Chicagoites that the only two elaborate and stately social functions planned for the visiting delegates are to be provided by two Chicago women, who have large and beautiful places on the Boston north shore—Mrs. R. T. Crane Jr., who gives a dinner, and Mrs. J. H. Moore, who will entertain them at luncheon or a garden party. Apparently living in the esthetic east does not dry up the wells of hospitality instinct in us of the west, and when easterners want something extra in the way of cordial, lavish entertaining they apparently rely greatly on their western friends to help them out.

Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. Walter Denègre, and Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge are other Chicagoans, or former Chicagoans, who have delightful places in that region—this is merely a statement to the general public, not a hint to the Boston Garden club.

Poets at Aldis Playhouse.

Some garden owners specialize in roses; others in larkspur; still others grow only white flowers. In her delectable, spontaneous, unpremeditated garden in Lake Forest Mrs. Arthur Aldis devotes her attention to—what do you think?—poets! She has a crop almost every year blossoming on her lawns, under her apple trees, peering into her pool, and generally absorbing sunshine, air, and sweet content. This year the pacifist poet, Cloyd Head, and his equally poetic wife, who was Mrs. Eunice Tietjens, will occupy the historic playhouse which is one of the features of the Aldis place.

He who strolls in that garden after dark is liable to meet at any turn of those winding, shady paths Melpomene, Erato, or Calliope this coming summer. Those are not common or garden apples, which will hang from those drooping branches; they will be apples of Hesperides. It will not be tea and muffins that will be served on the lawn, but nectar and ambrosia.

Appeals to Women Voters.

How much the fate of the nation is going to be decided or affected by the increasingly active participation of women in politics remains to be seen. The members on the local Republican and Democratic women's committees are taking various and different roads to attract and keep the attention and adherence of the great mass of unaffiliated women voters who must be lined up in the coming presidential campaign.

It may not be especially significant, but before me at this moment lie two invitations, one from the women on the Republican national committee to

Benefit Matinee for Work of Eli Bates Settlement

ONE who is on the search for the joy of life need but go for a visit to the classes and "sings" held at the Eli Bates settlement house at 621 West Elm street to be filled with hope for the future of the city, and despair at the indifference of the city builders to the needs of the Italians who live in the district about.

These children of what might be called "New America" are well born, of clean, sturdy, peasant stock, a high type of family life is maintained in this district, and it has been the aim of the Eli Bates settlement since its foundation in 1884 to be a clearing house for the needs of the neighborhood, and a stable element in the shifting life about it.

From this neighborhood came committees who during the war made immense contributions to the Red Cross work, to war work funds, who took large subscriptions for the Liberty loan and war savings stamps. These people sent large delegations to march in patriotic parades and from them came thousands of soldiers for the American army.

Many of the best home industries of the Italians have been revived and perpetuated through the settlement, and beautiful embroidery is done in the shop that has been established there, in which women learn to work beautifully and quickly, instead of toiling in sweat shops. In four years over 30,000 days' work has been provided for needy women.

The day nursery of the settlement, in which children are taken care of while their mothers are at work, is also an excellent community object lesson in child welfare. There is also a kindergarten there, through which the children get, often for the first time, their first contact with our language and customs, and learn order and discipline.

Through this kindergarten and the classes of the settlement supplementing the schools, the parents who speak no English learn from their children American customs and language. Opportunity is given boys and girls for self-expression and development by means of occupational and recreational activities through classes, clubs, dramatics, athletics, festivals, outings, organized play, and farm life. The need that children have for play and music, for beauty and color and form, for knowledge of conventional life and friendship, is recognized in the activities of the settlement.

Americanization has been the basis of the settlement work. Besides the work of strengthening family life and safeguarding children, much time has been given to arranging for English lessons for men and women and assisting them in making out their naturalization papers.

For the benefit of the work of the settlement there will be a matinée next Friday afternoon at Cohan's Grand opera house at 2:30 o'clock, when the Adolph Bolm ballet intime and the Little Symphony of New York will give the program. Tickets are now on sale at the box office and at the office of Mrs. Russell Tyson, 1730 Stevens building.

Mrs. Tyson is chairman of the board of managers, Mrs. William E. Clarke first vice chairman, Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell second vice chairman, Mrs. Thomas H. McInerney assistant treasurer, Mrs. Edward H. Lee recording secretary, and Mrs. Dana Corbin corresponding secretary.

MRS. A. E. KALTENBRUN — MRS THOMAS H. McINNERNEY. PHOTO-KOEHNE

At the annual meeting of the first congressional district, Illinois Federation of Women's club, Mrs. A. E. Kaltenbrun was elected president for the next two years. Mrs. Kaltenbrun is an active worker in several clubs, among them the Woman's Protective association, which works for the good of young girls and women who are wards of the Municipal court.

Mrs. Thomas H. McInnerney of Winnetka is in charge of arrangements for the benefit performance of the Adolph Bolm Ballet Intime and the Little Symphony of New York, to be given on Friday afternoon at Cohan's Grand Opera house. The proceeds will go toward the fund for the maintenance of the Eli Bates Settlement house.

luncheon tomorrow in the red room at the Hotel La Salle, while the other from the Illinois Democratic woman's committee bids me attend a course of lectures on "The Struggle for Democracy in the United States," to be delivered by William E. Dodd, professor of history at the University of Chicago at the Iroquois club Fridays at 3 p. m. from May 7 to June 4. The fair Republicans approach via "l'estomac," while their Democratic sisters make their appeal to the intellect.

The Republican women here are shepherded by that able and energetic leader, Mrs. Jacob Baur, who knows Illinois state politics from A to Z. She has as aids Mrs. Lambert O. Wile, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Ida Wells Barnett, Mrs. A. N. Marquis, and Mrs. Bertha Montgomery.

Among the members of the Democratic woman's committee are Mrs. W. D. Washburn, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Miss Mary Newberry, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine, Mrs. Hannah G. Soloman, Mrs. Charles C. Willson, Mrs. E. S. Bailey, and Mrs. J. Dewitt Garrison. Prof. Dodd is considered one of the university's "live wires."

Little Tells of Russia's Woes.

Over 200 members and guests turned out at the Casino dinner last Wednesday to welcome Richard Henry Little and to listen to an informal talk he gave describing his experiences with the armies of Denikine, Judenitch, and Rodzianko, the leaders of the "Whites" in their unsuccessful struggle with the Reds, the followers and adherents of the bolshevik leaders, Lenin and Trotzky.

With the former army, a ragged, ill organized rabble, Mr. Little got so near Petrograd that he could pick out that city's palaces, churches, and other buildings. He gave a graphic semi-humorous description of what life was like among those struggling, ragged, foodless masses of savage yet not unkindly people. Blood was shed on such a tremendous and inhuman scale that every one became callous and death took on the every day aspect of life.

Leaving his humor behind him at the close of his talk, he expressed the conviction that it was not for us to mingle in any way in the Russian welter. We don't understand them nor they us. In fact, he thinks that none of those European nations understands us nor appreciates our incorrigible, ineradicable idealism, and that we've no place in that league of nations.

PRESERVES

Only the finest plump fresh berries and pure sugar are used for Savoy

THE appetite responds naturally to SAVOY preserves. These delicious confections add the missing zest to warm-weather meals. They also lighten the menu problem.

And it is a pleasure again to be able to rely on the Savoy label in the selection of your preserves.

As always the Savoy label is the mark of supremely fine preserves. It means they possess a richness and a flavor that can only come from the finest berries and fruits combined with equal parts of pure sugar.

And if economy tempers the selection of your preserves, the Savoy label is double protection for you. A small portion of rich Savoy preserves is fully satisfying.

So when a pure strawberry, loganberry, blackberry or raspberry is wanted—or a pineapple, peach or apricot—ask your grocer for Savoy. For therein is your assurance of that uniformity of high quality so characteristic of all Savoy food products.

This is the reason your grocer invariably recommends Savoy products when he wishes to cultivate a steady customer.

A Career for Your Daughter

THE most womanly of professions, and the most useful to mankind—Nursing. No other profession offers so great a variety of opportunities, or such assurance of profitable, congenial employment from the beginning. No other profession of equal dignity is so easily prepared for, in so short a time, and at such slight expense.

Graduates of first-class schools of Nursing are assured of constant work at good salaries ($100 to $150 a month), with many personal expenses saved. They may choose private nursing, work up to executive positions in hospitals, or devote themselves to school, municipal, industrial, or public health nursing.

Education for this profession among surroundings and influences that prevail in Christian homes may be had at the Training School for Nurses of the world-famous BATTLE CREEK SANITARIUM (1,000 patients). The course includes unusual instruction in Massage, Hydrotherapy, Medical Dietetics, Medical Gymnastics, and all branches of Health Reconstruction. Nurses trained in Battle Creek methods are in special demand.

All essential expenses met by service, with a cash "merit-allowance" of $100 at end of each year of study. Exceptional opportunities for recreation and personal health-building.

Students may enter any time, but should apply at once.

WE TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

The Meyer Both College is conducted as a Department of the Meyer Both Company, the most widely known commercial art organization in the field, who produced and sold last year over 12,600 commercial drawings—used by the leading advertisers of the United States and Canada.

YOU get the benefits of 19 years' successful experience in this course—and are taught the very fundamentals which enabled this organization to dominate its field.

To give you facts you ought to know about this intensely interesting, highly paid profession—(equally open to men and women)—we will send our special book, "YOUR OPPORTUNITY," if you will pay half the cost of mailing—4c in stamps.

Announcing Chicago's First

Women's Apparel Sale

—aimed to break the H. C. L.

Smart New Spring Suits, Dresses and Coats

Savings—50% and More

This is the first decisive blow aimed at the high cost of living by a Chicago retailer of fashionable women's wear. George Bernards blazes the trail that it is hoped other retailers of all commodities will follow. This is an idea that we have long fostered and it is now made possible by a fortunate and most extensive purchase of a countless collection of the newest, smartest Spring and Summer suits, dresses, coats and capes.

"Give Chicago the benefit of this remarkable purchase," is what Mr. George B. Friend wired from New York when his deal was closed. Accordingly, these values are certain to establish a new era of value-giving since prices began their upward climb.

Words, figures and illustrations cannot possibly convey the big economy message that this announcement brings to Chicago women. You simply must examine this fresh, high quality, new apparel, and you can then decide for yourself what tremendous savings this timely sale affords.

Because of these extraordinary values it is impossible to make refunds or exchanges, send C. O. D.'s, ship mail orders—accordingly, please shop carefully!

SALE STARTS PROMPTLY AT 9:00 MONDAY MORNING!

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

This Is American Legion Sunday in Illinois Churches

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot

THE REV. C. A. NAUMANN

"AMERICAN Legion Sunday" will be observed in churches of every name throughout Illinois today. It marks the opening of the Illinois campaign for membership. Legionaires will attend church in a body, and will invite their ex-service friends to go with them. State Commander Milton J. Foreman and the state chaplain, the Rev. Frank D. Adams, have issued a letter calling for the men of the Legion to coöperate in the campaign. The letter says:

"The Legion's fundamental purpose is the development of sound, aggressive Americanism and citizenship in its members and all other citizens. So long as the spirit of true citizenship remains alive throughout the country, its citizens as a whole will secure honest, capable service from their public officials and sound provisions in legislation. Therefore the Legion's task is confined to the development and maintenance of this universal Americanism and good citizenship.

"Constant, nation-wide education of all citizens in Americanism and good citizenship is the foundation of success in promoting these purposes. The Legion must work constantly in coöperation with all loyal Americans, and especially with and through the press, schools, and churches to inculcate love of country, and to spread understanding of our institutions and the responsibilities of citizenship among all who are or who would become citizens.

"Just as the Legion must work for good, so must it work against evil. Its program calls for determined effort to eliminate corruption and faithlessness to duty in public office, to stop attempts to break down our fundamental democracy, or to limit or deny the proper human rights of any man or group."

Booklets explaining the ideals and purposes of the veterans have been sent to all the clergy. Sermons will be preached from them, stressing the practical work of the Legion.

The Illinois branch of the Legion is first in the membership gains proportionate to resident ex-service men, and is second to New York in paid up members.

This week will be observed in Lutheran Sunday schools as "Sacrificial week." The children will "sacrifice to the hurting point" in order to raise $300,000 as their part of the $1,800,000 Lutheran world service fund. The week was inaugurated by the children themselves.

There will be a two week conference for church workers of the province of the midwest of the Episcopal church at Racine college, Racine, Wis., from July 6 to 16. The Rev. Harvey Officer, O. H. C., will be the chaplain, lecture courses will be given by the Rt. Rev. Irving H. Johnston, bishop of Colorado; the Very Rev. Charles Lathrop, dean of the cathedral, Milwaukee, Wis.; the Rt. Rev. James Wise, bishop of Kansas, and the Rev. L. N. Caley of Philadelphia.

The Rev. C. A. Naumann will preach his first sermon as pastor of the St. Paul's English Evangelical Lutheran church, Evanston, today. Mr. Naumann is a graduate of the Lutheran Theological seminary at Maywood. He has been pastor of the English Evangelical church of the Reformation at Milwaukee for the last seven years. When he took charge in 1913 the church was but a mission. Under his charge it received over 500 new members and is now the largest and strongest church of its denomination in Milwaukee, with a membership of 800.

St. Edmund's Roman Catholic church, Oak Park, will celebrate the completion of the interior of the new church by a sacred concert to be given this afternoon. Sig. Vittorio Arimondi, Mrs. Fredericka Gerhardt-Downing, and William Hogerson, all of the Chicago Grand Opera company, will sing.

The oldest Swedish Lutheran church, Immanuel, at Sedgwick and Hobbie streets, will hold the eighteenth annual reunion of its confirmation classes today. The communion service will be held this morning at 10:30 and this afternoon from 4:30 to 7 there will be a reception in the church parlors. A program will be rendered in the church auditorium at 7:30. The Rev. Mr. Bengston, the pastor, will deliver the address, and will be assisted in the service by the Rev. Herbert W. Linden. Immanual church was founded in 1853. The congregation is planning a new building at the corner of Elmdale and Greenwood avenue.

The men's societies of the Roman Catholic church will hold a two day conference in Chicago at the Hotel La Salle on Wednesday and Thursday. The purpose is to organize them into one so that they may act in concert in matters in which they have a common interest.

Let Sunny California yield you a LIFE INCOME from ALMONDS

Today California Offers the Most Remarkable Opportunity for Financial Independence from a Small Investment That Has Been Presented in Many Years

We make this statement advisedly. It is the positive conviction of men whose ripe horticultural experience and thorough knowledge of California's marvelous resources together with their keen practical business judgment entitle them to speak with authority.

This opportunity lies in growing almonds in the wonderfully fertile Paso Robles district which for years has produced the finest almonds in California. And that means the finest grown anywhere in the United States, because 99% of all the almonds grown in the country are grown in California.

Moreover, this opportunity opens the way for your owning a home in this wonderful state of sunshine, flowers, fruit and scenic grandeur. Paso Robles is about midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco and only 16 miles from the coast. An hour's ride—and beach bathing and deep sea fishing to your heart's content! An hour's tramp into the woods—trout fishing and game shooting galore! Nowhere does Nature smile more kindly and offer such a variety and abundance of the things that make life worth the living than in the picturesque Salinas Valley, in the heart of which lies Paso Robles.

These things are within your reach. And California WILL yield you an income to enjoy them for life if you will but invest a part of your surplus earnings NOW, before it is too late, in one of our almond orchards in the Paso Robles district.

$2500 to $3000 a Year from Only 10 Acres

Yes, 10 acres is all you will need to yield you a life income of from $2500 to $3000 a year.

This may seem incredible, but in reality it is a very conservative estimate, based upon the selling price of Paso Robles Almonds in 1918, which was 25c per pound.

We plant 700 of the finest pedigreed almond trees that horticultural skill can produce to each 10-acre tract. Our Field Manager, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, who is the acknowledged almond authority of the Pacific Coast, estimates a yield of 20 pounds per tree when the trees are eight years old. Yet on January 10th of this year Mr. Nehrhood appeared before C. D. McFarland, Notary Public in and for San Luis Obispo County, California (in which Paso Robles is situated), and made an affidavit as follows:

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

"I hereby make affidavit that I have planted and now own young orchards which are annually producing in excess of the estimates set forth in the booklet gotten out by the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles, entitled 'A Life Income Plus California.'

"I not only have orchards that are producing more than the said estimate, but there are other orchards in the district which also surpass the estimate in question.

"I attach hereto and desire to make a part hereof the tabulation referred to in said booklet.

(Signed) G. A. NEHRHOOD."

As we have said, we estimate net returns of from $250 to $300 an acre on a basis of 25c per pound. But last year the price paid to Paso Robles almond growers was 30c to 32½c per pound. Now just figure the very moderate yield of only 20 pounds per tree and multiply that by the 700 trees comprising a 10-acre orchard—a total of 14,000 pounds—at last year's lowest price (30c) and see what the returns actually are—$4200! Allow $50.00 an acre for EVERY POSSIBLE expense of cultivating, pruning, harvesting and marketing the crop and deduct this $500 from the 10-acre yield, and there still remains a net profit of $3700.

Buy Now---For Next Season's Planting

Reservations for next season's planting are being rapidly taken up. It is to every buyer's advantage to secure a planting as quickly as possible, because the orchard will come into bearing and begin earning money for its owner just that much sooner. Last season we were forced to disappoint many buyers simply because we did not have a sufficient number of trees to go around. It was a case of "first come, first served." From present indications it is a foregone conclusion that this same condition will exist this coming planting season, and that even a greater number of buyers will have to be placed on the deferred planting list. The wise thing for you to do, therefore, is to investigate this remarkable opportunity at once, and then to lose no time in making your reservation.

How Your Interests Are Absolutely Protected

One of the largest Trust Companies in the United States acts as custodian of the development fund created by the money sent to us by buyers, and not a dollar of this fund can be used for any purpose except for orchard development—cultivating the ground, furnishing and planting the trees, pruning, harvesting, marketing. Upon completion of your contract this Trust Company will deliver to you the deed and title to your orchard.

A Safe, Wise Investment

Our Association is composed entirely of men of the highest standing and business integrity. They are men who saw the opportunity of developing the valuable almond land of the Paso Robles district and invested their money in the enterprise. They are making big money from their orchards and are recommending and selling tracts to their best friends. They know that the development of the Paso Robles district and the cultivation of almonds will increase the value of every orchard there and mean big profits for every investor. That is the purpose of our Association.

Your Crops Pay Half

A moderate payment down and partial payments as low as $25.00 a month put you in possession of one of these big profit-making 10-acre orchards of 700 almond trees. But you pay only half the price out of your pocket. We will accept payment for the balance from the sale of the almonds after the trees are in bearing. We must see that the orchard "makes good" for you before we can fully be paid. It is to our own interest to keep your property in the best possible condition. We willingly make this arrangement because we know that nothing obtained from the soil is surer than Paso Robles almond crops.

Money Back Guarantee

If you visit our property, or have some one representing you do so, and do not find this investment to be exactly as presented in our book—and you will have thirty days in which to make your investigation—we agree to refund the payments you have made, together with your railroad and Pullman fares paid to inspect the property.

GASOLINE ALLEY—A MAN CAN'T TAKE CARE OF A BABY AND A CAR

Summer Camp Motor Tourists to Boost City

Park Board Asked to Consider Comfort of Visitors

BY J. L. JENKINS.

RABS of the highway are about to come into their own in Chicago. Plans for a motorist camping ground, within easy riding distance of the loop, bathing beaches, and pleasure grounds that support the city's claims as the logical summer resort of the middle west, have at last progressed far enough to become a practical certainty.

Officials of the Illinois Automobile club are behind the long delayed movement, which proposes to set aside a suitable camp site on the lake front somewhere within the city limits, to welcome the hundreds of spring and summer tourists who for years past have been thrown on the mercies of vacant lot owners in the suburbs when seeking camping privileges for their Chicago visit. They have asked the park commissioners to consider establishing a free municipal camping ground for tourists in the park system.

If the request is refused the club plans to lease a site, install plumbing, cooking, and sanitary equipment, and establish a policing system that will give ample protection both to the nomad visitors and to the city.

"Advantages and disadvantages of municipal camping grounds have been debated too long in Chicago," declared Kinley Paulman, who is for direct action in camp building if the city decides against the municipal plan. "Practically every city along the transcontinental motor routes long ago established camping places for its automobile visitors. Some have gone so far as to erect serviceable little buildings equipped with every camp comfort for the free use of tourists. In California municipal camp grounds in or near practically every town have proved the best investment for both municipalities and state.

"At present there is not a single place anywhere in Chicago where the motorist, out for a summer road cruise and beating the H. C. L. with a camping outfit, is welcome. Last summer hundreds of desirable visitors had the alternative of paying hotel prices or camping far out in the country, hours away from the Chicago pleasures they had come hundreds of miles to enjoy. As a result, most of them cut their Chicago visits short. The city should give this kind of visitor the welcome he deserves."

Camp committee heads are now awaiting word from the park commissioners. They will take immediate steps to lease a camp site if the commission report is unfavorable.

Professional.

That there is honor among thieves is nowhere more obvious than in Detroit. No Detroit thief, it is said, would think of stealing a car after sundown. All motor car thievery in that town, he says, is in daylight, open and above board.

MY FUNNIEST MOTORING EXPERIENCE

Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

In the Limelight.

WAGONS are treacherous devices. My last experience with one was in a traffic jam just before I reached the busiest corner in town. I did not know that the boost I gave the wagon had done any damage to either of us, and so, when I swung into the main intersection I planned a perfectly snappy turn.

Around came the steering wheel and I felt it lock. I felt for the brake, but in my excitement, struck the gas and began circling the traffic cop at breakneck speed. He dodged me at least three times before I stopped, the exact center of downtown attention. Then he regained his breath and raised his voice for all the world to hear.

"If ye are finished with this grrand exhibition," he advised, "please go somewhere else so the traffic can get by!" J. A. R.

Exit Humorist.

While making a tour of the southern states, we were driving along a country road, when a farmer came walking toward us. One of our crowd a humorist, thinking he would have some fun with the man, stopped the car, and taking a small satchel and a magazine, gave a ten minute impression of Billy Sunday. When he had finished, the man looked at him a little queerly, put his hand in his pocket and gave him a card. On it were the words, "I am deaf." W. B.

O Man!

All shiny and bright, I was on my way to see the newest girl one night. A man in another car attempted to pass me and finally did, but I overtook him, and then stayed in the middle of the road so he could not pass. This made him angry and he called me various names. When I reached the girl's home, to my surprise, the man behind me stopped too. I was ready to fight it out with him, when the girl came out on the porch and introduced me to her father—my newly made enemy. There was no chance then. E. B.

Auto Follies This Week.

Motor row is more or less agog with anticipation. "Auto Follies" of 1920 is ready to play its spring engagement in Aryan Grotto, Eighth street and Wabash avenue, beginning May 7. The cast, under the direction of E. B. Bowling and sponsored by the Illinois Automobile club, includes 120 of the beauty squad of the Michigan avenue automobile industry, supported by six reputable vaudeville acts. Both the cast and the management expect to play to "S. R. O." on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Cleaning Leather.

Unless you wish to crack the leather, do not use gasoline in cleaning it. One fairly good way to get off dirt from leather is to use plain water, to which a little ammonia has been added. After this has dried the leather should be rubbed briskly with a soft cloth, such as flannel or cheesecloth. If you wish to do the best thing possible for the leather either purchase one of the prepared leather dressings or make some yourself. For this purpose a mixture of two parts of linseed oil to one of turpentine is as effective as anything.

Manitoba Makes Bid for Travel of Motor World

EIGHT hundred miles of roads will be graded this year in Manitoba. Since the good roads law was passed six years ago, 1,200 miles of roads have been graded and 40[illegible] miles graveled. During the next four years more than 4,000 miles will be graded and about 2,000 miles graveled.

Encouraged and necessitated by the steadily increasing number of motor cars and trucks in the province, the road building program has become one of the most important projects in Manitoba. It includes provincial and international highways as well as local thoroughfares.

Besides the road work, the program covers the construction of more than 100 bridges this year, all of steel and concrete. The largest will be a steel bridge, 650 feet long, with concrete abutments and piers, over the Red river. A concrete bridge with a 100 foot clear span will cross La Salle river, several will be constructed over the Assiniboine river, and there will be dozens with thirty to fifty foot spans.

Thus far 348 bridges have been built under the good roads act, of which 271 were of concrete, and all of the future activities will be correlated with the general government program that aims to make dominion highways among the best in the world.

The estimated aggregate sale of motor cars in all Canada last year amounted to about $100,000,000. Manitoba province, according to the number of licenses issued, had 29,163 cars last year. Purchases this year have been so great that a 35 per cent increase is expected.

LINCOLN

"Life is a series of surprises. We do not guess today the power of tomorrow." Emerson

The fine art of motor making was considerably advanced when Mr. Henry M. Leland created his first V-type automobile engine. It was the materialization of an idea and an ideal. Behind it was a rich and successful experience. At no time was it an experiment. And an interested world enthusiastically welcomed it as a needed refinement in motor car construction.

And now, Mr. Leland and his son make another important mark in progress.

The new motor car which will soon be placed upon the American market by the Lincoln Motor Company of Detroit is the finest development of that ripe experience—perhaps, even a surprising manifestation of the power of tomorrow.

The JORDAN Silhouette

WOMEN with a natural appreciation of comfort, atmosphere and poise, find this car irresistible in its compelling color and air of refinement.

That intuitive sense which knows the genuine at sight has awakened women's keen interest in the Jordan the country over.

The Jordan Silhouette bodies, as the well-informed already know, have been accepted as models by those who do not hesitate to follow intelligent leadership. In exquisite contour, warm colors, and studied detail in workmanship, they have marked the passing of the old—the advent of the new.

Here is a car—high-grade, light in weight, good-looking, perfectly balanced, rattle-proof, comfortable, economical, and striking in performance.

This is a car for the experienced owner who has acquired a sense of real motor car value.

Used Car Secrets Exposed to Help the Uninitiated

Expert Thinks Dealer Is Prime Factor in Any Bargain

BY HIGH SPEED.

AT this season of the year, and more particularly at a time when new car production has been cut down considerably, there is greater activity in the used car field. Many thousands of prospective owners will need some advice on the purchase of a used car so as to be able to avoid buying a wreck with perfectly good money.

It has been said that a used car is no better than the dealer or man who sells it, and there is a great deal of truth in this. In our larger cities the newspapers are filled with so-called blind advertisements of owners who "must get out of town," or which give some such excuse for selling. The buyer should be careful of the greater number of these because they may be simply poor propositions handled for the dealer by some person who is supposed to be the owner.

The best place to select for looking over used cars is the salesroom of some reputable dealer in the automobile section of the city. If you are interested in a used Hudson, go to the Hudson dealer; in a Hupmobile, go to the dealer in that car. In this way you are sure at least of getting a car that has been put in shape properly and not "jobbed up" for a sale. Often, however, a dealer will have cars of other makes in his shop, and naturally so, because all sales are not to previous owners of his car.

It is usual for a dealer to give the exterior of a car the best appearance possible so that it will strike the fancy of the buyer, especially if his wife is along. Good external appearance is, of course, essential, but for the time being it should be neglected. The chassis should be gone over, and if found satisfactory then attention may be devoted to the condition of the upholstery, the top, curtains, paint, and other items. These are matters which are not important in the running of a car. A good body won't keep a car running.

It is a most difficult matter to tell by a mere drive around the block whether the car is in perfect condition, especially if the street is smooth.

Rattles and squeaks caused by loose parts are noticed only on rough roads. Hence it is wise when trying out the car to take it first slowly and then at a fair rate over a bad piece of road.

Never take a dealer's word that "that can be fixed up in a jiffy." Do not take a car unless it is "fixed up" and to your satisfaction. Never take a car with certain parts of the equipment missing which "will be sent to you just as soon as they come." Half the time they never come or are delayed until the end of the season.

In order to determine the fitness of the used car you will have to drive it yourself to see whether there is undue play in the power transmission system. A bad clutch or a worn transmission can be "overcome" by good driving, and the demonstrators usually are good at covering up such spots. Brakes should be tested so that a relining job is not necessary the first week you have the car.

If possible open the drain plugs of the transmission and rear axle and see if any oil or thinned grease runs out. Often a bad set of gears or even gears with broken teeth can be made noiseless for a short run by packing the case with heavy grease.

A new battery usually costs anywhere from $25 to $75, depending on the size, and it is the easiest of things to take an old battery ready for the junk pile and get it in shape so it will give service for a few minutes.

In driving around on the demonstration one can only listen for loud knocks in the engine and other parts. Bearings, of course, can be tightened and certain loose parts made to remain quiet for a time. Here is an important point. An "oil pumper" is an engine whose pistons and rings are worn, and such an engine, when it gets hot after running some time, will pump so much oil into the combustion chambers as to cause misfiring and bad running generally. For a short period the "oil pumper" will be all right. Look around the valves for oil leakage from an oil pumper.

Wheel bearings and steering can be gone over y shaking the wheels violently and by pulling and pushing on the steering connections. Often, however, excessive wear in these places can be covered.

The best advice is, buy from a reputable dealer and take his word for the condition of the car.

The Rubber Way.

The Chamber of Commerce has compiled statistics showing that peak demand for tires in the United States for 1920 will be 80,000,000 for passenger cars and motor trucks. The present output of the country is approximately 45,000,000, and it is estimated that at the end of the present year the annual requirements will be 57,000,000.

National SEXTET

BUILT IN FIVE CUSTOM BODY MODES

"A Glutton for Punishment"

Repair shops and service stations mean very, very little in the long and untroubled life of the National Sextet.

Carelessness and accident are the only vexing griefs from which this stalwart car is not immune.

Cradled in a stout, deep-framed chassis is an engine of rawhide toughness, designed to withstand punishment and to resist the wear that arduous service imposes.

All bearings, for example, are triply oversize, the crankshaft having the unusual diameter of 2½ inches, while all other parts have the same generous margin of safety.

An improved circulatory oiling system, by which oil is forced, under pressure, to every point of vital wear, including the overhead-valve mechanism, minimizes friction and attendant deterioration, and maintains accuracy and close alignment of parts.

The accurate balancing of the crankshaft and reciprocating parts checkmates vibration and the resulting crystallization so destructive to metals.

And the abundant power of the Sextet engine is a source of enduring strength, the latent reserve incorporated in 71 horsepower allowing unusual performance without maximum effort and without the laboring strain that maximum effort entails.

To ride in the National Sextet is to know mechanical excellence in terms of unfailing competence. We would be pleased to send one of our demonstrating cars to your home or office.

War Truck Fleet Enlisted to Aid County Program

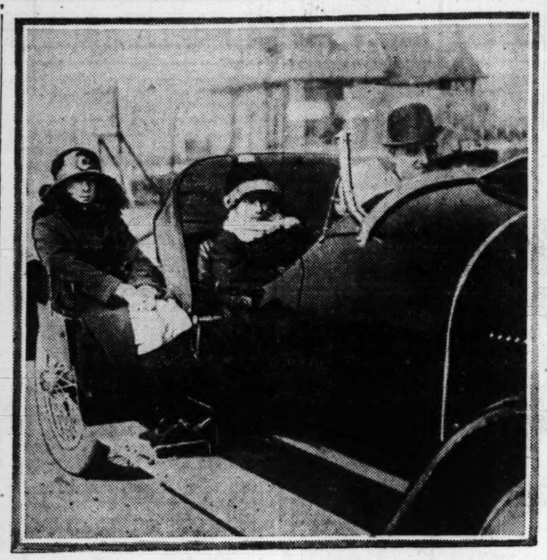
SIX hundred khaki motor trucks, the kind that helped make the Yankee services of supply the marvel of military science in Europe, have been remobilized to aid Illinois in winning its battles for good roads and county improvements.

Announcement of this, one of the most important highway aids rendered the state by the federal government, has been received by County Clerk Robert Sweitzer, who has already issued an appeal to the Illinois department of public works and buildings for the immediate delivery of the maximum number of war trucks that may be allotted to Cook county. Whether the Cook county fleet will consist of ten or 100 trucks has not yet been determined, but local officials all along the line, from the board to township chiefs, are prepared to place them in public service the moment they arrive.

Distribution of the trucks allotted the state by the war department following demobilization of the army was originally confined to use on federal aid roads only. A recent amendment of the congressional bill, however, provided that while this equipment must remain the property of the state, it may be leased by the state to the various counties and through the counties to townships and municipalities where the trucks will do the most good. Cook county will be held responsible for all of the trucks the state department sees fit to release for local work, according to the ruling.

"We can use every wheel the state people can let us have," declared Henry Zeider, superintendent of public service, "and they can't come too soon to suit our plans. Right now we have nine road roller outfits working overtime to meet the requirements of town supervisors in their highway improvement programs. Our contractors could use more than one hundred motor trucks tomorrow and solve part of their big problem in the transportation of new road materials. As many more could be used by the forest reserve district, where these army trucks will be worth their weight in silver, and we could employ a fleet of like size in work that should be done for the various Cook county institutions.

"The county cannot buy motor trucks for this necessary work, although we need this sort of equipment in every branch of the department. The state's decision concerning how many trucks Cook county can have and their early delivery is going to have a strong bearing on the amount of general improvement work that may be accomplished this year."



ANOTHER UTILITY—This London motorist can carry two extras with room to spare in his roadster. He conceived the idea of building comfortable seats on the two rear mud guards and now the kids fight for the places of honor.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

The Packard Company of Chicago has announced that it will supply a pilot truck, equipped for roadside service, to any fleet of overland haulers preparing to make the trip between Chicago and Detroit.

Touring bureaus in the Finger Lakes district of New York this summer will include in their service the distribution of application blanks for membership in the Chicago Motor club, according to a local announcement.

The Milburn Electric has joined the ever increasing caravan of "driveaways" now negotiating roads between factory and dealer. Two electric fleets recently made overland trips between Toledo, Indianapolis, and Cincinnati to meet delivery promises.

A bridge walk, fifteen feet above the heads of workmen and running the length of the plant, has been installed in the Lexington factory at Connersville, Ind., for the benefit of visitors.

State and municipal police organizations in California have mobilized to meet and prevent an epidemic of automobile stealing anticipated in the spring and summer.

R. W. Anderson has been made manager of the Chicago retail store of the Chevrolet Motor company to succeed L. M. Dreves.

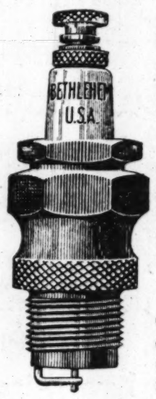
Spark Plugs and The Transmission



LISTEN! . . . Yes, that's a "miss," all right. One of the plugs has fouled and you'll have to limp along with one cylinder "dead." And the first little rise in the road, you'll have to drop into "second."

Consider the extra gear-shifting, the gasoline wastage, the heating-up caused by running so long in second gear—all because one spark plug couldn't stand the racket.

Put a Bethlehem Spark Plug in every cylinder and be sure of hitting on every cylinder. Improved engineering ideas reduce liabi ity of fouling. Special-formula porcelain reduces breakage and current-loss to a minimum.

All plugs are tested individually and guaranteed as to material and workmanship. Special electrical and compression-testing apparatus make this guarantee possible.

Give the same care to the purchase of your plugs as you do to gasoline and tires. To help you secure the right plug for your particular car and condition, we have written a booklet, "Hit or Miss?", which we will send you free on request.

STEPHENS Salient Six

Leadership Won By Its Greater Value — Greater Service

The gradually growing popularity of the Stephens is due to the definite satisfaction, which this car gives its owners.

It comes from owner appreciation of the finer workmanship and the true beauty and style of Stephens hand-built bodies.

It comes also from owner satisfaction in the greater service of the modern Stephens engine.

An engine that is no respecter of the grades of gasoline you supply it—that burns all the gasoline, thus wasting no fuel and no power.

A salient service, that comes to owners in the form of speed, endurance, flexibility, hill-climbing ability and smooth-riding at their maximum.

Stephens leadership is a just leadership soldidly fixed in the minds of Stephens owners, who agree, that, "To own a Stephens is to enjoy the height of motor car satisfaction."

Arrange for a demonstration today.

Three Favorites Gear for Action in Indianapolis

JULES GOUX, France's chief delegate to the speed congress in Indianapolis and captain of the Peugeot team, has sailed from Havre on the Loraine to make his final preparations for the 500 mile Speedway grind May 31. The Peugeot cars are expected to arrive about the same time as their master and will be driven through from the seaboard.

JULES GOUX.

With three Peugeots entered, negotiations are under way to enter a fourth mount for Art Klein. The international dicker for the car, known to have been built to meet the Speedway requirements, is being made by Frank F. Book, Detroit sportsman, who was De Palma's backer in 1916 and who has financed most of Klein's races.

Gaston Chevrolet, another contender for the preliminary limelight, has been named as the second member of the Monroe team. Previous to last year Gaston had made little impression in the racing world, but his three startling victories of the one season brought him immediate popularity. He is already listed in the favorite class this year, and is being groomed to stop Milton in the latter's spectacular speed campaign.

GASTON CHEVROLET.

Racing experts are also busily engaged in analyzing the makeup of Jimmy Murphy, who has entered the Indianapolis race, after his jump to fame recently in Los Angeles. Practically unknown before the Los Angeles event, Murphy demonstrated his right to rank in first division among world drivers by winning the Pacific run with an average of 103.2 miles an hour after a nonstop performance. The victory came in his first championship encounter, and he has lost no time in courting a second test calculated to bring him permanent fame.

JIMMIE MURPHY.

As a side dish to the $50,000 prize entree at Indianapolis the American Bosch Magneto corporation has posted a $2,000 cash prize to go to the winner.

Arrange Elgin Race.

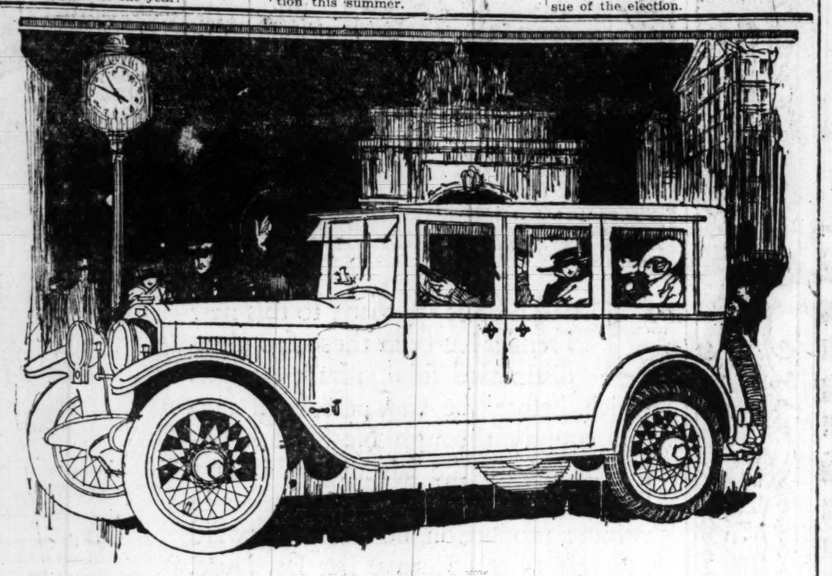
Application for sanction for the 1920 Elgin road race has been made to the contest board of the American Automobile association by Charles P. Root, chairman of the contest committee of the Chicago Automobile club, which with the Elgin Road Race association, will conduct the classic. If the A. A. A. chairman grants permission the race will be a national championship affair, at least a factor in determining the champion for the year.

New Truck Builder.

The American-La France Fire Engine company has entered the field of the manufacture of commercial motor trucks. The company is now completing its first series of trucks in its plant at Elmira, N. Y., but for the permanent production of its commercial trucks the company has acquired a tract in New Jersey, near Newark, on which a plant is now being erected, and which it is expected will be in active operation this summer.

"Rally 'Round."

Motorists of the Hamilton club, demonstrating the fellowship that binds the clans of the open road, have announced their intention of solidly backing Robert W. Dunn in his campaign for the club's presidency this year. According to leaders of the gasoline contingency, Mr. Dunn's activities as a good roads advocate alone are sufficient recommendation. They declare that the roads question may be made an issue of the election.



On rough, rutted roads or smooth stretches of city boulevards, the Auburn's mastery is evident. There is a sweetness in running and an ease of control that makes motoring a constant joy.

The Auburn all-weather Sedan is truly a year-round car. Warm comfort and delightful luxury during the colder months; open car freedom in fairer seasons.

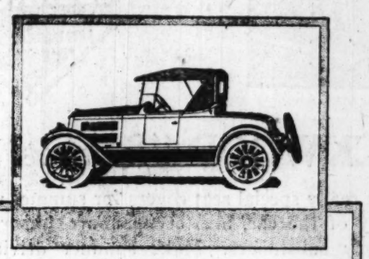
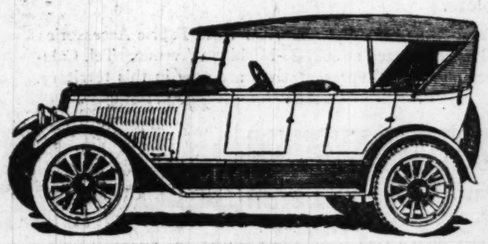
Four models: 5-passenger Touring Car, 3-passenger Roadster, 5-passenger Sedan and 4-passenger Coupe.





Mitchell

NOTE how people stop and examine the New Mitchell. Every one parked draws its group of admirers.

Such is the extreme interest in this new-style car. It is that same interest which made it a sensation at all the Automobile Shows.

First, the body design appeals to those who like the latest. And to those that like harmony of lines.

The slanting radiator does away with old-time bluntness. It conforms with windshield, doors, louvers, etc.

This designing brings a new unity in motor architecture. It is the master touch of authoritative designers.

Then its finish

The eye quickly appraises all the costly-car features. And one is surprised at such an expensive appearing car at such a modest price.

Yet there is no secret. Mitchell can afford to offer more because it saves in countless ways and puts that saving into its cars.

A visit to Racine would prove it. For instance, Mitchell is one of the very few makers building its own bodies. That saves outside-builders' profits.

Examine one of the New Mitchells yourself. Note all the superiorities.

Then let us point out the unseen values—the finer materials, the finer ways of manufacture.

We can demonstrate beyond question that this New Mitchell offers exceptional values. Values you can't duplicate.

In four models

There is a big demand all over the country for these New Mitchells. The allotment for this territory is being taken up quickly.

We therefore urge you to investigate this New Mitchell at once. Then make comparisons.

In it, we believe, you will find your car. And extreme and continued satisfaction.

We suggest placing your order early, so as to insure early delivery.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

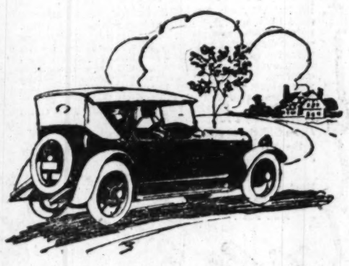
THERE has never been any doubt in the public mind about the five-passenger Paige Glenbrook.

From the very first it has been acknowledged—and quite properly—as setting a new standard of values in Light Sixes.

It appeals especially to those who have acquired the new American habit of thrift—who believe that true economy consists in getting the greatest values for the least money.

By this we do not mean that the Paige Glenbrook is, in any sense of the term, a cheap car. Its value is emphasized not so much by its conservative price as by the large measure of comfort and satisfaction received in return for the sum invested.

Because of noteworthy developments in chassis and motor, this five-passenger Paige is a car of outstanding mechanical excellence. And its advanced body design has endowed it with a roominess and comfort that are truly exceptional.



With the demand for the Paige Glenbrook far exceeding our utmost production efforts, a prompt decision is advisable. Orders placed now mean just so much more of the best touring season assured for your enjoyment.

THERE, LITTLE PURP, DON'T CRY.

(Argument: Mother buys the young son and heir-to-practically-nothing a collie pup. The pup does his best, but, after all, he is only a dog, and lacks endurance.)

There, little purp, don't cry;
The baby is tough, I know,
And he pulls your tail
Till your face turns pale
And your bussum is full of woe—
For a two year old, he's a hard boiled guy—
But there, little purp, don't cry.

There, little purp, don't cry.
He sits on your head, I know,
And your chassis is bare
Where he's pulled out your hair,
And you're minus a tooth or so.
But then you are lucky—you still have an eye.
There, little purp, don't cry.

There, little purp, don't cry.
He steals all your bones, I know
And he chews your ears
Till you cry big tears,
But he won't in a day or so.
I'm going to muzzle the tough little guy.
There, little purp, don't cry, don't cry.

Hardened to Hardships of Travel

The sturdy trapper can stand the hardships of the cruel, frozen North—he is hardened to them.

Gillette Non-Skid Tires stand the grind of travel—pile mileage upon mileage—safe, swift, economical mileage, because they are hardened to the hardships of road and climate and possess the proper non-skid principle.

The many-sided curved formation gives a positive brace against side-skids and power-wasting spinning. Bites deep into dirt roads—holds fast to smooth, slippery pavements.

Wears down slowly—evenly. This longer wear plus greater safety is due to the improved Gillette Chilled Rubber Process. This better way of making better tires reduces sand blisters — that means more mileage. It eliminates all tread separation with its resultant blow-outs —that means more mileage. It renders rubber imperious to heat and cold—and that means more mileage. Gillette Non-Skid Tires are made up of more mileage qualities. They serve in the safest, most satisfactory way at least possible cost. Second year sale of Gillette Tires was greater than the second year sale of any other brand. Service rendered thousands of users proves Gillette supremacy in safety, in economy.

QUALITY IS THE BASIS OF TRIBUNE ADVERTISING

How the North Treated the South—A Reply to Keynes

By William E. Dodd

[Professor of American History, University of Chicago.]

THE TRIBUNE has given some publicity to the protest of the French minister of finance against Secretary Houston's statement that the south at the close of the American civil war was subjected to terms quite as severe as those to which the recent great war has subjected any country of Europe.

This raises an important question, which all groups of our people ought to consider at this time. At the close of the American civil war the whole state of Virginia lay prostrate, and its great granary, the Shenandoah valley, a larger region than devastated France, had undergone a destructive invasion that took from it all horses, cattle, and hogs that could be seized. Almost every barn had been burned. The mills were all destroyed. Grain that could not be taken away was burned. The people were left without food for themselves.

One only has to read Gen. Sheridan's report to the war department to learn that his own statement, that a crow that would fly over the great valley of Virginia must take its provisions with him, was true. And for many years after the close of the war it was a common boast of army officers that Sherman had utterly laid waste the richest region of Virginia. Is there any section of Europe that could tell a worse tale?

All the way from Atlanta to middle North Carolina, a distance of 500 miles, there was a burnt over and broken area, where naked chimneys stood as mute reminders of the work of Gen. Sherman. It was a strip ranging from twenty to sixty miles in width, the very region where the great plantations had flourished for half a century. There can be no doubt or question of the nature of the devastation and ruin that was wrought upon the south nor of the intent of the work. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE itself said, if the Mississippians did not submit to the will of the north, that whole state should be converted into a frog pond.

To illustrate the genuineness of Sherman's march through North Carolina, I shall cite three or four facts from my own family's experience. My father, a boy of 16, drove the neighborhood hroses into a vast and intricate swamp in eastern North Carolina and kept them there for weeks to prevent their being taken. He was successful. The swamp was unknown to the invaders, and they did not undertake to penetrate it.

At the house of my great-grandmother Johnston there was a small crop of wheat stored in the parlor. Sherman's troops took some barrels of home made molasses and emptied them into the parlor with the wheat. My great-grandfather Horne was a slave owner and had a rather pretentious home near Clayton, N. C. Sherman's troops went through every drawer and cupboard in the house, looking for valuables. They then went to the wood pile, removed the wood, and drove deep into the ground long steel spikes to see whether any valuables were buried there.

When one of the divisions of Sherman's army entered Raleigh, N. C., a native of the city made some resistance and, upon the order of Gen. Kilpatrick, he was promptly hanged to the limb of a great oak that still stands near the capitol. Many a time have the boys of the city had this oak and the deed that distinguished it pointed out to them.

These are but a few of the experiences of members of my own family. I have no reason in the world to doubt that the account of them is true.

Was the lot of the south as hard and cruel as that of France or Germany? Let a few of the facts of our own history speak. The south was devastated as effectively as the wit of man could contrive. Her total wealth in 1860 was about $6,000,000,000. She spent $2,000,000,000 fighting the north. She lost $2,000,000,000 by the freeing of the slaves. She perhaps had a third as much wealth in 1865 as she had in 1860.

The federal government laid an export tax upon cotton, the only great industry the south had. It was a 10 per cent tax, I believe. It required the debt contracted during the war, due to the more well to do southerners, to be repudiated. That and the emancipation of the slaves put all classes upon an economic level. All were poor and substantilly equal. Has that been done to any of the peoples of Europe, except by the Russian bolsheviki of their own motion?

Moreover, the south was compelled to take upon itself the payment of about one-third of the federal debt incurred in their own suppression. Germany has not yet been called on to pay the debts of France and England. Besides, the southerners were compelled to pay about a third of the cost of the pensions, most lavishly granted to union soldiers. The treaty, which Mr. Keynes thinks unprecedented for its harshness, does undertake to compel the Germans to pay some of the cost of the French pensions. But how modest is a French pension?

At the close of the American civil war the southern white people were compelled by military power to turn over their public affairs to their former slaves. Legislatures, colleges, and local governments were placed under the control of groups in each state nine-tenths of whose members knew absolutely nothing of government, of history, or even of the rudiments of education. They heaped upon the south somewhat more than a hundred millions of debts, for which there was no equivalent in goods or services of any kind rendered.

For ten years after the close of the civil war troops were maintained in the south to enforce these conditions, and the south was compelled against her will to have her electoral votes counted for her political opponents. It may indeed be doubted whether any other people of modern times has been subjected to harsher terms than were those of the south from 1865 to 1876.

Secretary Houston is a historial of high standing, although he has written only one historical work. He has stated a fact very moderately. A French minister of finance ought really to hesitate to contradict him. He has not said nearly as much as ought to be said by way of reminding our own people of their own past. Not that we need now renew our sectional grievances, but that we may judge world problems a little more thoughtfully at a time when our judgments might do so much to alleviate the ills of war and to warn other nations that cruel terms fixed upon beaten peoples do not convert them from their errors of opinion.

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn

HAVE LIFTED

CHALMERS

to the Peak of Efficiency

Quality First

IN these days when "gas" is going up in price and down in grade through a shortage in supply the world over, consider these revolutionary devices: Hot Spot and Ram's-horn. They have lifted Chalmers to the very peak of efficiency.

They get amazing power out of low grade "gas."

When the raw "gas" strikes Hot Spot this device transforms it into a "cloud," very much like a drop of water striking a hot stove.

This "cloudy" condition makes just the right fuel for the engine.

Now the task is to get it quickly to the engine chambers for ignition before it can condense or "grow rainy."

This is where Ram's-horn performs heroic service. It has no sharp corners for "gas" to lodge against, is surprisingly short in length, and the velocity with which "gas" travels through this "tunnel" is estimated at one hundred miles per hour.

The results are two-fold. You get power with rare smoothness. You seldom experience such difficulties as fouled spark plugs, burned bearings, scored cylinders and the like, because "raw gas" cannot trickle down past the pistons and thus "cut" the lubricating oil in the crankcase.

These efficiency results have added to the impression that Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

The Firestone Cord, announced last year as first of the new standard oversize, has proven its superiority through the stress of winter driving—and the car owners recognize it.

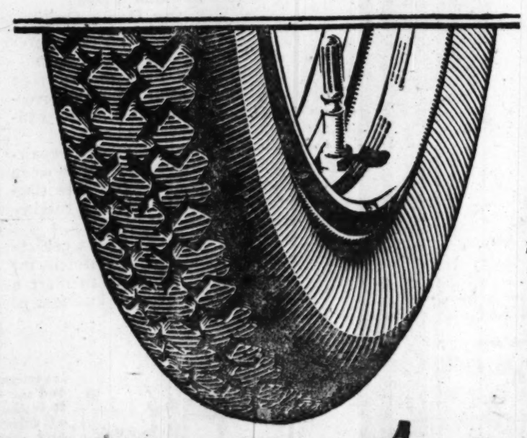
Go back of this Firestone Cord Tire, and you will arrive at this conclusion—that Firestone does give and will always continue to give most miles per dollar.

Firestone Buying Resources

With purchasing headquarters established at Singapore, with expert buyers stationed at all sources of production, Firestone gets first call on the choicest of raw rubber; and Firestone's quantity buying resources create big savings at the source.

Firestone's foresight in establishing sources of supply for cord and fabric, assuring uniform quality and constant delivery, creates still further savings, and these are all turned into more miles for the car owner's money.

What Most Miles per Dollar Means To 7,000,000 Car Owners



Firestone Manufacturing Initiative

This is demonstrated pointedly in this Cord Tire.

It is substantiated by the Firestone worker-stockholder organization—men financially interested in the success of the product their skill turns out. With every incentive to work better and live better, most miles per dollar is a definite pledge.

Firestone Distribution

With 64 branches established in the principal cities throughout the United States, and with 46,000 dealers everywhere, selling Firestone Tires, Firestone has worked out the efficient and economical distribution system to get tires into the hands of car owners.

Any one of these 46,000 Firestone dealers will supply you with Firestones in your size and type.

Put Firestones on every wheel of your car.

Most miles per dollar is a Firestone pledge, to the light car owner as well as to the owners of big cars. See the $7,000,000 special molded 3½-inch Firestone.

ASTRONOMY

AN ECLIPSE OF THE MOON.

THERE will be an eclipse of the moon tonight. The sun, earth, and moon will come into a straight line just at dark, and for a few hours the earth's shadow will fall on our satellite. As the sun sinks below the horizon the moon will come slowly into view in the east, with a dusky bite on her lower edge. As she rises she will plunge deeper and deeper into the shades, until when she is well up she will be completely immersed.

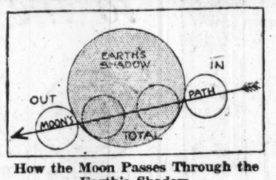
The edge of the earth's shadow, as you will see tonight, is hazy and ill-defined, and for this reason it is not possible to be more than general in giving the times of totality.

According to astronomical predictions, the moon will first encounter the earth's shadow at 6 o'clock. It will be totally immersed at 14 minutes past 8, and will continue in totality for half an hour. The eclipse will be all over at 9:41.

When the moon is most deeply immersed in the earth's shadow it will still be faintly illuminated with a ruddy or coppery glow. This is the light from our sunset and sunrise skies shining on the moon.

How the Red Earth-Light Lights the Moon.

[By S. F. Maxwell.]



How the Moon Passes Through the Earth's Shadow.

Lunar eclipses are not of much astronomical interest because they are less spectacular than eclipses of the sun, and do not reveal so much. But if we could go to the moon and look back, what a grand sight we would see.

The earth stands stock still in the lunar sky, never rising nor setting, while the sun and stars creep slowly by. The great crescent of the earth, fifteen times as large as the moon ever appears to us, grows narrower and narrower as the sun draws night. The horns reach around farther and farther to the dark side. The face against the sun is still gleaming white, but the horns are becoming redder and redder all the time.

The sun will not miss the great black faced globe in the sky. It will go behind it. It touches, it creeps in, it grows faint, it is totally obsessed.

The shadow of the earth darkens all the moonland. The world now shines down like a great annulus of dotted blood. Every cloud, every gorgeous color of sunset and sunrise over the whole earth flash into view. The sun's rays bend inward and light the wild desolate landscape of the moon with a glow like the colors of a red fire celebration. The ring of scarlet light, the flaming colors of the sun behind the crimson vapors in the sun's own arc, the airless sky and steady stars all do their share to make an eclipse on the moon, a sight beyond compare. For us, we can only look upon the scene from the surface of the principal actor, 240,000 miles away, and with one small sight see the colors there.

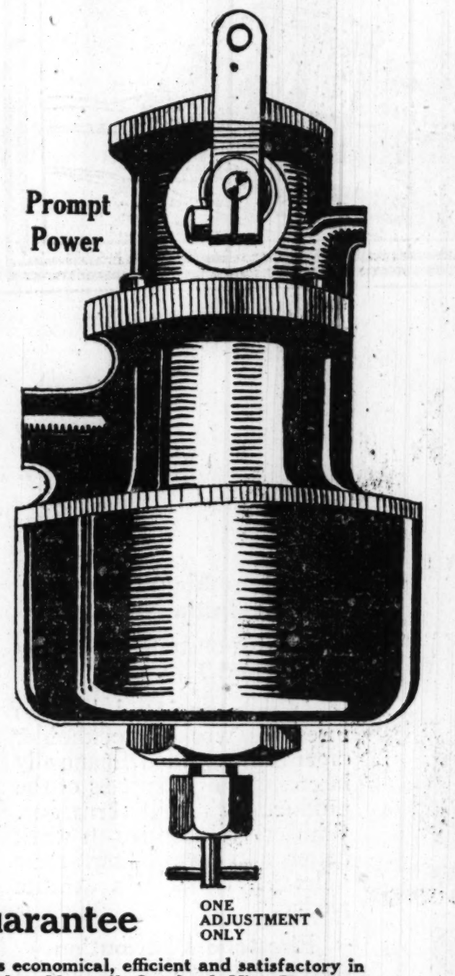
Put a U. & J. Carburetor

on your car and stop thinking about the high price of gasoline. The following is the substance of a news item which appeared in a recent issue of the Chicago Tribune:

"At the Petroleum Congress now in session, the statement was made that gasoline would probably go to 35c a gallon in the near future, as there is a shortage in production. In England gasoline is selling for $1.78 per gallon."

Many cars will be laid up, all will be used less, if gasoline advances to this price. The U. & J. Carburetor is guaranteed to double the mileage you are now getting, to start your car in zero weather without heating or priming. It makes a smoother running engine under all conditions with no "bucking" and "jerking" and gives more power and pep on hills and rough roads. Prompt power, quick get-away, rapid acceleration, flexibility, slow-as-a-walk driving without shifting gears.

Carburetor trouble is responsible for more trouble and expense than any other single motor trouble.



The U. & J. CARBURETOR eliminates all Carburetor Trouble

100,000 satisfied users since the U. & J. was placed on the market 3 years ago. All old principles of carburetion, which had not been changed in 10 years, were discarded. The U. & J. utilizes an entirely new principle. Simple, plain tube—fool-proof—no springs, jets, valves, etc., to get out of order. Other exclusive features which help give perfect carburetion and avoid waste of fuel and power.

15 Day Free Trial Money-Back Guarantee

Let us prove to you that the U. & J. Carburetor will do all we say, that it is economical, efficient and satisfactory in every way; that you cannot afford to be without it. Now ready for Ford, Dodge, Maxwell, Overland, Vim, Dort, and all 4 cylinder cars. Will be ready shortly for sixes. Installed in half an hour; only tools necessary are screw driver and monkey wrench. Furnished compete with all fittings. If there is no dealer near you, write for complete descriptive circular and positive proof of U. & J. superiority.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

THE Dort policy of merchandising advocates understatement rather than overstatement.

Dort distributors are urged by the factory to stick closely to conservative claims.

And with that policy we are in full accord when we state that the Dort car is the best value on the motor market today.

It is the plain truth.

The testimony of 60,000 Dort owners—thousands in Chicago territory—will go a long way toward verifying this.

But you may go as much farther as you like—clear through each unit and feature of the chassis.

The more you know about automotive engineering, the better it will please us, for the more the Dort will impress you.

Your conclusion must be that it is an exceptionally strong, simple, thrifty light weight car.

Compare point by point Dort design, materials and workmanship and you will be convinced that for the price—or considerably more—there is nothing in Chicago like it.

ART

Tapestry of France and Flanders at the Art Institute

By Louise James Bargelt.

SOME fascinating tapestries of France and Flanders, dating back to the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, are on exhibition at the Art institute. These tapestries occupy two of the large galleries, and several of them, including the "Ecce Homo" from the J. P. Morgan collection, are valued as high as half a million dollars.

Tapestries have for thousands of years been a favorite mode of telling a story. Since Helen of Troy, according to the Odyssey, first wove the story of her life into superb tapestries weavings of this kind have had their place in the different civilizations. It remained, however, for the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to produce the finest tapestries which we now know.

Those at the institute are magnificent in their strong decorative quality, in the fineness of their texture, and in the beauty of their coloring. They are pure Gothic traditional style and they are vastly impressive to any one interested in these lines of artistic endeavor.

Storied with the past, too, they are, adding to their fascination. Hundreds of thousands of men were employed on the looms which turned them out. It is said that as early as 1382 there were 50,000 workmen in the little town of Louvain, while Flanders, then under the Dukes of Burgundy, had more workmen employed on the looms than any but our greatest modern industries today.

All this by way of giving a brief conception of their beauty and magnitude, while by reading some of the stories of the old chroniclers we can visualize them and appreciate the part they played in the life of the period.

They were used on all important occasions, and were even taken on the battle fields to celebrate some great victory and decorate the tents of warriors like Charles the Bold. It has even been said that one of the strongest pieces of circumstantial evidence against Mary Queen of Scots was the fact that on the Friday before the murder she had replaced a good set by a second best set in the room in which Darnley was to be killed. For as wall coverings they went completely around the room and were loosely hung.

Their subject matter is varied. Like the illuminated manuscripts, church glass, and carved portals, they taught biblical history, wrought in contemporary incidents, and vivified the characters of ancient and mythical stories. There is "The Credo," dating from the middle of the fifteenth century and extraordinarily interesting in the fact that while the apostles' creed was a favorite subject, this is the only complete tapestry representing it.

A tapestry particularly gorgeous and unsurpassed as being wholly in tapestry style, is "Solomon and the Queen of Sheba." This has been given the richest possible treatment. There is a magnificent sweep in the robes, the high lights stand out in vigorous relief, and the pomegranate pattern is delightful.

One of the most exquisite of the tapestries is the "Annunciation." The colors are fresh and rich and the story is told with directness and extreme simplicity.

A more elaborate tapestry is the "Royal Betrothal" and is pure romance. The king is receiving the suitor with hand extended and the princess and the other members of the court are watching. The succeeding incidents are shown in groups melting into one another.

One charming floral weave is the "Mille Fleur" and is typical of the thousand flower design weaves which were often used to fill in the background of figured hangings, or frequently as a simple stuff for rooms, furniture, or coverings. As this one stands, it is a meadow a-flower seen in detail.

There are also in the exhibit many miscellaneous objects of needlework and of sculpture. One saint in armor stands life size, and holding in his left hand a miniature church. There is a handsome stained glass window, French, with five panels, and showing biblical scenes, and there is a processional cross of gold embroidered brocade, fifteenth century English Gothic.

This exhibit is one out of the great and fruitful period of the middle ages, and when this tapestry art was at its height. It is impossible to date the pieces with absolute accuracy, and many of the designers are unknown; but this in no way detracts from the intrinsic interest of the display.

It has been announced that C. E. Kremer, who is a member of the Art institute and a marine lawyer, will give an additional prize of $75 to be awarded at the thirty-second annual exhibition of water colors, pastels, and miniatures which will be held at the Art insititute from May 11 to June 10.

Exhibitions at the galleries:

Art institute—Chicago architectural exhibition. Paintings and drawings by Stephen Hawels. Paintings from Saugatuck summer school. Etchings and lithographs by Joseph Pennell. Model of Grant park stadium.

Abbott's—Water colors and prints.

If We Couldn't Tell a Lie

LONESOME GOETHE

By Guy F. Lee.

As I motor past the master standing up in Lincoln park
In the same unchanging posture day and night,
I figure there's a certain stage in fame that is no lark;
Enduring bronze must be a holy fright;
I don't object to glory; I hanker for renown,
But monuments are so devoid of glee!
They last, of course—but still I hope the people of my town
Never make a statue out of me.

It wouldn't be so bad in spring and summer when the flowers
Are blooming all about and birds are singing;
I'd like to bathe in sunshine, and feel the gentle showers,
And hear the shouts of children round me ringing.
But Goethe's got an awful job when trees and grass are sere,
And snow and sleet write Winter's stern decree;
And so I trust, my loyal friends, when I'm no longer here
Never make a statue out of me.

Leaping the gap to right and left, sparks hiss from the one inch firing surface in Fyrac, and fall upon another inch of stout wire, made to live long.

This inch of jumping fire instantly explodes every particle of gasoline, so that the car is controlled easily, and gasoline-formed carbon is impossible.

Because the sparks that flash from the one inch firing surface do not fall upon a one-point wire, but blaze evenly upon an inch of surpassingly durable wire, every point of this wire need withstand only a tiny fraction of the shock that shrivels the solitary point in the ordinary plug.

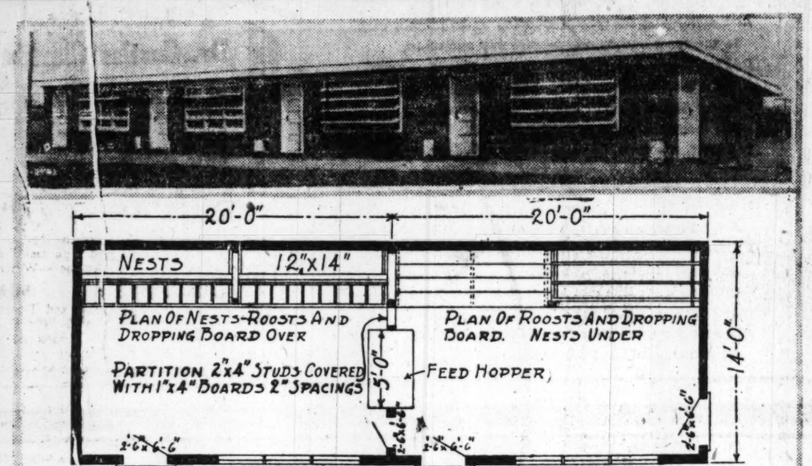
Well Housed Hens Make Best Layers When Price Is Up

By Frank Ridgway.

"A GOOD poultry house carefully planned and built is half the battle in making money out of chickens," said a suburbanite the other day, after comparing the profits made from his flock during the last two years. "I realize," he explained, "that I was paid more for my eggs this winter than last year, but my hens laid throughout the cold months this season. The principal difference is that last year more than half of my hens roosted in trees and others in an old shed, while this winter they have been kept comfortable in a house that I built last summer. It cost me less to feed them, too. I can count a dozen neighbors who still allow their chickens to roost in the open most of the year."

This man's experience is typical of many others. He has found out how to make chickens pay and is doubling the size of his flock this spring and expects to add another section to his poultry house this summer.

Improperly housed flocks are common in many sections of the country, but more interest is being taken in poultry and consequently more attention is being given to the housing, breeding, and feeding of the flock. A few weeks ago a poultry specialist engaged in research and extension work for an agricultural college found out some interesting facts while touring one of the middle west states. His examination of numerous flocks of chickens brought out the startling fact that fully 30 per cent of the fowls kept for egg production were culls; that is, they were not worth the feed and care given them. Another discouraging feature was that the poultry keepers, while they were aware that a large percentage of their hens were nonlayers, did not know for a certainty which hens were in the inefficient class. They had never kept tab on what hens did lay and whether or not they laid regularly, so how could they be expected to weed out the nonproducers and keep the good ones?



COURTESY FARM MECHANICS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

Shed roof poultry house, designed to furnish plenty of light, ventilation, and dryness, for health, comfort, and productiveness of suburban flock. It has been tested and found economically efficient for use in both winter and summer. Windows are on pivoted hinges and overlap to shut out rain and snow, but indirectly admit fresh air for hens. Floor plan shows roost above nest, allowing room for exercising and feeding of birds indoors during bad weather.

Housing at Fault.

Oddly enough, nearly all of these hens examined were found to be of the egg laying type. Most of them were young, properly and sufficiently fed, but the housing was greatly at fault. Here was the principal trouble. The owners had in most cases good buildings for all of their horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs, but the chickens had been neglected. They admitted that something was wrong, but dismissed the whole matter by saying it was February, and no one could expect eggs in February or any of the cold months!

Of course, every successful poultry keeper strives to have eggs in December, January, and February, as well as in April and May. He does not allow his hens to roam at large and roost on fences and in tree tops at night, and be exposed to chilly winds. Range is necessary and should be given wherever possible, but making them shift entirely for themselves is a poor practice. On the other hand, the careful poultryman does not shut his chickens up at night in an airtight house, where air cannot be supplied the birds and where air soon becomes poisoned. It may cost him a little more to have eggs in the off season, during the cold months, but the increased price at such times soon pays for the extra cost and leaves a nice profit for his time as well.

Early hatched, healthy pullets will lay about as many eggs in the months of January and February as they will

Put Your Gears Under a Microscope

They'll look rough as stubble fields. Dixon's works into those little irregularities and makes a smooth, slippery surface that postively prohibits friction, wear, and noise.

DIXON'S Gear LUBRICANT

You can't beat Dixon's 677 for transmission and differential. That goes also for Dixon's Cup Grease and other lubricants. All come in convenient red cans.

Dixon's can't "squeeze out", no matter what the pressure. That's one reason it's so much better than plain grease or oil.

And it's not affected by weather extremes. It gives the same perfect results when the mercury's at either end of the thermometer. You know what a big advantage that is!

The car that's lubricated with Dixon's has everything in its favor. It is smoother and quieter in operation, develops greater power and gives more miles per gallon of gas.

Do you think you can afford to do without Dixon's? Your dealer has it.

Even a few moments are enough to reveal those practical advantages that make the Oakland a favorite with persons seeking true automobile worth.

No other automobile in the market offers a like measure of value, in performance, reliability and low upkeep cost.

The models we are now showing preserve Oakland's traditional high power and complete economy, in combination with a heavier chassis of longer wheelbase.

Still scientifically light in total weight, but endowed with increased strength and serviceability, they offer maximum utility at minimum expense.

A "Dead Engine" in the Warehouse District. Many a truck owner is surprised when he learns that 88.4 per cent. of all "accidents" to the average truck can be predicted from its specifications and the parts from which it is assembled

Has the American Business Man Time to Save Money

GENERAL SAM HOUSTON built an empire in the Southwest, simply by doing the next thing every day as it came along.

Reconstruction will probably have to be managed pretty much the same way—producing with one hand and saving with the other, day after day.

The Packard people do not pretend to authority on any subject except transportation. But they can show the American business man records of savings in trucking costs—10 per cent. in gasoline, 18 to 22 per cent. in time, up to 30 per cent. in ton-mile cost.

They can show him, too, how to apply the same methods to his own business.

PACKARD has done away with excess costs in gasoline, not only through the remarkable ability of the Packard Truck Engine, but especially by means of the Packard carbureter.

Here is a carbureter built especially to stand the vibration of a truck at work. The float feed positive and precise. The carbureter water jacketed and mounted high up on the cylinder bloc; so that the gas is warmed by the motor, and fed to the engine ready to flash into power.

Packard does away with excess friction and oil wastage, by the precise and positive alignment of parts from end to end of transmission.

It saves oil again by the close fitting of pistons and rings—and by preventing loss of oil through drip.

It saves tires by distribution of load, by the positive and uniform action of the clutch—in fact, by the engineering design of the whole Packard rear end.

Dynamometer tests on Packard Trucks show that the Packard delivers 86 per cent. of Engine-power to the rear wheels on low gear, and 94 per cent. on high.

YOU often hear it said that Americans are too busy making money to save it.

Yet business men who keep accurate cost figures on Packard, as compared with the average truck, standardize on Packard.

FARM AND GARDEN

In April and May, if they are housed properly and given the right kind of feed.

Good Type of Poultry House.

In the accompanying illustration is shown a type of poultry house that is steadily gaining in favor. It is known as the shedroof, open face house, and is a design that has been put to practical tests at many experiment stations.

The house shown, while simple in every way, embodies the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It provides the fowls with adequate protection from bad weather, including both excessive cold and heat, as well as stormy weather, where there are cold winds, rain, and snow. The floor plan shows the position of the roosts above the nests. The nests are raised above the flooring, allowing the birds ample space for exercise, scratching, and feeding, which are important advantages in bad weather.

In designing the house the main consideration was to avoid conditions which would be detrimental to the health, comfort, and productiveness of the hens. Provisions were made for plenty of light, ventilation, and dryness. There are no cracks and crevices to harbor parasites and disease germs, for these pests are often the stumbling block which make the difference between success and failure in the poultry business.

Airy and Sunny.

One of the desirable features of the house is the arrangement of the windows, which face the south. These open on pivoted hinges so that they overlap and effectively shut out rain or snow, but at the same time permit an indirect entrance of an abundance of fresh air. To provide additional ventilation and to keep the house cool in the summer the lookouts at the rear of the building are boxed in with small hinged doors. These are kept tightly closed during other seasons to prevent cold drafts of air.

This does not mean that fowls should be kept in closely when the cold season starts. The front windows should never be closed entirely, or excessive dampness will result. Keep the front windows wide open in mild weather, but avoid drafts.

There is a great difference between well ventilated or open front houses and permitting the chickens to roost wherever they find a place. Roosting out of doors in some out of the way corner in the summer may do no harm; in fact, it may even do good. But serious harm often results if birds are allowed to roost outdoors when chilly days set in. The difference between outdoor and indoor roosting in the winter is about the same as the difference between comfort and discomfort. This usually means the difference between layers and nonlayers, for hens will not produce eggs if they are not comfortable and properly cared for when it is cold. Proper shelter in winter prevents loss of heat from the body and stores up fat and energy.

The shedroof house illustrated has walls of hollow tile, with a flooring of cement, but clay, if properly put in, may be used. The walls may be made of wood, of course, but the tile has many advantages. The detail plans call for two pens, 20x14 feet each. One such pen may be built or increased to four or five to accommodate from 75 to 500 birds. In other words, you may build one pen and add new compartments as the size of the flock increases. Allow at least three square feet of floor space for each hen. When hens are in confinement they must have a scratching place.

Chicago to Duluth

Via Mackinac Island, The "Soo", Saint Mary's River, Georgian Bay (30,000 Islands) and Return

Think of the pleasure on a warm, sultry day of leaving the din and dust of the city behind you and gliding out into the cool, refreshing waters of Lake Michigan for a week's cruise through four great lakes—a trip of over 2,000 miles of beautiful scenery, shore line, islands, rivers and bays—care-free, you will give yourself up to a spell of enjoyment—you will eat well and sleep well, and after a too quickly ending week you will return home thoroughly refreshed and invigorated. Either of these most desirable trips will suit your tastes or you can combine them into a longer or 12 days' cruise. If you enjoy seeing places of interest, the numerous stops and short cruising distance from the shore, during the greater part of the trip, offer sights of wonder and beauty that are sure to please you. You can be quiet and excluded, if desired, or if you enjoy a real good time there is the continual round of deck games, cards, etc., during the day, and dancing, musicales and other entertainments in the evening. If you want to go fishing or take a tramp in the woods, stop-over privileges at a number of points will enable you to do so. For the children there is the open-air playgrounds and deck games with attendant in charge to relieve the parents of their care. Combined with all these pleasures, you will have conveniences and and comforts on these magnificent steamers equal to those on the best Atlantic Liners. The dining service and food is equal to that of the best hotels. All staterooms and parlor rooms are outside rooms and have windows or ports to insure perfect ventilation. Have running water, call bells and electric light—beds have the finest mattresses and springs; extra long and extra large—bath and toilet in connection with parlor rooms and close by all staterooms. CHANDLER SIX

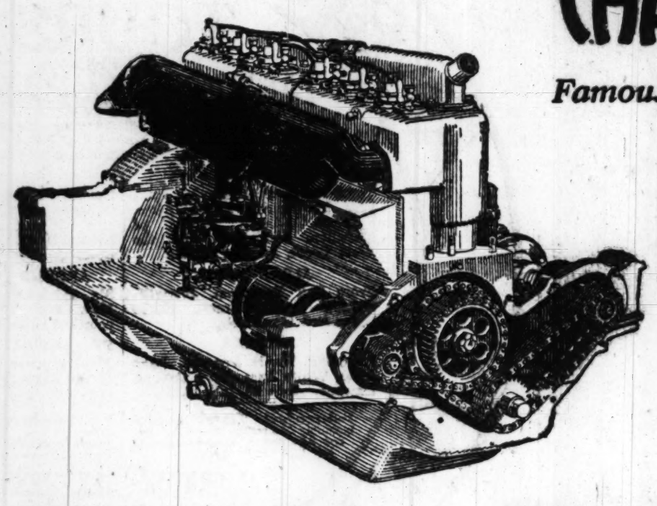
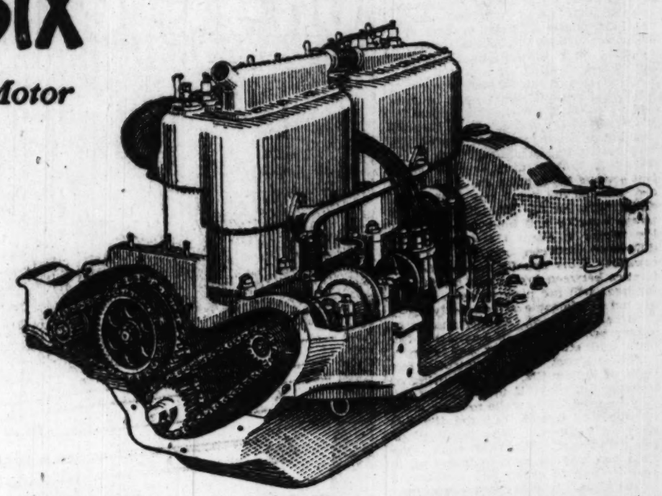
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor





See How Chandler Checks With High-Priced Cars

THE Chandler Six throughout its seven years of production has been distinguished for its many distinctively superior features of design and equipment which are used also on the highest priced American cars, and not used in any considerable degree by cars now priced hundreds of dollars higher than the Chandler. See, then, how the Chandler checks with ten of the best-known high-priced cars in these features selected as being characteristic of high-grade design and most efficient service.

Superior Chandler Features and the High-Priced Cars that use Them

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 1 — One Piece Aluminum Motor Base, which ties the frame of the car together at four points, thus providing a stiffer frame as well as a more rigid motor mounting.
Also used by Packard, Locomobile (Bronze), Mercer, Winton, Brewster, Fiat, Stutz, Pierce-Arrow.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 2 — Silent Chain Drive for Motor Shafts.
Also used by Winton, Packard, Cadillac, Brewster, Mercer, Fiat.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 3 — Torque arm or Tube.
Also used by Pierce-Arrow, Locomobile, Winton, Cadillac, Packard, Brewster, Stutz.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 4 — Annular Ball-bearing Transmission.
Also used by Winton, Pierce-Arrow, Brewster, Stutz, Locomobile, Cadillac, Fiat, Packard, Marmon.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 5 — Annular Ball-bearing Differential.
Also used by Marmon, Pierce-Arrow, Brewster, Fiat, Packard, Locomobile, Stutz.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 6 — Annular Ball-bearing Rear Wheels.
Also used by Packard, Locomobile, Fiat, Marmon, Stutz, Mercer, Pierce-Arrow.

CHANDLER SIX Feature No. 7 — High Tension Magneto Ignition.
Also used by Locomobile, Mercer, Brewster, Winton, Fiat.

THEN, see how these seven cars—sixes which may be considered competitive to the Chandler—do NOT check

One car, listing at $2975, checks with Chandler in only one feature
One car, listing at $2685, checks with Chandler in only three features
One car, listing at $2400, checks with Chandler in only one feature
One car, listing at $2195, checks with Chandler in only two features
One car, listing at $2045, checks with Chandler in only two features
One car, listing at $1945, checks with Chandler in only one feature
One car, listing at $2250, does not check with Chandler in any feature

Not a single one of the seven makes of medium-priced Sixes referred to offers you High Tension Magneto Ignition. The Chandler offers you Bosch, recognized the world over as the best ignition system. Only one of them offers you the silent chain drive, although another one of them in its higher-priced model ($3450), incorporates this feature.

These Statements are Facts and they Give You a Few of the Reasons for Chandler Leadership

The specification data quoted is substantiated, in every instance, by the manufacturers of the cars referred to.

WESTERN UNION EMPLOYMENT.
YOUNG WOMEN, 16 TO 25, who are earnestly seeking a steady position offering a good future, will find Western Union employment particularly attractive because:

1. It teaches a permanent profession which practically assures profitable employment in any city throughout the country at any time in the future.

2. It affords rapid advancement for persons of ability. Salaries of $1,500 to $1,700 and more are reached within a comparatively short time.

3. It pays $65 per month during a short training period in our well equipped departmental schools.

4. It pays $75 per month as soon as training is completed, with rapid advancement thereafter on merit.

5. It is exceptionally interesting work. A large telegraph office is a live place, constituting, as it does, the pulse of the business life of our country.

Positions now available include automatic telegraph operating, telephone-telegraph operating, branch office telephoning, filing and bookkeeping traffic clerks.

Call at our employment department,
ROOM 305, 111 W. JACKSON BLVD.
THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.

EXCEPTIONAL
WORKING OPPORTUNITIES.
We have one of the most attractive working opportunities in Chicago to offer young women between the ages of 20 and 25.

The work is not difficult. We give you plenty of time to learn our business. You can make at the start $17 a week and very shortly you can make as much as $22 if you improve in your effort.

Applicants must write a good plain hand, speak clearly and impressively, hear well over the telephone, be neat in appearance, come from good family. Native aggressiveness to accomplish results is a desirable qualification.

In your application give details of age, schooling, address, and phone number. Address J. 248, Tribune.

WOMEN—YOUNG.
Do you know that a very short training in our well equipped schools will place you in a permanent position where ability will enable you to secure positions paying from $125 to $150 per month?

Salary $65 per month during training and $75 upon graduation; rapid advancement.

A pleasant, instructive and interesting vocation.

Call Wabash 4321, Local 139, or come in and talk it over.

REAL ESTATE—SUB'N—WEST.

NEVER MIND THE H. C. L.!—
CONSIDER NOW THE H.C.R.
(i. e.—The High Cost of Renting).
You may not realize it, but the BIG QUES-TION today before the family man, the workingman, or the man with moderate means, is not, strictly speaking, the High Cost of Living, but the High Cost of Renting. Therefore the first step should be to tackle the H. C. R.—and knock him out. It can be done, in short order, with the right efforts in the right direction. The right direction is a plot near enough to the main business districts and transportation to partake of the needs thereof, but at the same time far enough away from the hustle and bustle to have the freedom of a home of your own.
And here's another important consideration:
In such a place you can soon deal old H.
C. L. a knockout blow, with the raising of a garden, chickens, etc. THINK IT OVER,
Mr. Rent Payer. Then consider this:
have secured a plot for subdivision purposes 34 minutes from the Loop, in one of the most desirable and adjacent to the city.
You can buy right now at the rate of 10 per cent per acre, on terms of 10 per cent cash and $10 a month, and, moreover, I will arrange so that you can pay for your lot as you have been paying for rent. It will not cost you anything for me to investigate this proposition.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

$25,000,000,000

DO YOU KNOW that the farmers of the United States received twenty-five billion for their crops last year? What other group of people can boast of as large an income for one year?

PRICES OF FARM PRODUCTS will not be reduced as long as people continue to crowd into the large cities. Prices cannot be lowered when there is more food needed than there is a supply produced. Next winter may see even higher prices than those of the past winter. The man who is looking ahead is planning on getting a farm home now.

YOU CAN TAKE ADVANTAGE of this situation if you will. You can have your pick of the best hardwood land in Michigan—no swamps or stones. These lands are close to the large markets. Nearly all crops raised in the Central States are grown successfully. While stock, sheep, poultry raising, and dairy farming also pay well, good roads to nearby railroads, markets, schools, churches, etc.

ON OUR EASY TERMS these lands are within your reach. Only a small down payment, balance monthly or yearly. Liberal discount for all cash. WARRANTY DEED and ABSTRACT OF TITLE furnished with every purchase. Our Free Insurance Feature protects your family.

FARM BUYERS GET

for building material when buying land under our credit system. $500 worth on a $500 payment; and more in proportion to the amount you pay down. In addition to credit for building material, we allow you to use all your crop returns for living expenses and further improvements while developing your land. In other words, we do not require any payments on principal and interest for 5 years.

We also sell on monthly and yearly payments, with benefits credit system when $500 is paid.

OUR LANDS
are located in Forest and Oconto Counties, Wisconsin, only a short ride from Minneapolis and St. Paul, the great milling center of the nation; Duluth and Superior, the world's largest iron ore shipping points; Milwaukee and other Lake Michigan ports, each a manufacturing city with outlet to Eastern markets; Chicago, the most important packing center of the country, and within the state lie many cities near by, such as Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Fond du Lac, and Oshkosh. Furnishing further markets.

SOIL.
Our soil is a Kennan loam. It has sufficient clay and sand to hold moisture and prevent seepage; will not bake or crack. It will stand the test in chemical analysis if you want to send a sample to the State Department of Agriculture, Madison, Wis. It will stand heavy cropping of wheat, oats, barley, clover, timothy, root crops, etc. Stony land is sold as grazing land. Nonproductive sand and swamp not offered for sale.

LAND INFORMATION.

NEW SOUTH WALES HAS ENORMOUS CApacity for food production. The vast acreage profitably becoming available for raising is rapidly becoming the factory in the world for producing power of this food. New South Wales has an area of 310,700 square miles, or as much territory as the combined area of the New England states plus New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and a portion of Illinois. The climate is similar to that of southern France, southern California or Italy. Everything that can be raised in a temperate or tropical climate will grow abundantly in New South Wales. In the northern part of the state bananas, coffee, sugar cane and pineapples grow side by side with potatoes, cereals, tobacco, onions, grapes and cool climate fruits. The products ranging from cotton to silk, olives, corn, barley and wheat, to rice, sugar cane and tea. Great West in America and the Argentine is not to be classed as a "new country" and "the last great West" is already about 6,000,000 acres of its lands are under crops. Forty million bushels of wheat are produced annually, and the wheat acreage is increasing by leaps and bounds. The country is largely devoted to pastoral purposes and wool is "king." [Auspices Chicago Automobile Trade Assn.]

COLISEUM

April 23th to May 5th.

Visit Harris & Rodgers Display

As the largest dealers in high grade used cars in America we have endeavored to put on display cars representative of our stock of over half a million dollars.

In connection with the Chicago Automobile Trade association show at the Coliseum we will also hold an exhibit in our own salesroom.

Within a Stone's Throw of the Coliseum

Every car has been marked especially low for the week commencing April 28 and if you intend owning a car this season and desire to buy to the best advantage this is your opportunity.

In our stock you will find Pierce-Arrows, Packards, Locomobiles, Mercers, Stutz, Cadillacs, Buicks, Coles, Marmons, Nationals, Daniels, Appersons, Chandlers, Willys-Knights, Paiges, Dodges, Chevrolets, and Overlands, 4 passenger sports, 5 and 7 passenger tourings, coupes, sedans and limousines.

Remember that a standard new car guarantee accompanies every car purchased from us and that our cars are perfectly conditioned mechanically and present the appearance of new before being offered for sale.

3rd BIG DAY AT Joseph G. Glaser's USED CAR SHOW

Our used car show is meeting with great success. Have you been here yet? You must not miss it. We have the greatest bargains ever offered in Chicago.

There's a Reason Why.

GLASER BARGAINS are ALWAYS BEST.

Do not purchase a used car until you have ridden in it.

We cheerfully give demonstrations. Compare our prices with the prices asked at the Coliseum.

Our used cars are in absolutely perfect condition, each and every one of them having been very rigidly inspected as to parts, motors, etc., in our shop, which is the largest of its kind in town.

We have on exhibit at our show every make of car represented in the Coliseum and others, and charge no admission.

Below are listed a few of the many cars we are showing:

Apperson, Buick, Chevrolet, Chandler, Dodge, Elgin, Ford, Hudson, Jordan, Kissel, King, Lexington, Mitchell, Maxwell, Marmon, Packard, Reo, Roamer, Stutz, Studebaker, Stearns Knight, Westcott and Willys-Knight.

Every Used Car sold with a Definite Guarantee.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CLOSEUP IN OUR LABOR FILM HAS WARNING FOR US

Little Headway Made in Housing Shortage.

BY AL CHASE.

Announcement during the week that all work on one of Chicago's largest office building projects had been temporarily halted because of uncertainty of cost caused by contractors refusing to make bids except on a cost plus basis and the steadily rising prices of labor and materials brings this situation on the building screen as a "closeup" that makes one take notice.

So, while the serial tragedy, "Shove 'Em Higher," is being shown indefinitely, an insert might be flashed on which contains some conservative and authentic comment on conditions. It's by Horace H. Herr, editor of the American Contractor, a Chicagoan who's in close touch with building conditions.

Rosy Forecast Discounted.

"A tightening money market and the suspension of many construction projects on which contracts have been awarded," he says, "discount somewhat the roseate forecast on this year's building activities, which hitherto have been justified on authoritative statistics dealing with contracts awarded and building permits issued.

"The evidence now is quite convincing; while many contracts are being let, in many instances work under the contract is held in suspense. In some instances the suspension is due to the builder's inability to borrow money and in others the delay is clearly the result of mounting prices for both material and labor.

"In only a few districts has the curtailment of construction work had an appreciable effect on the labor market, and in none is it reflected in material prices. The competition for building trade labor and building materials, with the hurtful incident of bonus wages and bonus material prices, continues in Chicago, New York City, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

Labor Competition Weakening.

In the northwest sections adjacent to St. Paul and Minneapolis, where reliable authorities estimate that from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 worth of construction work now is held in abeyance, there are indications that the competition for labor is weakening.

"Effective today in the chief branches of building trades labor in Chicago, a wage scale of $1.25 an hour prevails. At the same time Chicago bankers admit that they are slowing down on building loans, giving as their reason the abundance of 7 per cent investments in other fields, while the building field offers but 5 or 6 per cent.

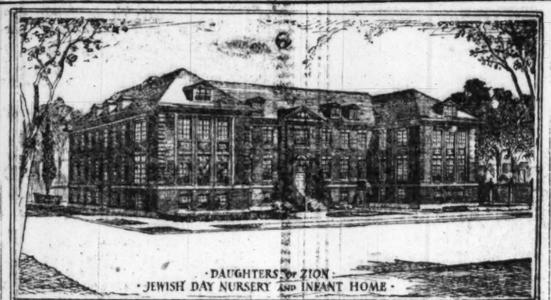
Warns of Housing Famine.

"The obvious conclusion, and it is substantiated by investigation of the building projects actually under way, is that we are making no appreciable headway against the housing shortage. Unless, and immediately, there is more abundant capital available for building and marked recessions in the cost of construction, it cannot be otherwise than that the housing shortage will be a housing famine by next fall and the skyward flight of rents will continue uninterrupted even in the face of hostile legislation.

"In the face of these unfavorable conditions the contracts actually awarded from day to day, in money value, show exceptionally high totals. While the statistics reported by the F. W. Dodge company show residential building as leading all others in the valuation of contracts awarded, field reports show that residential builders are the very ones who are hesitating to start actual work."

Author of "End of Perfect Day" Sells Her Apartment

Carrie Jacobs Bond, composer of "End of a Perfect Day," "Just a Weary'in' for You," and several other songs, and who now lives in California, has sold the three apartment building at the southwest corner of Jeffery avenue and East Sixty-ninth street, lot 50x134, and the vacant 50x134 adjoining, to Guy S. Burtis, president of the James A. Brady Foundry company, for a reported $55,000, subject to an incumbrance.



TWO good sized Jewish organization building projects in the northwest side are shown in the above pictures. The larger, both in ground area and cost, is the day nursery and infant home to be erected by the Daughters of Zion at the northeast corner of Hirsch boulevard and North California avenue, at a cost of $250,000, from plans by Ludvin & Levitan, in the English colonial style of architecture. It will care for a total of 400 youngsters. The building will be 100x150. A special drive for $100,000 is now under way.

A building fund campaign also is now on for the $110,000 synagogue to be built by the Logan Square Congregation Shaare Zedek on Fullerton avenue, just east of Kedzie boulevard, mentioned in this department recently. Alexander H. Spitz and Aroner & Bacon, associate architects, have drawn plans which include a social center with a capacity of 1,000 on the first floor, with Sunday school rooms, library, gymnasium, kitchen and dining room, and rabbi's study. The synagogue will seat 1,200.

Cleanup of South State Street Keeps Right On

Slowly but surely the cleaning up of State street south of Van Buren street, undertaken by the South State Street Improvement association, goes on. A poolroom which has occupied the store at 426-428 for fifteen years falls under the association's classification of "undesirable lines of business," and is to make way for new tenants. John B. Knight & Co. have leased the entire three-story 20x100 building through E. F. Keebler & Co. to Herman Zalkin for ten years from May 1 at a term rental of $80,000. The lessee will remodel the entire building and occupy the store as a jewelry shop.

Broadway's Motor Row to Get $200,000 Building

The Triple S. Motor Car company has bought from Mathias L. Thiel 100x235 in Broadway, west front, 248 feet north of Argyle street, for an indicated $36,000, and plans erecting a three story service and garage building to cost approximately $200,000. It is claimed it will be one of the largest garage and service stations in the city, having fourteen separate departments for repairing and overhauling cars. There will also be a salesroom and taxi service. Cline & Dix were brokers.

$260,000 Warehouse to Be Built for Kodak Co.

Taprell, Loomis & Co., manufacturers of photographic supplies, and controlled by the Eastman Kodak company, are to build a seven story warehouse, 177x100, at 1719 Indiana avenue, adjoining their building at 1727 Indiana avenue, to be ready about Nov. 1, to be used mostly by the Eastman company. It will cost approximately $260,000.

Book of Valuations Now Ready.

The book of valuations of the central business district, containing much valuable information relating to all the property between Roosevelt road, Chicago avenue, Halsted street, and the lake, has just been published by the Chicago Real Estate Index company. The maps show the size of each ownership with the latest board of review valuations of land and improvement separately, with description of buildings.

Splitdorf Company Plans 4 Story Motor Row Home

Motor row is to have another good sized building. The Splitdorf Electrical company has started work on a four story structure, 40x178, at the southwest corner of South Michigan avenue and Twenty-ninth street, to cost around $240,000. The first floor will have display rooms and service department; the second offices, and the two upper will be for manufacturing. C. C. Mitchell & Co. have underwritten a $150,000 five year 6 per cent bond issue on the property.

Chicago Toy Works Sell Plant to Music School

The Chicago Toy works have sold their three story plant, 50x131, at 1813-19 Orchard street to H. H. Slingerland, through John B. De Voney & Co., for a reported cash price of $62,000. It will be occupied by the Slingerland Correspondence School of Music, Inc. The toy company will lease a new plant with about twice the present floor space.

FINAL PAPERS SIGNED IN BIG LOOP BANK DEAL

Over $8,000,000 Involved in Transaction.

Final papers were signed yesterday in one of Chicago's largest real estate deals, involving over $8,000,000, by which the Fort Dearborn and Corn Exchange National Bank buildings change hands.

A new feature of the transaction is the probability that the First Trust and Savings bank will occupy the entire banking space now used by the Fort Dearborn when the latter moves. This will give the First National interests the entire Monroe street frontage from Dearborn to Clark.

The Fort Dearborn National closed the purchase of the Corn Exchange Bank building and the leasehold interest of the bank in the two fees thereunder for a price of $3,000,000. The building is 75x188 feet and seventeen stories. The corner fee, 128x75 feet, is under lease from A. S. Trude for ninety-nine years, ending Dec. 31, 2004, at $30,000 annually, and the north 60x75 feet from the estate of Mary K. Otis for a term of years ending Dec. 31, 2004, at $19,000 annually.

Corn Exchange to Move.

Upon the completion of the new building for the three banks merging as the Illinois Merchants Trust company, the Corn Exchange National will move from the Corn Exchange Bank building and the Fort Dearborn National and the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings will take possession of their new quarters in the Corn Exchange Bank building, the name of which will then be changed to the "Fort Dearborn Bank building." Control of the building, however, passes as of May 1, 1920, and the Fort Dearborn National will operate the building from that date.

At the same time the estate of Edward Tilden, through the Fort Dearborn Safe Deposit company, which it owns, has disposed of the Fort Dearborn Bank building and the fee thereunder, 90x125 feet, at the northeast corner of Monroe and Clark, which was acquired by the late Edward Tilden in 1911. This property, including the Tilden estate's leasehold interest in the forty-eight and ten-twelfths feet immediately north thereof, has been leased for a period of five years to the First Trust and Savings bank at an annual net rental of $350,000, the First Trust having an option to purchase the property at the expiration of the five year period for $3,250,000.

No Brokers in Deal.

There were no brokers interested in either the First Trust lease or the Corn Exchange purchase, the matter being handled exclusively by the principals and their attorneys, Charles Aaron of the firm of Henry J. & Charles Aaron representing the Tilden estate and the Fort Dearborn in both deals. The First Trust was represented by Edward Eagle Brown, its general counsel, and the Corn Exchange by Gardner, Foote, Burns, and Morrow.

TO OPEN LOOP COFFEE SHOP.

Louis Deutch, restaurateur, has leased from the Martha Hill estate, through Wills & Frankenstein, the store at 114 North Dearborn street, formerly a saloon, for five years, at an aggregate rental of $60,000. He will operate it as a pastry and coffee shop on the order of the St. Regis coffee shops of New York City.

Food and Jazz Palace for Our North Side Toters and Trotters

Fox trotting and tray toting are to be the pastimes at the newest north side architectural combination of terpsichorean and epicurean pleasures. Work has just started on a $100,000 building on the west side of Sheridan road, just south of Argyle, to house the Butterfly cafeteria and the Cascades dance hall. It was designed by Percy T. Johnstone, architect, who is also the owner.

Don't understand from the above sentence that you'll eat to jazz or have to dodge tray carriers as you one step. The eating establishment will be on the first floor and will contain space for 1,000 hungry souls. Upstairs the same number will be accommodated on a dance floor which will be embellished with cascades and three electric fountains copied after those of the Biltmore in Manhattan.

The building, which will be ready about July 1, will be 61x143. The lot is 101x143. Mr. Johnstone has made a $100,000 loan, seven years, 6 per cent, on the property, with the Greenebaum Sons' Bank and Trust company. He has leased the cafeteria for ten years at a reported $18,000 a year.

THE FAIR AND BOSTON STORE TO INCREASE SPACE AND REMODEL

On Feb. 22 this department printed a half column exclusive story about the Fair buying the American Express company's 90x190 property at 23-29 West Monroe street, for $1,400,000 as the site for a skyscraper annex to its store. The transfer was filed for record last week. H. George Miller was the broker.

At the same time there was filed for record a mortgage of $900,000 given back by The Fair as part purchase money. A trust deed was given the Chicago Title & Trust Co., secured by the old express company property, for four years at 5 per cent. It is understood the balance was paid the American Express in cash.

The Fair now announces its intention of adding 46,873 square feet of floor space to the store's total of 800,000 by installing a sub-basement under the present building. If the Monroe street annex is made sixteen stories and two basements, as tentatively decided on, it will add 273,600 square feet more to the store's total. Mundie & Jensen will be the architects.

The Boston Store also plans considerable improvements. Holabird & Roche have made plans for $150,000 of alterations which will include the remodeling of the State and Dearborn entrances, new elevators and changing three banks of lifts into escalators.

HAY SUPPLIES LIGHT

Hay receipts yesterday were 19 cars timothy and 2 cars Nebraska prairie. The movement from the country is irregular because of the tied up condition of the railroads. Demand for local and outside trade is good. No. 1 timothy is $41.00@42.00. No. 2 timothy and No. 1 clover mixed, $36.00@39.00. No. 3 timothy and sample hay, $33.00@36.00; alfalfa, $28.00@36.00; Kansas and Nebraska, $28.00@32.00; Iowa and Dakota, $25.00@30.00; Illinois, $24.00@29.00; packing, $15.00@20.00; rye and oat straw, $16.00@19.00; wheat straw, $14.00@15.00 per ton.

Shippers Ask Further Cut on Proposed Freight Rates

Requests that lower freight rates proposed by the interstate commerce commission be reduced even more were made by representatives of shippers' associations at a hearing yesterday before Chairman James H. Wilkerson of the public utilities commission.

At present the rate on a first class shipment from Chicago to Des Moines is seventy-five cents a hundred pounds. The commission recommended 69 cents and the shippers ask a 67 cent rate. On fourth class merchandise the present rate is 34 cents. The commission recommended an increase of half a cent and the shippers asked a reduction to 33½ cents.

"High Yield" Has New Meaning.

Some investors are doubtful about taking the bargains now offered because of the ancient and respected rule that a high yield is an indication of some hidden flaw in the security.

The rule is just as good now as ever, but the term "high yield" has acquired a different meaning. A few years ago anything yielding over 6½ per cent was open to suspicion and anything over 6 was hardly to be mentioned in connection with investments. Now, with the "safest security in the world" yielding 6 per cent for short term notes and 5⅝ for long term bonds, other securities are adjusted to the same scale. High grade bonds yield up to 7 per cent and good short term notes still more.

There is no more reason now for looking askance at a bond yielding 6½ per cent than there was a few years ago for shying at 5½. Either bond might be unsound, but there is nothing in the yield to arouse suspicion.

The present meaning of "high yield" is likely to be in effect for only a limited time, and everybody should take advantage of it while he can. Extra care is needed now in selecting investments because the change of long established standards causes confusion and opens the way for errors of judgment. The only point here emphasized is that what was called a "high yield" a few years ago is not incompatible with safety now.

Southwestern Bell Telephone.

F. J.—The Southwestern Bell Telephone company of Missouri is absorbing companies in Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. The combined company will have $60,000,000 of stock, all owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph company and $1,251,400 of underlying bonds. It is issuing $25,000,000 of five year 7 per cent convertible notes to retire floating debt and finance new construction. Average earnings for the last five years have been over twice the new interest charges. The notes are well secured.

Brief Answers.

J. R. P.—The American Steel Foundries company earned 22½ per cent on its $17,184,000 of common stock in 1919. There is $8,481,300 of preferred stock, issued last summer. It is in a strong position. The common will fluctuate in market value as earnings vary.

C. P., Keokuk, Ia.—The American Smelting and Refining company earned the interest on its first mortgage bonds more than four times last year, although earnings were poor. The bonds are well secured. The only unfavorable point is that many more bonds may be issued.

F. E. G.—The Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s of 1933 are secured under the general and refunding mortgage. That is the junior mortgage of a road which is rather heavily loaded with debt.

CHICAGO CURB STOCKS

Local curb stocks reflected the weakness in the listed markets, several issues declining to new recent low levels, although the volume of trade was comparatively small. Butler Brothers sold down 2½ points to 47½, closing at 47 bid, offered at 48. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was offered freely at 235, with few buyers. Harris Brothers common was inactive at 65 to 72. Lindenman Steel improved to 24⅞, closing at 23 to 25. Fyle National was wanted at 217, with stock offered at 226. Wahl preferred was steady at 85 to 87½. United States Gypsum closed at 66 bid, offered at 68; By-Products Coke 100 to 105 and McCord Manufacturing common, which has recently been quite active, was rather quiet at 41½ to 43. Bryant Paper was unchanged at 20 to 21½ and Monarch at 14. Gossard was slightly lower, being offered at 54, with bids of 50. Consumers preferred was firm at 85 to 86½.

Implement stocks were neglected, Avery preferred being quoted 93 to 100, while the common was offered at 123. Emerson Brantingham preferred declined to 80 bid, with stock offered at 82. Moline Plow preferred, 90@92; Bucyrus, 23@26, and the preferred 94@96. The sugar group was steady, Columbia changing hands at 18 and Michigan at 11¾ to 12¼. Declines were noted in most of the motor issues, Reo selling at 24 and closing at 24 bid, offered at 24½. Paige-Detroit was offered at 40, with bids of 38. Packard declined to sales at 21¼, but improved in the bid price to 22, with offerings at 22½. Stearns was slightly lower at 34 bid, offered at 36.

Rubber stocks showed considerable declines, Firestone selling at 174½, a drop of some nine points. Goodyear sold at 365, a loss of about twenty points. Portage changed hands at 92¼ and Victor at 36¼. There was no particular interest shown in the bank stock market, Continental and Commercial National changing hands at 319 to 320. State Bank of Chicago sold as high as 518, but was offered at the close at 517, with bids of 515. First National sold at 508 @510. Central Trust was quoted 200 to 204.

BRITISH WHEAT ESTIMATE.

British board of trade estimates the world's exportable surplus of wheat outside of Russia at 640,000,000 bu, while the import requirements of wheat and rye are practically the same as the holdings of exporting countries. This was taken by the trade as indicating a closer adjustment of supplies to requirements than generally believed existed.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Chicago federal reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending April 28, 1920, by 187 banks in twenty-three leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,050,986,000 compared with $1,230,370,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,050,986,000 compared with $880,152,000 for the corresponding week last year.

Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Chicago mail order house, totalled $21,824,141, compared with $27,477,946 in March and $19,183,881 in April, 1919, an increase of 13.76 per cent over last year. For the four months to April 30, sales totaled $106,995,130, compared with $71,500,975 for the same period in 1919, an increase of 49.64 per cent. Sales of Albert Pick & Co. for April were $1,032,985, a gain of 50 per cent over April, 1919; while sales for the first quarter of the fiscal year were $3,245,500, an increase of 80 per cent over the same period in 1919.

The Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company announced yesterday that H. C. Wild, vice president and treasurer, had been elected president to succeed the late Roger C. Sullivan. Samuel J. Dark, a director, was elected a vice president, and H. B. Williams, auditor, was elected treasurer. George A. Cooke and Frank P. Sullivan, a nephew of Roger Sullivan, were elected directors to fill vacancies.

Wall street brokers' loans are estimated by bankers at about $900,000,000, or just half the total on July 28, last. This is recited as evidence of a remarkable contraction in the stock market credit situation. Brokers' loans now are lower than before the war notwithstanding that securities listed total many millions more.

The American Express company has organized a securities department for dealing in foreign securities on a wholesale scale. The company will import selected bonds and investments of foreign governments and companies and will offer them to American bankers.

The Corn Products Refining company has announced an increase in wages to all its employes, averaging about 10 per cent. The increase will apply to about 3,500 employes at the Argo plant. The minimum rate for girls under the new scale will be 44 cents an hour and for men, common labor, 56 cents an hour.

ARMOUR COMPANY REVIEW.

Armour & Co., in its review of the week's trade conditions, issued today, says:

"Demand for all packing house products is strong, but packers have found it difficult to fill orders, because of the continued scarcity of empty freight cars. A result has been an increase in the price of dressed meats, due to expensive shipping methods, and a very irregular market for live animals throughout the week."

Little change was noticed in collections, which continue satisfactory under the conditions that obtain.

Exclusive Management of 57 Chicago Buildings

Efficient Management Protects Hool Bond Owners

Point 5—The success of Hool Realty Co. in managing both business and residential properties is shown by the increasing number of buildings placed in its care. This efficiency is your guarantee, as an owner of Hool First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds, that the earning power of every building will be kept at a maximum. You also are assured that interest and premium payments due bondholders will be deducted ahead of all other charges. Send for circular A-36.

The Hool 14 Points of Safety

1. Mortgage for not more than 60% of property value.
2. Net income from property four times annual interest.
3. Every year an average of 1-8 of loan is paid.
4. Every bond is part of direct First Mortgage.
5. The building is managed and all rents collected by us.
6. Our collection of rents is a guarantee that your interest and principal will be paid ahead of all other charges.
7. Ample Fire Insurance held by us for you.
8. No fluctuation in your income.
9. 1% Federal Income Tax paid by us.
10. The Chicago Title & Trust Co. acts as trustee and guarantees title to every loan.
11. Every rise in the cost of material and labor increases the value of present buildings.
12. These buildings can afford to rent for less than any new building erected on present costs.
13. Bonds mature yearly, giving you choice of maturities.
14. We make no charge to you for collecting your interest and principal.

PUBLIC SALE

Sheriff's Sale of Sand and Gravel Pit

The real estate, plant, personal property and equipment of the Burlington Sand & Gravel Company, of Burlington, Racine County, Wisconsin, will be sold on foreclosure sale at public auction by the Sheriff of Racine County, Wisconsin, at the plant at Burlington, Wisconsin, on May 17th, 1920, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The real estate consists of 86.18 acres of sand and gravel land, located about 80 miles from Chicago, on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, with a switch into the plant; and also with railway shipping facilites over the Soo Line.

The sand and gravel pits have been opened and operated, and the material ranges from building sand to the very best of crushed gravel, and there is an endless supply of materials on the property.

The improvements consist of power house, pump house, office building, tool house and blacksmith shop, material bins and barn, and the plant is fully equipped with steam shovel, over 1,000 feet of railway tracks, two gravel cars, two crushers, belt conveyors and machinery, pump and washing machinery, screens, hoppers, modern steam power plant with Corliss engine and boilers, and an abundance of water for washing the material.

More than $75,000.00 was expended by the former owner in the development and equipment of this property. Racin County has voted a bond issue to build about one hundred miles of concrete highway and there will be a large local market for the material.

The property is open for inspection. Take the Soo Line, or the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, to Burlington, Wisconsin. The plant is located one mile westerly from the C., M. & St. P. Station at Burlington, Wisconsin.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for not less than $5,000.

CASH CORN $1.89; OATS $1.13 1-2; SUPPLIES LIGHT

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

General evening up on the part of shorts for over Sunday resulted in a higher average of grain prices. Trade was light, however, and the best figures were not maintained. May corn lost 1⅞c on reports that 15,000 bu delivered on contracts before the opening were not in good condition, while deferred deliveries were ½c higher to ⅞c lower, the former on July. Oats gained ½@⅝c, May leading, selling at new record figures. Rye closed 1@1⅜c higher and barley 1c higher.

Despite a week's campaign on the bear side of the market and reports of strained financial conditions corn closed 3⅛@3⅝c higher as compared with the finish of the previous week, while oats were 1@1⅝c higher, May leading in both instances. Rye was 4⅞@6c lower and barley 4c lower.

With the bulk of the trade of a local character, corn and oats were easily influenced. On the breaks there was fair support and on the bulges offerings increased considerably. This was particularly noticeable at 90c for July and 76c for September oats.

Weather More Favorable.

Weather conditions over the belt were much more favorable. The weekly forecast was for rain early, followed by generally fair, with nearly normal temperatures. With the stock market closed the trade was forced to give its attention to the factors that govern grain prices exclusively. Planting of corn started at Parkersburg, Iowa, Friday.

While the east holds small stocks of corn and oats, domestic distributors cancelled 56,000 bu corn and 53,000 bu oats, due to inability to get shipments from the west.

Trade in rye was rather light, but the May acted tight at times and closed well toward the top on short covering. Reports of a strike at New Orleans and that one of the leading lake lines had ordered its steamers tied up until further orders had some effect, as it was feared the export movement might be curtailed.

Offerings of barley were small and demand good, with prices unchanged to 3c higher, with sales at $1.70@1.85, the latter a new high on the crop. Receipts 27 cars.

Provision Deliveries Liberal.

Deliveries of provisions were larger than expected—2,250 brls pork, 5,250,000 lbs lard, and 4,350,000 lbs short ribs. These were put out by one set of packers and taken in by another

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago Saturday were 5,000 bu corn and 5,000 bu oats.

Seaboard exporters backed away from offers of wheat for first half of May shipment, which was offered at $2.93, c. i. f. Georgian bay. Bids for last half May were on the basis of $2.96, and first half June at $2.97, c. i. f. bay. At the gulf, $3.08 was offered f. o. b., but no sales were reported. Cash wheat prices in all markets were firm. Local receipts, 3 cars.

Cash corn was in light supply and good demand with prices 1@3c higher. Oats, 1@1½c higher. No. 2 white sold at 11c over May. Chicago received 23 cars of kaffir corn and milo maize.

A Board of Trade membership sold Saturday at $11,000 net to the buyer, the highest price in some months.

WORLD'S-GRAIN MARKET-NEWS

A slowing down of industries is noticeable as a result of the railroad congestion. Some grain elevators are closed, one house laid off nine men yesterday and it is said there are nearly 30,000 idle men in the South Chicago district. The money market is tightening and those who are bearish are looking to this as a depressing factor, although there is no pressure of cash grains. There is a question in the minds of the trade as to the effect of a good run of grain on values and the general belief is that it will take largely increased receipts to lower values permanently. There was selling yesterday on sunshine and because one consignment of 35 cars of corn and kaffir corn appeared. The grain, however, has been long on the way.

A feature in the oat trade was the active changing in the way of buying May and selling the deferred futures, which was also on in corn and rye. In the latter market the spread ranged from 8¾@11c, making the round trip several times. Shorts are getting out of May and into July and September. One of the largest oat traders, who has been bearish for several weeks, said yesterday he was bullish, having bought on the early decline and taken profits on the advance.

There will be a conference of grain, live stock, and other interests with the interstate commerce commission in Washington on May 3. The Chicago Board of Trade will be represented by E. D. McDougal.

A message from Toledo yesterday said the Pittsburgh Steamship company had laid up seventy steamers and thirty barges and another steamship concern is figuring on tying up sixty steamers as a result of labor troubles and scarcity of coal. A local vessel agent said the latest reports from the ore shipping ports were that a settlement of labor troubles had been made and the men were returning to work. This will start the boats going again.

CHICAGO RESERVE STATUS BETTER; BORROWING CUT

The weekly statement of the Chicago federal reserve bank showed considerable improvement. As a result of a large increase in cash and only a moderate increase in loans, the reserve position was improved and the bank was enabled to reduce its borrowings from other federal reserve banks by $3,614,000. this item, represented by loans on paper indorsed and turned over to sister institutions, now standing at $38,471,000.

Total gold reserves increased $11,708,246. The member banks increased their aggregate reserve account by $4,793,244. Total deposits increased $7,398,974. The member banks increased their borrowings at the reserve institution by $8,006,159, their loans secured by government obligations increasing $10,939,186 and loans otherwise secured decreasing $2,933,027.

To the increase in borrowings on government securities is ascribed the reserve bank's action in increasing the rediscount rate on borrowings secured by Liberty bonds and Victory notes from 5½ to 6 per cent. Note circulation decreased $1,865,855.

The ratio of reserves to net deposit and note circulation liabilities combined rose to 40.2 from 39.5 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 42.6 from 41.5 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Banks Showing Poor.

The weekly statement of the New York associated banks made rather a poor showing. As the result of a considerable increase in loans and deposits, coupled with a loss in cash, the excess reserve declined $4,712,550 to $30,839,160. Despite drastic liquidation in stocks, loans increased $38,033,000, and this was a factor in the sharp advance in the rates for call money at the end of the week. Deposits increased $36,827,000. The reserve accounts, taken as a whole, decreased $5,543,000. Government deposits declined $14,761,000 and note circulation increased $222,000.

The figures follow:

SHORT CROPS AND HIGHER PRICES SEEN BY PATTEN

James A. Patten is quoted in a weekly trade paper as being pessimistic about conditions. He says it is "not wise to blind ourselves to the truth or refrain from discussion of the perils that confront us."

"I believe we are facing a grave situation in the matter of a food supply shortage in this country and abroad," he says. "Indications are that our crops, especially wheat, will fall below the normal production. This means higher prices for foodstuffs and new demands on the part of labor for wage advances, which, if granted, will force the prices of all manufactured goods to still higher levels.

"Scarcity of farm labor is one of the principal reasons we cannot expect average production on the farms. This is a serious question, scarcely appreciated by the people in cities."

He foresees a shortage of wheat production, with an increased demand from abroad, resulting in a sharp advance. He believes Europe will need to import from 600,000,000 to 700,000,000 bu of wheat, the bulk of which will have to come from the United States.

"In view of these conditions," he said, "I am in favor of keeping our wheat market closed to speculative trading until July, 1921. Unless this is done there will be a lot of wild speculation, and the Board of Trade will be blamed for the soaring prices, even though outsiders do the speculating."

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The cotton goods market was quiet today. Yarns were steady while wool goods were more irregular. Silks were dull and low qualities were offered at substantial concessions. Burlaps were quiet and linens firm.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter prices declined 1c in Chicago, with holders more anxious to sell and buyers indifferent. On the Mercantile exchange sales of standards were two cars May delivery at 56¾c, four cars at 57c, 12 cars June at 53¾c. Refrigerator eggs sold at 47¾c for September delivery. Storage packed firsts brought 44c for May, with 20 cars sold and 43c for June, with 3 cars sold. Egg prices on South Water street were easier at 41½c to 42½c for first firsts. Receipts for the week were 285,682 cars, against 290,069 cars the previous week and 233,478 cars last year.

Live poultry prices were unchanged, with offerings light. Fowls and spring chickens were 37c and old roosters 23c.

Potato prices were irregular owing to a wide difference in quality. Offerings of choice were light, at $7.15 per 100, while fair to good range at $6.85 to $7.00 in car lots; receipts 80 cars, with 171 cars on track.

Strawberries sold well at $3.50 to $5.00 for twenty-four pints from Louisiana. Receipts were 6 cars, 1,700 pints and 100 quart cases.
